Big Eclipse, Small Crowd.
Poor Wall St. Fafner.
Gangsters in Style.
4 Dogs to Die, Good Riddance.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

TODAY, FEBRUARY 13, comes an awe-inspiring eclipse of the sun. It will occur far out in the Pacific Ocean, two hundred miles east of the Malay Peninsula, sweeping across the Pacific, and ceasing about two hundred miles before it reaches the coast of Alaska.

A few human beings will see it, on small Pacific islands, and on ships and fishing boats.

The eclipse, without an audience, will be comparable to the falling of a giant tree in a solitary forest, crashing without sound. Where there is no ear to hear, the tree makes no noise. Where there is no eye to miss the eclipsed sun's light, the eclipse is not real.

NOT SO LONG ago, an eclipse of the sun was supposed to indicate God's wrath, the temporary darkness in hours of sunshine was believed sent to frighten men into good behavior.

In still more primitive times, some demon was believed to have swallowed the sun, and all the influence of magicians and pagan priests was needed to make the demon disgorge his prey.

Now any child knows that an eclipse of the sun is the same as when you are reading, and someone passes between you and the lamp.

There is a record of two great armies, about to begin fighting, both sides running home as fast as their legs would carry them, when the light of the sun began to disappear.

THAT OLD saying about "the government that governs least governs best" has been swept out of the back door. A government that once had nothing to do with any business is now a government that has everything to do with every business.

Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Corporation, announces formation of an eleven-million-dollar corporation to promote trade with Russia. This country having recognized Russia with an eye to business, it seems a good idea to try to organize and get the business.

STARTLING IS the announcement that even business along Broad and Wall streets, New York is to be regulated, told what to do, when to do it, and what NOT to do.

Wall Street has always been like the old dragon, Fafner, in the Rhinegold, lying on his precious golden hoard, saying:

"I lie and possess; let me sleep."

The Roosevelt government will not let Wall Street Fafner lie, possess and sleep in the old way. When he reaches out for public monies hereafter, he will be asked to tell all about it, and what, if anything, is back of the pretty stock certificates.

It is a sad day for poor old Wall Street Fafner. First, his golden hoard was taken away from him, and his one-hundred cent dollars of gold changed to 59-cent dollars of paper, and now he may not even do as he pleases "with his own."

POLICE, IN Baltimore, arresting Basil Banghart, called "the Owl," were amazed to see the hardened criminal turn white, shaking with fear, submitting without a struggle. This was explained when Banghart said he thought "rival gangsters had closed in on him." Had he known it was "only the police" he would not have been frightened.

If his captors had really been enemy gangsters, he would have lived less than another half hour, and knew it. Gangsters know how to enforce respect for their gang laws.

BANGHART, indicted for kidnaping John Factor, occupied two suites of apartments. Two women were arrested in the apartments, and police found there twelve thousand, four hundred and ninety-five dollars, in five-dollar bills. Gangsters prefer small bills, that attract little attention.

Police found also two submachine guns, seven revolvers, one sawed-off shotgun, one rifle. "The Owl" was prepared.

Costner, one of Banghart's associates, also arrested, carried fourteen hundred and eighty-six dollars in his pockets. It was a prosperous "hang out," the criminals being supposed to have taken one hundred and five thousand dollars in one robbery.

The apartment contained "complete make-up sets," including many types of mustaches and whiskers.

BY ORDER of Justice of the Peace McGraw, four dogs, led by a police dog, that mangled little Joyce Hammond, a six-year-old girl at McGraw, N. Y., will be shot, to prevent their mangling any other little child.

The dogs, out for amusement, caught the little girl, tore one of her arms badly, sending her to the hospital. Many wrote telling Judge McGraw that it was a shame to kill the dogs. They were only playful, did not know what they were doing.

The justice thinks it a good idea to prevent their ever being playful in the same way again, and the dogs will be destroyed by the county veterinarians.

The average father and mother will indorse the judge's decision that while every dog may be entitled to "one bite," not every four dogs are entitled to amuse themselves mangling one small girl.

SIR MALCOLM CAMPBELL, to break his automobile record of two hundred and seventy-two miles per hour, will attempt a record of three hundred miles an hour in August, using for speed track the dry bed of the

3 CHILDREN SEE FATHER SLAIN

A 29-year-old East Pittsburgh mother stabbed her husband to death with a pair of scissors during a quarrel in their home at 201 Versailles avenue, early today, police say.

Mrs. Anna White admits, they say, that she sank the scissors into the neck of her husband, Thomas White, 33 after he had beaten her and had chased her from the house in her nightclothing early this morning during the snowstorm. Three children, Mina, 6; Margaret, 8, and Thomas, 10, witnessed the slaying of their father.

As her father lay dying, Margaret ran to the home of a neighbor, John McDonald, for help. McDonald summoned police. White was pronounced dead on arrival of Dr. Albert Rosenberg.

Mrs. White told officers that her husband arrived home intoxicated about 3:30 a. m. and dragged her from bed by the hair. She fled when he began to beat her, she said, but was driven back into the house by the cold. Her husband attacked her again, she told police, and during a tussle, she stabbed him with the scissors.

Police said White had been unemployed for some time, but had gone to work at the Edgar Thomson plant of the Carnegie Steel Company two weeks ago.

CHILDREN DIE IN VIENNA WARFARE

Big Guns Rip Homes Of 2,000 Families; 500 Dead in Revolt

Associated Press.

Meeting challenges of civil war and strike terrorism, three European governments faced their opponents today with the superior armaments of constituted authority.

In Austria, where the government is fighting for its life, unconfirmed estimates placed the number of dead at not less than 500 as Socialists battled troops supporting Chancellor Dollfuss. Hundreds on both sides were injured.

France struggled back toward normalcy after anti-Fascist strikes and demonstrations claimed one life yesterday and left scores wounded.

Labor disorders in Spain resulted in exchange of gunfire between police and strikers in which nine were wounded.

VIENNA, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Women and children were fed to the flames of civil war today as government artillery smashed the Karl Marx apartment building, housing 2,000 Socialist families.

No one knows how many were killed.

The howitzers apparently smashed the third and fourth floors of the greatest apartment building in Europe. The middle arch collapsed.

The shelling of the $4,000,000 structure was only one corner of the aspect of Austria today while the forces of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss struggled through bloody streets to put down the rebellion of the Socialist party.

Unofficial estimates today indicated that not less than 500 persons had been killed.

OTHER BATTLES RAGE

At Seyr sharp fighting broke out again early this morning when Socialists stationed machine guns on top a hill commanding the town.

Other forces of Socialists were in possession of the great war-

Nazis Rout War Nest In Danzig

Editor's note—A war that was quite possible a year ago now appears to be definitely off, H. R. Knickerbocker, International News Service's famous foreign correspondent, finds as he starts his tour of Europe. In the following article—the second of his series of 36, Knickerbocker tells what he finds in Danzig, where a year ago it seemed certain that the next world war would start.

DANZIG, Feb. 13.—Ten million lives of Europeans and Americans have been saved in this city of Danzig.

That many lives were lost on the battlefields of 1914-1918.

At least that many would be lost in the next war. That war was scheduled to begin in Danzig.

Today it is evident that war is not going to begin here, and Hitler the war-maker has become Hitler the peace-maker as the lord of Danzig.

For today Danzig is Nazi, and for the first time in 13 years Danzig is at peace with the Poles. For the first time since the war Danzig has been eliminated from its Number One place in the list of the probable seats of war. Its place there was so sure, and the chances of preventing war here seemed so slim that today it is no exaggera-

Wife Imprisoned, Grief Kills Baron

LONDON, Feb. 13.—(INS.)—Grief over the imprisonment of his wife for fraud was believed today to have contributed to the death of Baron Strabolgi, 80, holder of one of England's oldest baronetcies.

Baron Strabolgi died yesterday at the home of his son. Lady Strabolgi, the former Elizabeth Cooper, of Sacramento, Cal., was sentenced on January 22 last to three months' imprisonment for conspiracy and attempting to obtain money by false pretenses.

BREWER, 68, ENDS LIFE WITH GUN

Son of Founder of Anheuser-Busch Ill for Months

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—August A. Busch, Sr., 68, president of Anheuser-Busch, Inc., and head of the internationally known family of brewers, shot and killed himself today at his home in St. Louis County.

Busch had been seriously ill for about six weeks. The shooting occurred in his bed room at the palatial Busch estate known as Grant Farm.

He was suffering from heart disease, gout and dropsy, and on his last visit to the brewery here a week ago he expressed discouragement, declaring he had little hope of relief.

After Busch awoke today, his cousin, John Busch of Washington, Mo., visited him in his room. His chauffeur, Tony Fickeinaer, and a maid also entered the room to inquire about his health.

Busch asked the chauffeur to remain. When his cousin and the maid left the room he asked the chauffeur to close the door to the room occupied by Mrs. Busch, and to turn on the radio.

As the chauffeur manipulated the radio, he heard a shot and turned to see Busch fall with a bullet in his abdomen. He was dead when members of the family rushed into the room.

On a high table beside Busch's bed was found an unsigned note, written with pencil on a plain sheet of paper. It said:

"Goodbye, precious Mommie and adorable children."

Busch was the son of Adolphus Busch, founder of the Busch brewing interests, who died in 1913.

New Orleans Opens Gay Mardi Gras

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—New Orleans today abandoned itself to the gay revelry of Mardi Gras.

From street urchins to bank presidents, citizens garbed themselves in fantastic costumes and masks to pay homage to Rex, mightiest of the season's rulers, and his fair consort.

'Green Pastures' 'Noah' Dies at 55

MISS ROSE HARDY . . . LOOKED DEFIANTLY AT PROSECUTOR

Miss Hardy, present in the company of a county detective at the trial of Robert S. Soles today, who shot a look of defiance at Assistant Prosecutor Haggerty as he intoned to the jury: "We intend to show that the defendant came home about 1 o'clock in the morning from a girl friend." This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

BARE SECRET PHONE CALL, LETTER

Crowd Storms Court; Friend, Dead Wife's Father on Stand

A mysterious man, a special delivery letter from Florida, a telegram and a long distance telephone call bobbed up unexpectedly this afternoon in the trial of Robert S. Soles, for the slaying of his wife in McKeesport nearly a year ago.

To every reference of the mysterious missives, the phone call and the man, Prosecutor John Haggerty, entered spirited objections. The letter, envelope and contents, was admitted over his argument. The contents were not divulged.

Through it all, attractive and demure, Rose Hardy, friend of the accused, sat in an apparent mood of defiance. She followed the testimony of elderly Harry B. Lynch, Soles' father-in-law, eagerly, hanging on every word of the slain woman's father, as he told of the marital reltaionship between Soles and his wife, La Roux.

LITTER SURPRISE

First reference of the letter came as a surprise during cross examination of Lynch by Oliver K. Eaton, defense counsel.

Eaton, seeking to bring out a strain of the marital ties of the Soles' household, asked:

"Isn't it true that from the time of the receipt of this letter on up until Soles took his wife to Atlantic City, you were both upset and the household was upset?"

Lynch answered:

"It didn't seem so to me—any more than before that time."

Eaton's first attempt to have the letter entered as an exhibit brought the prosecutor to his feet with an objection.

Judge Frank P. Patterson overruled him.

Eaton questioned:

"Didn't this letter come from Florida?"

LONG DISTANCE CALL

A—To my best recollection, it had a Florida postmark.

Q—Then, on the day following the receipt of this letter, was there

CLUBS INDORSE SALES TAX

Expressing the belief that the income tax discourages industrial and commercial enterprise, lessens employment of labor, thereby reducing payrolls and purchasing power, the board of directors of the Congress of Clubs and Club Women of Western Pennsylvania, Inc., today urged Congress to enact a manufacturers' sales tax to replace the income tax.

The plea was voiced in a resolution which reaffirmed the organization's unqualified support of President Roosevelt and the Congress "in furthering all constructive measures designed to establish a basis for permanent recovery and economic stability beneficial to all the people." It was signed by Mrs. Oliver J. Haller, president. The Congress of Clubs held that:

"As against an income tax a manufacturers' sales tax, as has been adequately demonstrated in other countries, will produce a larger national revenue with a minimum disturbance to the economic structure of the nation and without interference with individual welfare and convenience; that such a tax while producing a greater revenue, would be less expensive to

Woman, 'Young' at 75, Cuts Third Set of Teeth

Eye-Sight Restored, Silver Fades From Hair

BEAVERTON, Ont., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—The strange story of the apparent rejuvenation of Mrs. Mary Anne Elliott, 75, has reached a third and more thrilling stage for her, she said today.

Friends stated her grey hair is darkening, she is cutting a third set of teeth and now, she explained:

"I can see."

She has been almost blind for three years.

Two weeks ago, Mrs. Elliott said, she was unable to recognize a neighbor who called on her. Now—

"One eye is pretty clear and it seems as though the film is passing from the other. I know that my hair is becoming darker."

Mrs. Elliott described how she had cut 11 teeth and discarded the set of false teeth she had used for years.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—The idea that an aged person can become young again was declared "unfounded" today by Dr. Iago Galdston, who is in charge of the medical information bureau of the New York Academy of Medicine and the County Medical Society.

He was commenting on dispatches from Beaverton, Ont., telling of the apparent "rejuvenation" of Mrs. Mary Anne Elliott, 75, whose friends declared she is cutting a third set of teeth and can now see after being almost blind.

Dr. Galdston explained that sometimes individual phenomena occur, such as the tardy appearance of "supernumerary teeth." But, he declared emphatically, "there is not a single record" of a third set of teeth appearing in the mouth of an aged person.

First Lady Orders Nuts for Squirrels

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—(Universal.)—Mrs. Roosevelt today ordered the White House housekeeper to provide a daily ration of nuts for the squirrels which frisk about the lawn. What with the severe winter and a falling off of voluntary contributions from visitors the squirrels have had a hard time.

YACHT IN PERIL, KRESGE ABOARD

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Her main boom carried away in a winter gale, the auxiliary schooner yacht Uvira floundered helpless and in distress in the North Atlantis, off the Maryland coast, today while a coast guard vessel steamed to her assistance.

Aboard was a party of 36 amateur explorers—among them Howard C. Kresge, of Detroit, son of the chain-store owner, and several women—who sailed from Brooklyn last week for adventure in Central American waters.

A garbled wireless message calling for "immediate assistance" was intercepted by the coast guard here this morning—hte first word of the Uvira's plight.

It was thought at first that the Uriva's message reported "one man overboard," but a subsequent message picked up by the coast guard stated that "the main boom carried on mast lost overboard."

Badly garbled, the message read:

"Yacht Uvira in distress 14:13 west 3812 north. Making (apparently the word was "heavy") weather. Main boom carried on mast lost overboard. Passengers aboard."

Artillery Horses Will Give Way to Motorized 107th

The horses that trundle the guns of the 107th Field Artillery, Pennsylvania National Guard, are destined to give way to the wheels of progress.

The War Department has decided the 107th Regiment, with regimental headquarters here, and the 109th are to be motorized; so the stables of the 2d Battalion in Emerson street soon will be emptied of "Joe," and "Prince" and "Maud."

There are 79 horses stabled in the Emerson street armory. Some of them are a quarter of a century old.

Col. Eric Fisher Wood, of Pittsburgh, commands the One Hundred and Seventh. He and other National Guard officers made a study of motorized gun transportation several months ago.

An Associated Press dispatch said federal inspectors will determine what shall become of the out-moded cavalry horses. Some will be transferred to the Fifty-Second Cavalry brigade, others will be sold, and some killed.

FIVE-CENT FARE BILL OPPOSED

An ordinance which would prevent continuance of the agreement between the city and the Pittsburgh Railways Company unless the company grants a five-cent fare and puts on sufficient cars to miprove the service was introduced today in Council by Councilman Walter R. Demmler.

The measure was referred to the Committee on Service and Surveys.

The ordinances states that the old Council had agreed to extend the contract between the city and railways company two more years, but that Mayor William N. McNair, as a citzen, filed a petition objecting. As a result the old Council continued the contract temporarily to April 30, 1934.

The ordinance also states that the fare rate under the present contract was made at a time of corporate inflation. If the company does not agree to the fare change, the ordinance states that the "courts should be appealed to" and that the city should ask a receiver be appointed for the company.

NRA TURNS TO REGIONAL CODES TO AID ENFORCEMENT

POLICY CHANGE ANNOUNCED BY JOHNSON

Fewer Suits in U. S. Court Now Aim Of Leaders

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—The NRA today decided to abandon past policy and encourage the formation of regional codes or agreements in the trades which are clearly outside of interstate commerce.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson issued this statement:

"It is recognized that in the development of a program of industrial self government, where national industries must be organized nationally, we may wisely follow the theories underlying the organization of our federal union of self-governing states, utilizing national organization and national standards where they are nationally applicable, and providing in a practical manner for local control of local affairs."

The new type of code or agreements is proposed to be used for such trades as laundries, restaurants, taxicabs and barber shops, but not for local retail stores.

NATIONAL CODES

These, because they handle products generally manufactured in interstate commerce, are to remain organized on countrywide lines.

The new policy was viewed at NRA as meeting the increasing enforcement difficulties in such trades as dry cleaning, where it has proved next to impossible to secure compliance on a nationwide scale and in which prosecution of violators is especially difficult because their business is so clearly outside the usual scope of interstate commerce.

The announcement said:

"State legislation should be encouraged to give additional sanction to agreements regionally for regional trades and industries, and to aid in the local application and enforcement of the requirements of federal codes."

FEWER LAWSUITS

This was understood to mean that there would be less effort to enforce regional codes in federal courts. The Blue Eagle insignia will continue to be available to firms subscribing to the regional agreements.

The outline of the new policy provided that even in the trades having local agreement, a national code might be prepared and approved by NRA as the basis for the local pacts which would make "acceptable adaptation to local conditions."

NRA avoided defining the size of areas to be included in the new agreements, but it was understood that many of these might be limited to as small a unit as one city.

Retail coal and lumber establishments and agencies for manufactured products such as automobiles, household appliances and others evidently would be retained in this class.

GIRL 'DRUNK,' MURREL SAYS

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Repeating under cross examination his denial that he assaulted Blanche Ralls, Alabama divorcee, Lieut. John H. Murrell, former West Point football star, testified in his trial today that his accuser was in a "drunken condition" at the time of the alleged attack.

The young army officer said he was driving Miss Ralls to his military quarters to turn her over to his mother when he stopped his car near the radio tower on the Fort Sam Houston Military Reservation, where she asserted the attack occurred.

He planned to stop there until Miss Ralls recovered, Lieut. Murrel related. Previously he had testified of being introduced to her at a night club and of being left with her when other members of the party departed early on the morning of October 22 last.

Lieut. Murrel was asked by E. A. McDaniel, defense attorney:

"Why did you take her to the military reservation?"

He answered:

"I did not know what to do with her. She was in a drunken condition."

GROCERS CALL CODE MEET

A meeting has been called for the organizing of the Food and Grocery Distributors' Code Authority for Allegheny County in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium tomorrow at 8:15 p. m. Wholesalers, retailers, chain stores and retail meat dealers are covered by this authority and will elect their representative to the code authority.

A representative for the chain stores, independent retail grocers, independent wholesale grocers, voluntary chains, retailer owned, and retail meat dealers will be elected.

Anthracite Mine Violence Renewed

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Feb. 13.—(INS.)—One man was beaten today and a number of other casualties were reported when rioting broke out at the Delaware mine of the Hudson Coal Company in Plains.

The disturbances followed refusal of the operators to re-employ strikers who returned to their posts after the strike of the United Anthracite Miners of Pennsylvania was called off effective yesterday.

Hints French Troops May Help Austria

PARIS, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Henry Berenger, chairman of the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee, suggested unofficially today that it might be necessary for France and other powers of the League of Nations to give armed aid to Chancellor Engelbert Dollfus.

The French government already has encouraged Austria to take her quarrel with Germany before the League of Nations.

STATE TO PROBE HOTEL STRIKE

The state today prepared to step into the breach between striking hotel workers and the William Penn Hotel in an effort to bring about a settlement.

At the request of the strike committee, Secretary Charlotte E. Carr, of the Department of Labor, ordered Joseph Washington, state mediator, to come to Pittsburgh today. Washington said:

"I shall investigate the true facts of the strike and endeavor to act as mediator between the two sides. There are always two sides to a story, so my first job is to learn both sides. My efforts may not succeed in settling the strike—but I shall try."

Jack Kirsch, 5143 Ladora street, was fined $5 or five days in jail this morning by Magistrate Howard B. McNutt, after police testified he was the leader of the parade of strikers at the William Penn yesterday. Eight other men and three women arrested at the same time were discharged with a warning.

BIG GAINS SEEN ON 'NEW DEAL'

A marked increase in the business and industry of the Pittsburgh district has come in the first year of the "New Deal" Dr. Ralph J. Watkins, director of the University of Pittsburgh's Bureau of Business Research told the Chamber of Commerce today.

He cited these figures as the increases from March 1, 1933 to February 1, 1934:

General business activity 38 per cent; iron and steel production, 74 per cent; coal, 20 per cent; car loadings, 55 per cent; factory employment, 25 per cent.

He added:

"Regardless of one's views on the administration's recovery policy we must admit that it did succeed in loosening the log-jam of the depression."

Former Gov. John S. Fisher, president of the Chamber, ousted as head of the NRA here for remarks construed as opposing the President's progr m, said:

"Whatever our political affiliations we must applaud whoever brings back national prosperity."

Union Tilt Closes Uniontown Mine

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Feb. 13.—(INS.)—Striking miners who recently returned to work at the Isabella pit of the Weirton Coal Company today were without jobs. Seven hundred workers are affected by the layoff. Company officials refused to estimate how long the idleness will be continued.

Controversy at the pit developed when the U. M. W. A. demanded the discharge of a mine superintendent and other officials.

CITY TO REMAIN AIR MAIL BASE

By JOHN P. COWAN
Sun-Telegraph Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Pittsburgh will be maintained as an important air mail office under the new arrangement in the use of army planes, effective next Monday, it was announced by Postmaster General James A. Farley.

The Cleveland-Pittsburgh-Washington route will be continued, as well as the transcontinental system via Pittsburgh.

Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, chief of the Army Air Corps, who will direct the operation of the planes, said today that schedules were being worked out and that Pittsburgh would be utilized also as a first-class servicing station for refueling, storing and repairing planes, requiring modern hangars and complete shop equipment.

Ten planes will be used on the Cleveland-Pittsburgh-Washington route, according to present arrangement, requiring the services of 15 pilots. The schedules contemplated call for an average speed of 130 miles an hour.

ECLIPSE RACES OVER PACIFIC

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—A total eclipse of the sun which started off Asia just when tomorrow, St. Valentine's Day, was dawning there, will end at the western edge of the United States today while it is still February 13 on this side of the world.

The total eclipse with its white corona will sink into the Pacific with the sunset just before it reaches our West Coast, but the penumbra of partial eclipse will shade the coast from Southern California to northermost Alaska.

The eclipse races about one-third the distance arund the earth from sunrise to sunset. Its path begins off the Malay Peninsula and bends in an exaggerated hockey-stick curve to end just off Southern Alaska.

In all that distance there are only two small islands where it can be seen from land, Losap and Oroluk in the Carolines, where it will last two minutes and about five seconds. Its shap will be an ellipse 60 to 80 miles wide and will travel thousands of miles an hour. Russia and Japan have sent astronomers to Losap. There is no official American expedition, although a few Americans have been listed in the personnel of the foreign observers.

Death Plane's Motor Found After 2 Years

STEUBENVILLE, O., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—The motor of an airplane in which Dr. Carol Skinner Cole, of St. Louis, and her pilot, Hal George, plunged to their deaths almost two years ago, was pulled from the Ohio river yesterday.

Messenger Boy Missing With Cash

Disappearance of Lawrence Rosso, a messenger, while he was en route to a bank with $95 from McGann's drug store at 400 Independence street, West End, was reported to West End police today.

MACCRACKEN'S SENATE TRIAL RESUMED

CWA Bill Put Aside To Air Charges Of Contempt

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—The Senate today resumed the trial of William P. MacCracken and three aviation company officials on charges of contempt.

To do so, it laid aside the $950,000,000 CWA appropriation bill without reaching a decision in the dispute with the House over amendments.

The conference report on the appropriation bill was postponed after two hours' consideration had merely stirred dispute and did not indicate an early vote. The controversy centered on the Senate amendment, rejected bzy the House, to compel Senate confirmation of state CWA directors.

FOUR FACE SENATE

As long-waiting crowds looked down, MacCracken, former Assistant Secretary of Commerce; L. H. Brittin, vice president of Northwest Airways; Harris M. Hanshue, president of Western Air Express, and Gilbert L. Givvin, Washington representative of the latter company, the four defendants, were brought into the chamber and took their customary seats to the left of the Vice President's dais on the floor.

Chairman Black of the investigating committee opened the proceedings by announcing he would not insist on continuance of the reading of the long committee report, begun yesterday, unless counsel for MacCracken objected.

HOGAN YIELDS

Frank J. Hogan, MacCracken's attorney, replied the decision of the District Supreme Court yesterday in remanding MacCracken to the custody of the Senate had put them in a "different position" and he would waive further reading, but would continue to hold to their contention that the Senate had no constitutional right to try the defendant and punish him.

Asked by Black if he had any evidence to produce, Hogan said he considered the evidence all in, as far as he was concerned.

Lindbergh Letter Row Forces House Recess

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Republican attempts to insert into the Congressional Record the protest from Charles A. Lindbergh to the President about air mail contracts cancellation today forced Democratic leaders to adjourn the House shortly before half-past one in the afternoon.

Representative Fish (Rep.), New York, tried to get the letter accepted for the Record, with the House at the time engaged on very minor legislation.

The Democratic leader, Byrns, of Tennessee, was among the many who shouted "object."

Then, when the House proceeded with its consideration of private bills, which require unanimous consent, as did the attempted Fish insertion, Fish objected to four bills in a row.

Whereupon Byrns asked if such tactics were to be carried on, Fish said "yes," that is, unless he had his way on the Lindbergh letter.

Piqued, Byrns would not give in. He moved adjournment. It was carried, and for the second time in a week such an impasse had forced the leaders to abandon their plans.

Amid the many comments on Lindbergh's letter and the White House attitude toward it, Speaker Rainey said he thought the aviator had been tactless in having the letter published before it was received at the White House.

The White House said today more than 200 telegrams, representing about an equally divided opinion, had been received after Charles A. Lindbergh's protest against cancellation of air mail contracts had been described there as "primarily for publicity purposes."

Stephen A. Early, a secretary to President Roosevelt, told reporters about 50 per cent of the messages supported the protest of Lindbergh while the other half upheld the position of President Roosevelt for a new deal in air mail aviation.

Traylor 'Has Good Chance,' Doctor Says

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—So marked did Dr. William R. Cubbins consider the latest rally of Melvin A. Traylor, pneumonia-stricken banker, that he said he believed Traylor had an "exceedingly good chance for complete recovery," Dr. Cubbins said today:

"He's still a seriously ill man, however, so we'll continue to stand by to be ready in case there is a turn for the worse."

Pinchot's Return To Capital Delayed

HARRISBURG, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Attaches of Gov. Pinchot's office said today it was unlikely the executive would return to Harrisburg this week.

Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of the governor, who was in Harrisburg over the week-end, returned last night to New York, where the Governor is a patient at Leroy Sanitarium.

Wallace Opposes Control of Cotton

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—(INS.)—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace today told the House Agriculture Committee he was opposed to any compulsory cotton production control unless the producers expressed willingness to cooperate with such a program.

ALUMINUM CO. SUMMONED IN ARMY QUIZ

Plane Builder Tells Of Huge Payments Made to 'Trust'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—An assertion that 75 cents out of every dollar spent by the War and Navy departments for airplanes is "stolen" by members of what he called the "air trust" was made today before the House military committee by James V. Martin, an aviation pioneer.

Asked for specific information, Martin named the Curtiss-Wright, Pratt-Whitney, General Aviation and Boeing companies.

He testified in the investigation of airplane contracts just as another House committee decided to call the Aluminum Company of America to explain testimony that one airplane builder was compelled to pay 10 per cent of his manufacturing cost to the Aluminum concern.

ALUMINUM COSTLY

Before the naval affairs subcommittee, Lawrence Grumman, of the Grumman Aviation Company, Farmington, L. I., testified that 10 per cent of his manufacturing cost was attributable to such payments. He added that he could buy no aluminum from any source except the Aluminum Company of America.

Martin said every Army and Navy airplane contract is "secretly and collusively" let and that the departments are "honeycombed with agents and employes of this trust." He contended:

"There is not a single man in the Army or Navy who dares to oppose the control exercised by the Air Trust.

"These men fear the loss of everything dear to them—their reputations, their careers, their life in the Army."

He added that some of the "same companies now exposed for their airmail dealings have been doing far worse" on Army and Navy contracts.

SPEED SACRIFICED

Because of the operations of the "Air Trust" Martin testified, "this year contracts were let for planes with 50 to 100 miles an hour less speed than those offered by competent" plane builders. He asserted:

"This nation for 17 years has been the victim of a gigantic, insidious conspiracy by a small group of banking brokers.

"We are 10 to 12 years behind what we reasonably could expect our present aviation to be."

Martin said he thought Brig. Gen. H. Conger Pratt was an "excellent officer and a man," but that circumstances forced him to keepsilent.

He said he once wrote to Pratt, saying that aviation's pioneers should be given a chance in building planes for the Army and Navy, and that in reply Pratt agreed, but referred to "circumstances over which the Air Corps has no control."

Martin testified, too, that a number of men in the Army had left the service to go to work for private companies and later had returned to the service.

HIGHBALL DEATH LAID TO NURSE

GREENWOOD, Miss., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—For the third time today the jury heard the deathbed statement of Dr. John Preston Kennedy accusing Dr. Sarah Ruth Dean, on trial for murder, of giving him a poisoned highball from today's testimony of Dr. W. F. Hand, of Jackson, the third witnes to the statement.

Dr. Hand's testimony was almost verbatim to that of the two previous witnesses, Dr. Barney Kennedy and Dr. Henry Kennedy, brother of Dr. Preston Kennedy.

When he made his dying statement, Dr. Hand said, his patient was of normal mind, although he complained to "burning up inside" and of having a sore mouth.

'Pretty Boy's' Girl Slain in Toledo

MONROE, Mich., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Sheriff's officers today said they believed that Ethel Young, 26, of Toledo, whose body was found yesterday stuffed into a culvert near here, had been slain by Toledo ggangsters. The body was identified late last night.

Toledo police said that the woman, also known as Ethel Norris, had been an acquaintance of "Pretty Boy" Floyd, Oklahoma outlaw, when he was in Toledo. She had been killed by two blows on the head, Coroner Eli Allore said.

Enters Convent

NATALIE CARR

MISSING GIRL IN CONVENT

MONTREAL, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Miss Natalie Carr, of Clinton, Conn., was reported by the newspaper La Patrie yesterday to have entered the convent of the Reverend Sisters of the Presentation of Marie at St. Hyacinthe, Quebec.

Miss Carr disappeared from her home at Clinton last summer and was widely sought through New England and Quebec. She was reported to have paid a brief visit then at the St. Hyacinthe convent. She later said she had spent the summer in a religious institution in Maine.

La Patrie's dispatch from St. Hyacinthe said Miss Carr entered the institution there with the approval of her Protestant relatives and that she was baptized as a Catholic while there last summer.

MANSFIELD ALLY QUITS CWA JOB

Joseph Gaudy, McKeesport contractor and political ally of County Commissioner William D. Mansfield, has resigned his CWA job, it was announced today by Philip H. Lantz, assistant CWA administrator.

Lantz said that in his letter of resignation Gaudy stated that the job was not paying enough and hoped for the same kind of consideration in the future as he had in the past. He resigned Wednesday, according to Lantz. Last night Gaudy denied that he had quit his CWA job.

Gaudy, it was learned today, is receiving money from the county for rental on a steam shovel he owns.

Fay Vallee, Ill, Denied Visitors

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Suffering a relapse, Fay Webb Vallee was confined to a hospital today, forbidden to see all visitors. Dr. Leo Madsen said she was in a serious condition because of nervous disorders.

Ben C. Cohen, her lawyer, made final plans to appear in Superior Court tomorrow to answer a demurrer filed by her husband, Rudy Vallee, to her separate maintenance action.

Beauty Winner Missing From 'Y'

BOSTON, Feb. 13.—(Universal.)—Nettina Rich, 19, whose dark-eyed beauty won her the title of "Miss New England" last summer, was reported mysterious missing today. She disappeared a week ago from her tiny room at the Y. W. C. A.

Nettina's tearful mother sat today in her snow-covered farm home at Norton, gazed reproachfully at a ribbon bearing the title "Miss New England" and cried:

"This broke my baby's heart."

NINTH DEATH MARKS RIOT IN PRISON

Bullet Halts Bomb Attack By Convicts In Another Pen

WALLA WALLA, Wash., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Falatalties in the Lincoln's Birthday prison break attempt at Washington State Penitentiary increased to nine today with the death of Earnest Alonzo Ware, 27, convict from King County. Eight convicts and one guard lost their lives.

Ware was shot through the stomach in the rifle and submachine gun firef rom the guard towers which ended the wedge-shaped rush of 15 or 15 inmates from the cell building toward the prison wall.

Assistant Chief Turnkey H. L. Briggs died of stab wounds inflicted by the rioters. Other guards wounded in the affray today were reported recovering.

Five of the convicts who survived the fire from the guard towers were in solitary confinement, and Warden James M. McCauley was preparing to file murder charges against at least some of them in connection with Briggs' death. He said he expected to take several days in investigating the matter.

Convicts' Bomb Attack Halted By Bullet

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—A bullet fired from a guard tower frustrated an attempt by four convicts armed with a crude incendiary bomb, to escape over the wall of the Missouri Penitentiary.

The men were attempting to place a plank from a second story window of the chair factory to the top of the prison wall when discovered by Guard P. S. Sears.

One of the convicts hurled a bottle containing benzine at the guard tower manned by Sears. But the matches attached to it failed to ignite the liquid. An electric light bulb, also attached to the bottle, burst against the wall with a loud report and Sears, believing at first he had been shot, fired his pistol, driving the men back.

Within 15 minutes the quartet had been placed in solitary confinement.

MAKES DEFENSE OF TOWNSHIPS

READING, Pa., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Members of the State Association of Township Supervisors meet today, pledged by their secretary to fight any candidate who advocates "centralization of power."

On the eve of the convention, H. A. Thompson, secretary of the association, criticized a recent statement in which State Treasurer Charles A. Waters said taxpayers can save $10,000,000 annually by abolishing second-class townships.

Thompson said:

"This move is a plan to place second-class townships under domination of state control, and replace locally-elected officials who are now serving with little or no pay, with political appointees.

"This organization will unalterably oppose any candidate for Legislature or any other office who advocates a program of centralization of power."

Weather Conditions.

The low pressure that was centered over the upper lakes yesterday morning moved rapidly eastward to the Atlantic coast, followed by rapidly rising barometer and a marked drop in temperature. The change to colder occurred everywhere north of North Carolina and Tennessee and eastward from the Dakotas. There was also a marked drop in temperature over Florida, while over the remainder of the southern states and the western states temperature changes were unimportant. Light snowfall occurred over the country from Indiana eastward and light to moderately heavy rainfall over the South Atlantic coast. The skies are clear this morning over the states west of the Mississippi and over the southern states.

River Conditions.

The rivers are frozen over at most places above Pittsburgh and in some places gorges are forming. Stage at Franklin is 1.5 feet; Lock No. 7 (Mon.), 11.3; Pittsburgh, 10.5; Dam No. 4, 4.7; No. 6, 3.4; No. 10, 3.8; No. 12, 5.0. The rivers will change but little. The dams are down.

Reed Says NRA Should Be Abolished by U. S.

CONNEAUT LAKE PARK, Pa., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Asserting that "Americans do not need to be nursed," United States Senator David A. Reed says the "NRA ought to be abolished and discontinued." He told Crawford County Republicans at a Lincoln Day dinner:

"Our depression was part of a world-wide condition.

"Other countries have had more recovery and they haven't gone through the monkeyshines we have.

"No one is wise enough to guide our daily life from Washington. The farmer cannot be nursed to prosperity. Let the farmer alone; cut his taxes and give him the liberty to do for himself.

"It all comes back to the question of liberty, perhaps some professor from Cornell can guide my life better than I, but I don't want him to do it."

Attacking processing taxes as "taxation without representation," the senior Senator from Pennsylvania added:

"We modern Americans here in America are making faint protest against a system by which a young cabinet officer from Iowa is given uncontrolled power to determine what products shall be taxed, when they shall be taxed and how they shall be taxed."

In an interview Reed termed "very high handed and unjust" the administration's cancellation of all air mail contracts.

a long distance telephone call for your daughter?"

Haggerty objected again and was overruled.

A—I don't know.

Q—But you heard your daughter answer the phone din't you and you knew it was a long distance call?

A—I don't know.

A—I don't know.

Q—Didn't your daughter say "There's that fellow, Martin, again?"

Judge Patterson sustained him and instructed the jury to pay no attention to the reference to the man named "Martin."

Eaton then produced an envelope and a letter. The envelope bore a special delivery stamp. He handed both to Lynch and asked:

Q.—Look carefully, very carefully, now at these two exhibits. I want to asy you some questions.

Lynch looked at the envelope, front and back. Then he took up the letter and read it through.

Spectators, eager for an earful of the sensational trial, robbed themselves of the chance when they rushed the courtroom door. Court Crier John Englert opened the door after the jury had been completed and the witnesses had been admitted to announce that there were seats for 30 spectators.

The crowd surged. In the van were 20 or more women. They fell upon Englert, County Detective Frank Ritz and several county police and pushed them back into the trial room. Reinforcements from inside hurled themselves on the pack and shoved them back.

A few minutes later there was another rush on the door. The officers held the line.

Judge Patterson signalled to Englert. Englert returned to the door and announced that upon instructions from the court, no spectators would be admitted.

The trial was delayed for nearly two hours this morning through the necessity of picking another juror to take the place of Mrs. Caroline Benson, of 1911 Wylie avenue, in No. 7 seat. Mrs. Benson's brother, August Auchter, died last night in a fire which partially destroyed the Benson home.

NEW JUROR CHOSEN

The additional juror was chosen by agreement between the defendant and his counsel and the District Attorney's office. Judge Frank P. Patterson, taking cognizance of the tragedy, read into the trial record counsel's agreement and the order for selection of the substitute juror.

The remainder of yesterday's panel was recalled and after six members were examined, Mrs. Lorrene Winter, of Allison Park, was finally chosen to fill Mrs. Benson's place.

Lynch took the witness stand to tell of a conversation between himself and his son-in-law after he had pushed his way into the first floor bedroom where his daughter lay dying, a bullet wound just below her heart. He was the first witness called. He testified that La Roux told him Soles had not shot her. Lynch said La Roux made this statement in the bedroom shortly after she was shot.

FALTERS ON STAND

The elderly Lynch was slow, hesitant and, once or twice, so uncertain of his answers that Prosecutor Haggerty withdrew the questions.

Rose Hardy leaned forward to hear Lynch's feeble voice as he told that he went to live with the Soles in December, 1931—after a lifetime in the McKeesport mills.

He couldn't remember how long had elapsed between that trip and the trip Soles and his wife took soon after to Atlantic City.

Haggerty asked:

"When did they return from Atlantic City?"

Lynch replied:

"The seventeenth day of June."

Q.—How did they return—what kind of a conveyance?

A.—They drove back.

Q.—Were you home the night they returned?" (This was the night before LaRoux was shot).

A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Who else was there?

A.—The maid, Ivy Johnson.

HAD AN ENGAGEMENT

Q.—How long did the defendant stay at home that night?

A.—Not very long. He said he had an engagement.

Q.—And you saw him next?

A.—On Sunday afternoon.

Q.—Was there a bedroom on the first floor?

A.—Yes It was occupied mostly by Mr. and Mrs. Soles.

Q.—And your bedroom?

A.—On the second floor.

Q.—Now where were you all at supper that night?

A.—Mr. and Mrs. Soles and I had supper together.

Q.—Did the maid go home this Sunday evening?

A.—Yes, rather early.

Q.—What time did Soles leave the house this Sunday evening?

A.—Rather early.

Q.—Were you and LaRoux up?

A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Did Mr. Soles say anything when he left?

A.—Not to me.

LAROUX WAS 'CHEERFUL'

Q.—What was your daughter doing?

A.—My daughter and I spent the evening together.

Q.—What were her spirits?

A.—She seemed to be very cheerful—reading and talking.

Q.—What were her spirits in Florida?

A.—Very good.

Q.—What time did you go to bed?

A.—Eleven o'clock, because I remember distinctly taking my watch out and saying, 'LaRoux, it's 11 o'clock and I feel tired. I think I'll go to bed." She said she felt a little tired and that she was going to bed and she did.

Q.—Did you go to sleep?

A.—As a rule I have something to read. I laid down and read for a while and finally put the light out and went to sleep.

Q.—Did you hear anything during your sleep?

AWAKENED BY NOISE

A.—Yes. I was awakened by a noise. I listened a while.

Q.—What did this noise sound like?

Q.—What wakened you the second time?

A.—Mr. Soles was calling, "Mr. Lynch," and then again, "Mr. Lynch." I went to the head of the stairway and saw him standing there below and he said, "LaRoux shot herself." I went down and near the doorway to the bedroom he caught me by the wrists. I tore away and went into the bedroom and saw my daughter lying on the bed. I turned around to him and said, "You did this."

Q.—What did he say?

A.—Nothing.

Q.—How was he dressed?

A.—Pajamas.

Q.—And you were . . .?

A.—I had pajamas.

Q.—What was the position LaRoux was in?

LYING ON BED

A.—She was on her back on the bed.

Q.—How was she dressed?

A.—She had a little slip—sort of down under like.

Q.—She had stockings on?

A.—She had slippers or shoes on.

Q.—Stockings?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Was there a light in the bedroom?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you notice where the bullet was?

A.—I was too busy to look for the bullet—and shocked.

Q.—Was LaRoux conscious?

A.—Yes, sir.

'CURSED SOLES'

Q.—What was said about a doctor?

A.—After I cursed Soles and told him he did it LaRoux said, 'Bob didn't do it.' He didn't make any effort to get a doctor. So I ran down to Dr. Jordan's and told him something terrible had happened.

Q.—Did the defendant say anything when he saw your daughter on the bed?

A.—No—nothing.

Q.—And what did you do?

A.—First I went to the telephone and asked the operator for Dr. Jordan's number. She said, 'Number, please, get the number.' I tried to get her to get the number but she was too slow, so I ran down.

Q.—Where was Soles during all this?

A.—In the bedroom.

Q.—Did he say anything?

A.—No.

Q.—When you came back to the bedroom was the door open or closed?

A.—The door was open.

Q.—When Dr. Jordan came, what did he do?

A.—He examined the patient and I believe he called Dr. Hiesy.

Q.—Did you see anything of a revolver in the bedroom?

PICKS NOTE FROM FLOOR

Q.—Did you see Dr. Jordan pick up anything from the bedroom floor?

A.—Yes, a note.

Q.—When was this?

A.—After the doctors had examined the patient.

Q.—Where were they when you saw the note?

A.—I didn't see it in the bedroom at all. I heard them say it was a note, but I didn't see it until I went to the hospital.

Q.—Where you present when a shell was found?

A.—I didn't see them pick it up.

Q.—Did you see the empty shell?

A.—If I did, it was at a distance.

Attorney Eaton entered an objection

Another question revealed that Soles was present at the time.

Q.—Were you in the room at the time?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Was the defendant there also?

A.—Yes, I heard the defendant say he had found a shell at the foot of the bed.

'NOT SO GOOD'

Q.—Did you ever look for a gun?

A.—No, but I saw the doctors looking for one. They looked all around on the floor.

Q.—Was a gun found?

A.—No.

Q.—What was the conduct of the defendant towards his wife?

A.—It was not so good.

Q.—Did you ever hear them discuss getting a divorce?

A.—No, I never heard them discuss it.

At this point Prosecutor Haggerty turned the witness over to the defense for cross examination.

Attorney O. K. Eaton, counsel for Soles, took the witness for cross-examination. Noting particularly the slow, hesitant manner in which Lynch answered questions, he inquired into his health and his ability to stand the strain of a cross-examination. He asked:

HEALTH ALL RIGHT

"Mr. Lynch, is your health poor?

A.—I think my health is pretty good, now.

Q.—Are you sure it won't bother you for me to ask you questions?

A.—No, I don't think so.

Q.—All right, then, I just wanted to make sure. After you went to Florida, just before Christmas, 1932, do you know whether or not your daughter's husband drove her down to Washington and then put her on a train for Florida?

A.—I think that's the way she came down.

Q.—Then she stayed with you until April, 1933.

A.—Yes.

Q.—Did she stay with you all the time? Did you see her all the time was down there with you?

A.—Practically all of the time.

HOUSE TORN UP

Q.—And when you started back, did she come back with you in an automobile driven by somebody else and didn't that person drive all the way out to Louisville, Ind.

A.—Yes, that's so.

Q.—Well, then didn't you and your daughter start back home and stop at Zanesville, O., overnight?

A.—Yes, we drove back together. We made the trip in two days.

Q.—Well, when you got back to your hame, in what condition was it in? What was going on?

A.—The defendant had it all torn up.

Q.—Wasn't he having it done over—fixing it up for your daughter?

A.—Yes, that's what he was doing.

On cross-examination Eaton brought out through Lynch that Soles had offered to take LaRoux to Europe shortly before she was shot. But Lynch added:

"She told me she was afraid to go to Europe."

Eaton then persisted in trying to bring out the "something unusual" which had happened in the Soles home in late April of last year. And Lynch agreed to this much:

Lynch and his daughter were in one room of the Soles home one night. Soles was in his bedroom. Mrs. Soles had received an important letter. Soles went into the other room, found his wife lying on the floor, picked her up and took her to another room.

Eaton asked:

"You have said in effect that the conduct of Soles in relation to his wife was not what it should have been—improper, not good. In what respect?

DISPLEASED WITH MEALS

Lynch replied:

"His general attitude. So far as I know as a rule, he was in bed most of the day and went out the latter part of the night (correct). He was called to his meals and nothing suited him; he shoved it back."

Eaton asked whether Soles wasn't at this time drinking more than he should have been.

Lynch replied that some might have thought so, other wouldn't.

Lynch then said that he was "very careful" not to interfere when either Soles or his daughter came to him with critism of one another.

LETTER STRESSED

Eaton persisted in referring to the letter whose contents were not immediately revealed—a letter which upset the Soles household. And finally he drew from the reluctant witness an admission that "for a very short period" this unusual condition was due to the letter.

Eaton asked:

"Were the contents of the letters discussed by you and Mr. and Mrs. Soles?"

Lynch replied:

"N."

Lynch added that he had never learned the entire contents of the letter.

In his opening argument Haggerty referred to Miss Hardy, not by name, but as a "girl friend" of Soles. This is the story of the murder told by Haggerty to the jury:

"Mrs. Soles had been in Florida and came home in May. Then they (Mr. and Mrs. Soles) went to Atlantic City for about six weeks. They came back on a Saturday evening, June 17.

"The next day was Sunday, and Mrs. Soles was full of life and spirit. That night Soles said he was going out.

"Mr. Lynch went to be about 11 o'clock and at that time his daughter was reading a magazine and full of fun.

"Mr. Lynch was aroused early in the morning by the defendant. At the foot of the stairs Soles said:

" 'LaRoux shot herself.'

"At the door of the bedroom the defendant grabbed Mr. Lynch with both fists and tried to stop him.

"We intend to show that LaRoux Soles was shot between the hours of 1 and 3 o'clock in the morning. The bullet took an upward course of three-eights of an inch just below the heart.

1 O'CLOCK IN THE MORNING

"We intend to show that the defendant came home about 1 o'clock in the morning from a girl friend. The wife said something about being out late.

"We intend to show that the defendant went to a chifferobe, took a pistol and shot her. Then he went to the bathroom for about 25 minutes. Then he got his wife in bed, propped her up with a phone book on her knees and had her write the suicide note. Then he called his father-in-law, Mr. Lynch."

MISS HARDY IN COURT

Miss Hardy slipped quietly into the courtroom in company with County Detective James O'Brien shortly after Haggerty had begun his opening address.

Attractively attired in black felt hat, black seal skin coat, black silk crepe dress with white collar, she presented a demurely stunning appearance. She was present when Haggerty made his indirect reference to her.

One of Prosecutor Haggerty's most important witnesses, Lynch, will be subject to a stiff cross-examination from O. K. Eaton and W. H. Coleman, counsel for the ex-Army captain. It was Lynch who, even after a Coroner's jury had agreed his daughter was a suicide, persisted in the investigation until Soles was arrested.

NURSES TO BE CALLED

Physicians and perhaps nurses from the McKeesport Hospital also will be called to the stand to tell of conversations between the dying LaRoux and her husband during the 40 hours she lived after being shot. She has been quoted as crying out frequently and voluntarily that she had shot herself, that "Bob didn't do it."

After five hours of examination a jury of six women and six men finally was chosen yesterday just before adjournment. Prosecutor Haggerty spent an uncomfortable hour agreeing on the last four, eventually using up 10 of his 20 peremptory challenges. So two of the last three jurors are from McKeesport—Soles' home town—and the third is from nearby Duquesne.

Approximately 60 were examined before 12 acceptable jurors were found. Many of them were excused after explaining that they had "conscientious scruples" against capital punishment.

Case Halted 2 Hours Due to Release Of Juror

MOTHER OF FIVE IN VOTE TRIAL

Mrs. Mary Burns, mother of five children, was one of five officers of the election board of the Seventh District, Fifteenth Ward, to face a jury on ballot fraud charges in Federal Court day. She was an inspector of the board.

Other defendants are Clement Wessell, judge; John W. Stanton, inspector; Martin L. McTighe and Mark Stanton, clerks. They are accused of conspiracy in the general election of November, 1932, which resulted in the contested election of Congressman M. J. Muldowney over Mrs. Anne E. Felix in the Thirty-second Congressional District.

Assistant United States Attorney James I. Marsh in his opening address told the jury the government would show many more straight Democratic ballots were cast than were counted and that many ballots bore "phantom" markings.

This is the eighth ballot fraud trial. So far 27 persons have been convicted and eight acquitted.

BRIDE, 17, TAKES POISON

A 17-year-old bride of two months swallowed poison in her home in an attempt to end her life, early today, according to a police report.

She is Mrs. Rita Anderson, of 424 Orchard street, Knoxville. At the South Side Hospital, where she was taken by her young husband, she was reported to be recovering. Police placed a disorderly conduct charge against her.

The cause of her action was not definitely learned, although police reported they had been told she was despondent.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Feb. 13.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Papers say, "What would Lincoln do today?"

Well, in the first place he wouldn't chop any wood, he would trade his ax in on a Ford. Being a Republican, he would vote the Democratic ticket. Being in sympathy for the under dog, he would be classed as a radical progressive. Having a sense of humor, he would be called eccentric.

Will Rogers

And it was Alice's birthday, too. Alice Longworth has for the last 30 years, and I hope 30 more, had a reserved seat at the biggest show on earth.

Yours, WILL.

P. S.—In this airplane mess, I don't own one cent of stock, I don't own one cent of stock in anything. (I have some lots in Beverly Hills I would like to talk to you about.) I love to fly, I pay my way and do it. Now there must have been some monkey business higher up, or Mr. Roosevelt wouldn't do what he has. And I would like to sit on the jury, and help convict 'em, for they have brought injury to a great industry.

NEW COLD WAVE DUE TONIGHT

Another Hudson Bay cold wave was sweeping down on this district today with a low mark of between 5 and 10 degrees above zero predicted for tonight.

The mercury fell to 18 at 8 a. m. today, the lowest in 24 hours and showed no signs of climbing during the day.

Prince, Descendant Of Grant, Wife Part

BOSTON, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—The Princess Michael Cantacuzene, whose husband is a great-grandson of President Grant, announced today that she and the prince had "separated forever."

The prince, a graduate of Harvard, is in the real estate business in Chicago. He and Miss Clarissa Curtis were married in 1921.

WITNESSES CROWDING INTO THE SOLES TRIAL COURTROOM FOR THE SESSION TODAY

DEMOCRATS ASK UTILITY METER TAX DELAY

The Democratic city committee at an open meeting in North Side Carnegie Music Hall, voted to ask the four Democratic Councilmen to delay the passage of Councilman John J. Kane's proposed utility meter tax over Mayor McNair's veto. More than 300 of the public attended.

After both sides of the much-discussed tax had been debated a vote was taken, and the count was 20 for the Mayor and four against him.

MAYOR LEADS ATTACK

The Mayor himself led the attack on the proposed tax, and he was supported by Chief Assessor P. R. Williams and Assessor William B. Foster. Councilman Kane wasn't present to defend his measure. Neither were the other Democratic Councilmen.

Mrs. E. A. Schroeder, the Democratic chairman of the six districts of Beechview, who has appeared at cabinet meetings to ask patronage for the Democrats, championed the bill. After discussing the meter tax she added that "Republican police were still handing out justice instead of Democratic police, and that she looked upon Councilman William A. Magee as a Democrat."

McNair charged the tax would be paid by the people, and of a recent statement by a councilman that the Mayor and City Solicitor should see that it wasn't paid by the people, the Mayor said:

"You might as well depend upon the Mayor to see that water doesn't run up hill. The tax will make Pittsburgh the laughing stock of the country."

ADVOCATES LAND TAX

He advocated taxing utility land.

Only slight applause followed the Mayor's explanation of his reasons for vetoing the measure, but the din was great when Foster, speaking against the tax, declared:

"You don't go shooting lions with a bean-shooter, and that's what they're doing with this crazy, foolish ordinance."

The statement brought boos from Kane's contingent. When it had quieted Foster declared Council could pass a resolution opening the whole utility question before the Public Service Commission. It should have been done the first day the councilmen took office, he said.

The Mayor's principal opponent in the committee vote was Ward Chairman William Driscoll, of the Nineteenth Ward. City Chairman John J. Murray presided.

SEEK TO CHANGE RELIEF LAWS

Plans for a one-day conference in Pittsburgh to discuss changing state social legislation were to be made today by Mayor William N. McNair, Frank Bane, director of the American Public Welfare Association; Paul Betters, an official of the association, and Southard Hay, welfare director.

It is proposed that the conference be held March 3. In a letter to Hay, Bane writes that the association is asking a few public officials from several states to attend the conference. Harry L. Hopkins, Federal Emergency Relief Administrator, will attend, according to Bane. Frank Persons, director of the United States Employment Service, will be invited.

Special attention is to be given to poor relief legislation and laws, Hay said today.

HENRY BALLOT BOX CUSTODIAN

President Judge Ambrose B. Reid has appointed John M. Henry custodian of all ballot boxes in Allegheny County, to succeed Maj. W. T. Rees, resigned.

On behalf of the other jurists, Judge Reid also announced appointment of Lee C. Beatty as a member of the Allegheny County Law Library Committee to succeed the late Thomas M. Brown.

The court also named William T. Eckert as a member of the board of managers of the Gumbert School for Girls to succeed Judge Gustav L. Schramm, who resigned when he was elected to the Juvenile Court bench.

Insane Man Cleared In Double Slaying

ERIE, Pa., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—The grand jury has cleared Thomas E. Smith, of Knox, Pa., of blame in the slaying of Johanna and Albert Biegert in their Girard farm house last August.

Smith, who recently was found insane and sentenced to the Fairview Hospital for the Criminal Insane, had been accused of beating the aged couple to death.

McNair, Cabinet Split Over $2 Tax on Meters

Some Doubt Levy Could Be Placed On Individuals

Mayor McNair's interpretation of the meter tax ordinance, which he says would put a $2 tax on citizens who own water meters, has not been accepted by a number of his cabinet members.

The Mayor seems much less sure of himself than he was a week ago, when he denounced the $2 a year meter tax on public utilities proposed by Democratic Councilman John J. Kane, and passed by Council.

In a meeting yesterday he put the wording of the ordinance up to the cabinet. The Mayor contended that the wording of the ordinance should be slightly changed to protect individual meter owners.

The Mayor said he cannot send the ordinance back to Council to make the change. They must withdraw it, he stated.

Public Works Director Leslie M. Johnston suggested that the Mayor could veto the ordinance and say it was done because of the wording. The Mayor replied:

"Yes, I could veto it, but—"

He did not finish the sentence.

Assistant City Solicitor Austin L. Staley and City Treasurer James P. Kirk disagreed with the Mayor's interpretation. As to taxing individuals instead of utilities, Director Johnston said:

"I am not a lawyer, Mr. Mayor, but I don't think you could possibly put that interpretation on it."

The Mayor then discussed the possibility of annexations to the city. He said:

"I think a good many of these boroughs stay out of the city because they cannot keep their volunteer fire departments."

He suggested some sort of modified system in which annexed portions would look after their own fire protection.

The Mayor also revealed that he is collecting figures on delinquent tax bills on properties along Fifth avenue from Grant street to Soho. He suggested widening of the street and charging off the delinquent taxes against the purchase prices of the necessary property.

Real estate interests should be brought in to discuss the improvement at the next public cabinet meeting a week from Monday, he said.

Veteran Steel Man Dies at 75 in Butler

BUTLER, Pa., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Nevin McConnell, 75, who retired as general manager of the Forge Steel Wheel Company 15 years ago after a long career in the steel business, died yesterday. He will be buried tomorrow.

McConnell was born in Ireland and got into the steel industry in Scotland, coming to the United States in 1886 for the Carnegie Steel Company.

PARMELEE BUYS 5 LIGHT CABS

Plans to purchase five light taxicabs for test operations here were announced today by the Parmelee System, operating Yellow and Green cabs.

In a letter to City Council, Paul L. Houston, president, said details of operating costs will be kept and the results reported to Council. City Council had asked whether the Parmelee System could reduce rates here.

The Zone Cab Corporation of Cleveland, seeking a certificate to operate here, proposes to offer a rate of 15 cents for each one-third mile, equipped with cars lighter than the Parmelee cabs. The Public Service Commission will hold a hearing on the application here tomorrow.

Union taxi drivers indorsed the policies of the Zone Cab Corporation at a closed meeting last night. J. C. Newman, business agent of the firm, praised its treatment of employes.

GARBAGE FIRM SUES COUNTY

The Spiniello Construction Company, Inc., low bidders for the North Side 1934 garbage and rubbish disposal contract, obtained a writ from Judge Ambrose B. Ried in Common Pleas Court today forcing the County Commissioners to show cause why they should not issue a license to the company for the disposal of garbage and rubbish.

The Commissioners' refusal to authorize issuance of the license is illegal, unjust and discriminatory, it is pointed out in the plaintiff's petition. The Commissioners must file their answer within 10 days.

The possible issuance of a license to the Spiniello firm has resulted in several protests from residents of Penn and Collier townships, where the reduction plants which the firm plans to use are located.

The residents claim that the North Side garbage contract would place too great a load on the plants, causing odors and smoke. Several hearings have been held before the Commissioners recently.

Pigeon Bone, Lodged In Throat, Kills Man

YORK, Pa., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—A pigeon bone, which lodged in his throat a week ago, is blamed for the death of Samuel Emenheiser, 25, of Red Lion.

MAYOR ASSAILS ZONING RULES AS 'BALONEY'

The Mayor stalked into the Board of Adjustment meeting today, criticized its members for not encouraging building and stalked out again after labeling Supreme Court decisions upholding the zoning laws as:

"A bunch of baloney."

It all happened because Miss Margaret Trimble, of 35 Semicir sctreet, has been promised a new car by her father, Thomas J. Trimble, if she can get a permit for a garage.

Miss Trimble was refused a permit last week, because she proposes to build the garage only 17 feet back from the street line, while the law requires 60 feet.

MAYOR STORMS

Mayor McNair stormed at the Zoning Board:

"Forget the law.

"What we want to do is to encourage new building. Instead of that, you're doing everything to hinder it. Give this girl the benefit, let her build the garage as she sees fit.

"If the ordinance should be changed, I'll change it right now."

But, interposed A. G. Holmes, chairman of the board:

"It's against the law. We can't do it. We must go by the law."

'FORGET THE LAW'

Said the Mayor:

"Forget the law. Use common sense. Give the benefit of the doubt to people who want to build now.

"I'll take care of the courts.

"We've got a lot of city attorneys and they want to earn their money. Your attitude is that you don't want anybody to build."

Chairman Holmes insisted:

"Oh, but the law."

And thereupon the Mayor threw up his hands and left.

Miss Trimble explained that she had never met the Mayor before going to seek his aid.

The board then went into a huddle and decided to defer action until they confer with Mr. Trimble at 10 a. m. Saturday at his convenience.

McNair Is Granted County Room For Cabinet

Mayor McNair today has permission to use county property for meetings of the city's cabinet.

When the door of the Bar Association's auditorium on the top of the City-County Building was found locked yesterday, the Mayor sought Ray Sprigle, county director of property and supplies, and asked use of the room on alternate Mondays at 3 p. m.

Sprigle granted the request.

CANDIDATE FOR BONUS BONDS

Full payment of the federal soldiers' bonus by a bond issue and limitation of net profits by employers and corporations are urged by Walter Lincoln Bouve, Jr., candidate for the Republican congressional nomination in the Thirty-third district.

Announcing his campaign platform, Bouve said he also favors:

Restriction of inheritances to any single heir, a penalty on banks keeping more than a safe margin of funds locked up, a federal audit of corporations or any business firm any time during the year, and cancellation of all interest on war debts to the United States with payment of the principal in installments corresponding to the present interest payments.

MACKEY BACKS PINCHOT

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Former Mayor Harry A. Mackey, urging support of the senatorial candidacy of Gov. Pinchot—who has not yet announced he will run—yesterday told Republicans to "Beat the Democrats to the punch by supporting President Roosevelt as Republicans."

In a statement in which he declared he believed Pinchot would make a stronger candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator than the incumbent, David A. Reed, Mackey said the party's best chance at the polls this year would result from supporting the state's Chief Executive.

Referring to the platform adopted by the Democratic State Committee on Saturday, Mackey described Pinchot as the "original author" of the social welfare policies expressed in it.

State Drys to Have Slate for Primaries

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—The Rev. G. D. Harger, chairman of the State Prohibition Committee, announced yesterday that the Prohibition party in Pennsylvania is drawing up a slate of candidates for the primary election.

He told the Methodist Episcopal Preachers' meeting of Philadelphia that the drys could poll half a million votes if they would unite on a straight Prohibition ticket.

G. O. P. to Celebrate 78th Anniversary

The seventy-eighth birthday of the Republican Party which was organized in old Lafayette Hall, on the present site of the Columbia bank building, Fourth avenue and Wood street, will be observed February 23 under auspices of the Women's Republican Club of Western Pennsylvania.

State and county leaders of the party will participate, and the initial issue of "Republica," a quarterly publication edited by the Women's Republican Club will be distributed

M'NAIR LETTER PERMITS DANCE

Mayor McNair apparently intends to stick to his theses that dance permits aren't necessary.

At least the Thirteenth Ward Voters' League held a dance last night under his sanction at Homewood Gardens, 525 Homewood avenue. The Mayor said:

"Well, it's a holiday."

In a letter addressed to Police Supt. Ben Marshall he wrote:

"If it can be arranged with all parties concerned to let this dance go through this evening, it will be all right with the undersigned."

The Mayor said he had previously issued a general order that churches, fraternal organizations, legions and other reputable societies might hold dances without the $1 fee required by state law. The Mayor interprets the law as giving him discretion.

15TH WARD VOTE TRIAL OPENS

When Federal Court convened today more than 100 residents of the Seventh District, Fifteenth Ward, called as government witnesses, were waiting to testify in the trial of five officials of the election board of that district, charged with conspiring to falsify ballots cast at the general election in November, 1932.

One of the defendants is Mrs. Mary Burns, mother of five children, inspector of the board. The others are Clement Wessell, judge; John W. Stanton, inspector, and Martin L. McTighe and Mark Stanton, clerks.

It will be the eighth trial growing out of indictments returned by the grand jury that conducted a probe of alleged vote cheating involving selection of candidates for federal offices.

The 10 convicted in two trials last week brought the total number of convictions to 27. Eight have been acquitted.

MAIDENS 'GET' SWAINS WITH VALENTINES

In days of old, when the fair sex wasn't bold, Valentines were lacy, dainty messages of hinted love, restrained in their phrasing, most tender in thought, but the Valentines being dropped into Uncle Sam's mail boxes today for delivery on the morrow are considerably speeded up in sentiment.

No longer is the young man alone the wooing sender, for side by side with his fond epistle is the flip message of a modern maid pursuing her man:

"Once our grandmas were coquettes,
Modest as the violets,
Now the fashion's to pursue,
I'm the one that's after you."

Most popular of all as a man baiter is slinky Mae West adorned in a flaming orange boa and ruffled gown of the naughty nineties. She needs no meditation, nor employs any hesitation, in announcing:

"Hello, good-lookin'. Wontcha come up and see me sometimes?"

Newspapers as well as the movies have had their influence on 1934's expressions of love, for in the form of a classified add, Uncle Sam's carrier bears the very frank advertisment:

NOTICE—FOR RENT
One great, big roomy heart,
Well furnished with affection.
If interested call, don't write.
It's open for inspection.
APPLY FEB. 14

Although the funny Valentines, ridiculing everyone from teacher to the cop on the beat, are selling the best, there are still a few sentimental folk in the world who go in for romantic lyrics. For the mere price of $2 you can send your best-beloved a masterpiece of decoration that opens into a lovely fan edged in an inch of fairy-fine lace and bearing a big pink bow which tells of true love.

Some of the young gallants are choosing candy and flowers to take the place of words. Candy hearts, ranging from tiny cardboard boxes to huge affairs of red and pink satin topped with bows and sprays of flowers will carry the unspoken, yet very much understood sentiments to the miss who likes, nay, even demands, her sweets in edible form.

And one Pittsburgh Romeo, bound to win, is sending with his dainty Valentine a box of sweetheart chocolates encased in satin and an immense red heart pierced with a dozen fine lace hankies to overwhelm his lady-love.

Government to Fight Appeal of McClure

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 13.—(INS.)—The appeal of State Senator John J. McClure of Delaware county and 54 co-defendants, convicted of participating in a huge liquor conspiracy, will be resisted by the government to the last.

This was ascertained today following the return of Chet A. Keyes, special assistant United States attorney General. Keyes had been in Washington, conferring with attorney General Homer S. Cummings.

It was said the federal government takes the view that the Supreme Court decision voiding liquor law cases and appeals does not apply to the McClure case.

FREEMAN GETS 'TVA' POST

P. J. Freeman, Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory consulting engineer, has accepted a call to head a department of specifications and tests for the Tennessee Valley Authority at Knoxville, Tenn., according to announcement today.

Freeman organized a similar department for the Pittsburgh Department of Public Works several years ago. In Tennessee, he will organize the same kind of a department, covering the writing of specifications for equipment, materials of construction and the testing of materials used in all the projects.

The Tennessee Valley Authority has $50,000,000 to spend in a great social "experiment" sponsored by President Roosevelt. The work includes flood control, dam construction, land reclamation and vast power development.

MRS. COCHRANE CITES INCOME TAX FAILURE

The federal income tax as now administered is makeshift, un-American, burdensome, unjust and discriminatory, insufficient and unreliable, according to Mrs. Robert K. Cochrane, president of the Allegheny County Federation of Women's Clubs, consisting of 90 clubs in Allegheny County with a total membership of 10,000 women.

In a scathing denunciation of the fallacies of the federal income tax as now administered, Mrs. Cochrane, over WCAE, said last night:

"The income tax, enacted with the Sixteenth Amendment, never was intended to be the major basis of taxation in America. Originally it was intended to supplement other sources of revenue. Unfortunately it has become the dominant revenue producer in the national tax structure."

The income tax has failed because it is unsound in principle and weak during periods of depression, Mrs. Cochrane said. She continued:

"Because of lowered incomes during such periods, revenues are smaller at times when greater national revenues are required to meet emergency federal expenditures."

EMPLOYMENT HANDICAP

The income tax interferes with re-employment, prevents investment in enterprises which would employ men and women, Mrs. Cochrane continued. She said:

"Permanent recovery depends upon private initiative. Unless burdensome taxation is removed, recovery cannot be permanent. Business should not forced to pay tribute for the privilege of doing business. Persons, rather than business, are benefited through taxation."

Burdensome taxation has destroyed governments and bred revolution, armed, economic and social, Mrs. Cochrane declared. The income tax system creates class distinction and encourages evasion, both legal and criminal, and penalizes the honest citizen for his tax honesty, she said.

SALES LEVY SUPERIOR

On the other hand, the proposed manufacturers' sales tax is equitable and collectible, provides ample revenue, is a scientific tax structure, improves national credit and is a tested plan and an aid to recovery, Mrs. Cochrane continued. She said:

"Instead of a haphazard, inadequate and unsound tax system as provided by the income levy and its satellites, a national manufacturers' sales tax will give the federal government a sound and scientific revenue-producing structure which will be workable, fair and non-confiscatory.

"There could be no discrimination against any individual or institution. It is planned to exempt from taxation food, clothing and medicines. There can be no evasion. The sales tax will aid in financing President Roosevelt's new deal."

'Painless' Tax on Sales Source of 20 Per Cent Of Canada's Revenue

(This is the second of a series of three brief and informative articles on the advantages Canada has experienced since incorporating the sales tax into its fiscal policy.)

By M. GRATTAN O'LEARY,
Canadian Writer of Economics

OTTAWA, Feb. 13.—The existing Canadian sales tax consists of a 6 per cent tax on sales by manufacturers and producers and also on importations, with a 2 per cent tax on a restricted list. This restricted list comprises goods chiefly used by charitable institutions.

The tax was raised from 4 to 6 per cent in 1932 when the government found other sources of taxation diminishing in returns, and did not consider it economically wise to increase the tax on incomes.

At the present time the sales tax is producing in excess of 60 million dollars annually, which is practically 20 per cent of the Dominion government's revenue from all taxation sources.

PUBLIC UNAWARE OF TAX

This year, indeed, it will produce only slightly less than income taxation. Because of this no further increase in income tax are contemplated this year.

The present Canadian manufacturers sales tax was perfected after a process of trial and error and is the result of years of experience.

The original tax was in reality a turnover tax, touching the sales of manufacturers, producers, wholesalers, retailers and importers. There were in consequence duplication and pyramiding, with a noticeable increase in costs to consumers.

The tax that exists today is collected only from the manufacturer, producer and importer. The public is scarcely aware that the tax is in force.

When a Canadian makes a purchase from a retailer he is not told about a sales tax. He pays for what he purchases just as he paid for it before the sales tax was in operation. He is not made to feel he is contributing to the state.

NO PROTESTS HEARD

As a matter of fact, the sales tax has made no noticeable differences in prices charged consumers in Canada. The cost of living today is lower that it has been within the past 20 years. As a consequence neither the Governor nor the Department of National Revenue has received a protest against the sales tax from any quarter during the past two years.

When the tax was first inaugurated there were protests against it from labor. This was met and completely overcome by the safeguard of reasonable exemptions from the tax.

The existing tax is by no means a tax on luxuries only. Yet while it is broad-based—it is in this respect that it is superior to the income tax—it is not a tax on the masses nor a tax on labor.

'DINNER PAIL' EXEMPTED

The workingman's dinner pail is extempted together with the breakfast table of his family—his food and fuel and shelter. As a consequence Canadian labor, although opposed to a turnover tax, is not now in opposition to the sales tax. It accepts it as a matter of course.

And so with the farmer. From the outset the government in imposing the tax sought to exempt as far as possible the products of farms and mines, and also a reasonable range of the instruments of production.

As a consequence the agrarian parties in the House of Commons have not and never have been in opposition to the sales tax. They prefer it to customs tax.

CANDIDATE FOR TAXATION CUT

On a platform of social legislation and a constitutional convention looking to consolidation of governmental units for sake of economy, Attorney R. O. P. Silverman of 1601 Beechwood boulevard, has announced his candidacy for the Legislature from the Fifth Legislative District. This comprises the Twelfth, Thirteenth and Fourteenth wards.

He declares that duplication in school, city and county governmental agencies costs Pittsburgh taxpayers thousands of dollars. He urges a "reasonable income tax" to replace real estate tax for school purposes.

CONGRESS OF CLUBS JOINS SALES TAX MOVE

administer and more equitable in its incidence."

More than 800 women are members of the Congress of Clubs. In addition more than 150 clubs situated in various parts of Western Pennsylvania having a membership of between 15,000 and 20,000 women are affiliated with the Congress of Clubs.

LUMBER MEN CONCUR

Concurring in this same belief was the Retail Lumber Dealers' Association of Western Pennsylvania. This organization, which has a membership of 550 men prominent in various sections of Western Pennsylvania, urged Congressional enactment of a manufacturers' sales tax during the twenty-seventh annual convention last week in Webster Hall. G. N. Glass, of Pittsburgh, is president.

R. F. McCrea, of Pittsburgh, secretary of the association, announcing the action of the organization, said:

"We feel that a federal sales tax is an equitable revenue producer, broadens the base and provides a fair distribution of taxation. The fact that it is capable of producing a large amount of revenue and its yield is comparatively stable is universally recognized."

Previously the Pennsylvania State Board of Township Commissioners took similar action. The organization is composed of the appointed and elected officials of 62 first-class townships in Pennsylvania.

Its total membership is 1,500. Of the 62 first-class townships in the state 24 are in Allegheny County.

W. E. Armstrong, of Baldwin Township, was the first president of the state body. He was elected to succeed himself, an honor accorded to no other man. Mr. Armstrong, an executive committee member of the state group, is president of the Allegheny County Board of Township Commissioners.

Individual indorsement of the sales tax law for which the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and other Hearst newspapers in the United States are conducting an energetic campaign came today from the Rev. Dr. John Ray Ewers, pastor of the East End Christian Church. Dr. Ewers said:

"I have favored the sales tax from the beginning. It is so evenly and so slowly distributed that no one would notice much difference. If it be objected that the burden falls upon those least able to pay, we may reply that such people pay no income at all.

"Income taxes should be imposed upon the lower ranges as well as greatly increased in the very high ranges. People who consume the goods would naturally be expected to pay the tax and that is fair enough.

"A very good example of the workings of the sales tax is found in theater tickets. If one wishes to attend a show, one does not talk nor think of the few pennies government tax imposed.

"I am told that in Canada the sales tax has been working well for 13 years. Everybody knows that our government must greatly increase taxes in some fashion. The recent decision concerning the income tax seems to indicate that people in the lower salary classes will be spared somewhat, while taxes in the higher brackets are much increased.

"This would seem to leave the field justly open to the sales tax. A fair and moderate sales tax upon consumers' goods wouldd seem to be the best way to increase the government's income. I favor it."

TROOPS GUARD TRIO FROM MOB

HERNANDO, Miss., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Three Negroes who must die on the gallows for attacking a white girl are safe in cells today because of the uniforms of the Mississippi National Guard.

Threatening crowds surged about yesterday following the conviction of the Negroes, and fear was felt for their safety. To thwart the crowd, the Negroes were disguised as guardsmen. They donned the uniforms of the troops even to the steel helmets. Thus they marched to the train with the 152 guardsmen whose bristling bayonets afforded still further protection.

The Negroes were taken to jail at Jackson. They are to hang March 26.

All three, Johnny Jones, 23; Isaac Howard, 25, and Ernest McGhee, 23, have confessed that they had held up the automobile carrying a 17-year-old Holly Springs school girl and attacked her while an uncle and aunt were forced to stand by at the point of a pistol.

Oust School Heads For 'Selling Jobs'

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Feb. 13.—(INS.)—Four Pringle school directors who had been accused of selling teaching positions were ousted from office for violations of the school code by order of court enbanc, handed down by Judge W. S. McLean today. The court immediately filled three of the vacancies.

Those removed were Frank Handley, Alex Seleski, John Hogan and Michael Madar. Peter Berry, James Sutliffe and John McNey were named by the court to three of the directorships.

SCREEN COMIC ON HONEYMOON

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Away from financial troubles, which dogged him into bankruptcy, Harry Langdon, solemn-faced film funny man, was honeymooning in Arizona today with his third bride, Mabel Sheldon Langdon.

He found her, he said, "out behind one of those cacti," and married her yesterday.

Perhaps she is checking today to see whether he has overcome an old habit of pinning $1,000 bills beneath hotel chairs to keep them from being stolen. The comedian's second wife, Mrs. Helen Walton Langdon, told about it when they were divorced in 1932. She said he was funny that way, always watching dollars which came easy and went easier.

They went so quickly the comedian finally filed a petition in bankruptcy, listing assets of $700 and liabilities of $62,637, including $30,000 in income taxes.

LOAN AGENCIES TO MEET HERE

Problems confronting the state-licensed loan companies will be discussed at a regional meeting of the Pennsylvania Association of Personal Finance Companies tomorrow at the Hotel William Penn.

Mr. Watts

Three hundred members are expected to attend the all-day session that closes with a dinner. Judge Frank A. Piekarski will be the principal speaker and Charles H. Watts, president of the Beneficial Industrial Loan Corporation, toastmaster.

Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph, will be the luncheon speaker. Understanding the problems of 1934 will be the theme of afternoon speakers, including L. A. Rosenal, of McKeesport, and Edgar A. Beard, Pittsburgh.

Walter S. Herron, president, will preside. Meeting arrangements will be directed by C. W. Loupe, Elmer Haupt, Kenneth Prey, Charles Dornhoefer and A. L. MacCartney.

Millvale Man Held In Fatal Beating

Robert Russell, 40, of Millvale, today was held by the Coroner pending an inquest into the death of Kenneth England, 30, of 1916 Perrysville avenue, whose beaten body was found in a Millvale street last Saturday.

District Attorney Park turned Russell over to Coroner W. J. McGregor late yesterday on a manslaughter charge and released four others after questioning them.

Salduro Lake, near Salt Lake City, in Utah.

Sir Malcolm's record over a measured mile was made on the beach at Daytona, just back of John D. Rockefeller's Florida house. His new attempt needs a harder track with more room to start, and more to stop at the finish of the measured mile.

The American Automobile Association selects for him the Utah lake-bed, paved with hard, well-packed, natural mineral salts.

SUCH SPEEDS on highways are useless, but would be important applied to light units of railroad transportation, without grade crossings. Three hundred miles an hour would mean Atlantic to Pacific in ten hours.

Where Sir Malcolm will race, in ancient times lay a great inland sea, as big, probably, as the Mediterranean. Now it has dwindled down to the Great Salt Lake, which, taking in water, sending none out, grows saltier year by year.

THE STEEL industry has reached a "new peak" in production. Steel mills are producing thirty-nine per cent of the full amount that they might produce, the best they have done for a long time.

This makes you realize that we have had a real depression. The improvement is partly due to the fact that makers of automobiles have unfilled orders that they will hardly be able to fill in the first half of this year.

That news of automobile prosperity is good news.

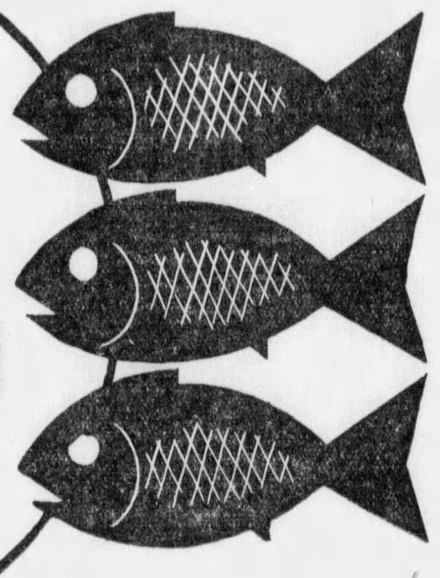
Special three days selling LENTEN FOODS



Meals need not become monotonous just because it's Lent. McCanns offers such a variety of foods acceptable for Lenten menus that six weeks will hardly be long enough to get acquainted with them. Nowhere else will you find such a variety of fish — fresh canned or prepared; 105 varieties of cheese; a fresh vegetable department that's a joy to the vegetarian; a grocery department that has eight kinds of dried beans, to say nothing of the macaroni, spaghetti, etc. And while we cannot offer variety in eggs, we can offer quality. McCanns eggs are something to talk about. Start now to do all your food buying at McCanns. It will pay you in variety—in quality—and in true economy.

For better bread and cakes and pies use—

Gold Medal Flour, 24½ lbs. $1.08

You'll be making lots of baked things during Lent—use Gold Medal Flour—the choice of experienced pastry makers. Two other sizes are available besides the one mentioned above: 5-pound sacks at 29 cents and 12¼-pound sacks at 59 cents.

• Instructions on how to participate in Gold Medal contest in each sack.

POLES PLEASED WITH HITLER TRUCE

tion to put this peace news in the headlines that normally belong to war, and to express it in terms of millions of lives saved.

But what has America to do with Danzig? How could American lives depend upon what happens in this ancient Hanseatic city that belonged to Germany, was taken from her, made into a free city under the League of Nations, and declared a port for Poland? What has Nazi Danzig's new-found peace with Poland to do with the United States?

EUROPE'S NIGHTMARE

Just this. There was one nightmare that troubled the sleep of European statesmen more than any other. They saw Hitler come to power in Germany. They saw his storm troops batter every Nazi enemy into submission. They knew that Danzig would go Nazi in the elections of May a year ago. They pictured storm troops battering Poles.

But just outside this city stand the regiments of Poland. Two hours is the maximum time the Poles would require to take the city. They take it. The storm troops, unequipped to meet a regular army, fight back and their brothers just across the line in German East Prussia, come to their rescue. The Poles invade East Prussia. Germany mobilizes, and its 2,500,000 storm troops, S. S., Brown Shirts and Black Steel Helmets and Reichswehr are called to arms. France leaps to the flag. The Belgians, the Czechs, Rumanians and Jugoslavians keep their treaties with the Tricolor and shoulder guns. The League secretariat wrings its hands.

The war is on. All Europe blazes. England watches. Could she keep neutral? The consensus of European opinion is "No." America watches. Could we keep neutral? The experience of the last war is all we have to guide us.

WELLS' WAR PICTURE

H. G. Wells in "The Shape of Things to Come," starts his "last war cyclone, 1940-1950" in Danzig. Here in the Danzig railroad station the great English seer finds an unfortunate Polish Jewish traveling man who, suffering from an orange seed in his false teeth, sticks his head out of the window, grimaces at a Danzig storm-tropper, and thereby starts a row that ends with European war, and the collapse of civilization.

That was quite possible a year ago.

It is inconceivable today.

What happened when the Nazis won 52 per cent in the city elections and swept into power in a tornado of Brown Shirts that drove fear through the hearts of every Pole and Jew in the city and made Europe hold its breath?

One Pole was beaten by errant storm troops. In Germany hundreds of Poles, mostly Jews, were beaten and none received so much as an apology. The Danzig Pole received the apologies of the Nazi authorities, and an indemnity.

What happened after the Nazis consolidated their power, threw their political opponents out of office, Nazified the police, and in general brought Danzig into that strict "conformity" which characterizes all Germany today and means 100 per cent utter obedience to Hitler? What happened when, in other words, Danzig became one of Hitler's provinces?

H. R. KNICKERBOCKER

FRIEND OF PEACE

Today Dr. Hermann Rauschning, president of the Danzig Senate and Hitler's envoy, told the story. Dr. Rauschning is a convincing friend of peace. He and his young assistant, Herr Georg Streiter, were credible advocates for Nazi pacificism, and if Hitler's real intentions in Europe as a whole could be judged by these two lieutenants, the outlook for peace would be hopeful indeed. In his quarters in the huge old government house, and again in the solid, dignified home of the president of the Senate, Dr. Rauschning outlined the story. It checked with Polish and neutral accounts.

These were the events that put a brand new face on Germany's eastern front:

The Nazis won the election of May 28, 1933. They took power June 20. Dr. Rauschning visited Warsaw July 4 and paid his respects to the Poles. This visit was a political sensation of the first order: A Hitler Nazi head of Danzig going to Warsaw, proffering his hand to the Poles!

In August Danzig signed agreements with Poland granting the Poles in Danzig virtually all the rights of Danzig citizens while Poland promised to give Danzig more trade and send 45 per cent of Polish exports and imports over Danzig. These agreements virtually wiped out the main points of Danzig-Polish differences.

The Poles were amazed, suspicious, but pleased. Dr. Rauschning proposed better social relations, and for the first time Poles began to meet Germans on a friendly basis. Dr. Rauschning dedicated a silver cup for football between Danzig and Warsaw. The incredible happened, and Poles met Danzig Germans on the playing field. Danzig won, but the Poles cheered. The Polish minister to Danzig, Casimir Papee, dedicated a cup for boxing contests, between Danzig and Warsaw. Warsaw won, but the Danzigers cheered.

RECORD IMPRESSIVE

Promises are cheap. But the Nazi record in Danzig is impressive. Since Danzig became a free city its quarrels with Poland have occupied the council of the League of Nations 259 times. When the Nazis took power there were 34 unsettled disputes between the city and Poland. The 10 most important of these quarrels have already been settled.

Out of power, electioneering, the Nazis proclaimed in fly leaves: "The Struggle to Return Danzig to the German Fatherland Is Near Its End. Victory Is In Our Hands." In power, running the city, the Nazi leader sped to Warsaw and promised the Poles that Danzig wanted above everything peace and permanently good relations with Poland. Dr. Rauschning declared:

"I consider agreement, and I mean final, permanent agreement, between Danzig and Poland absolutely possible. War is no longer inevitable, as it once seemed to be. We Nazis know that war is unprofitable."

"Yes, but that was known in 1914, too."

"True, but only a few persons knew it, and today everyone in a position of authority knows it. I can imagine that political and economical relations between Germany and Poland, between Danzig and Poland, could become so close, so friendly that the question of territory and of frontiers would no longer be interesting. I do not mean that we could renounce the Corridor or give up our hope of returning Danzig to the Reich, but I can readily imagine that if these questions were postponed and no longer discussed for a period of years, it would be very possible that at the end of that time they would no longer be questions for dispute."

"What period of years are you thinking of? Would you consider 10 years as a possible period for such a truce?"

TRUCE EFFECTIVE

"Yes, 10 years."

The Senate President's figure corresponds exactly with the term Hitler decided upon for his non-aggression pact with Poland. Everything in Hitler Danzig corresponds with Hitler Germany. In pre-Hitler days, if Bruening had made a non-aggression pact with Poland, Danzig would have cursed him as a traitor. Today Hitler has ordered a Danzig-Warsaw truce. The truce is effective. Its lesson for Europe is that Hitler can keep the peace if he wants to. Nobody believed he could control his storm troops in Danzig. But they obeyed him with such discipline that today neutral observers declare Danzig is one of the most orderly cities in the world.

The Danzig-Warsaw truce may be a truce of tactics; it may be only a truce for Hitler to gain time to rearm. But it means peace in this corner of the European cockpit at least for years to come.

At the first stop on the tour of Europe to answer the question "Will War Come?" the first answer is "No."

EDITOR'S NOTE—Tomorrow Mr. Knickerbocker will tell of the civil war raging in Austria. His article will include an interview with Chancellor Dollfuss.

JUNIOR PATROL

Sooner or later, the criminals who make money by holding people for ransom, will be stamped out in this country. The federal government is hard at work. The police in the states and towns are helping, too.

There is nothing about gangsters or criminals to admire, fellows. They aren't brave. They aren't smart, and they don't have a good time. All their lives they sneak around—scared, often hungry, no place to go or rest, paying to stay alive.

Now here's a letter from Ethel and Mildred Withers, of Seventh street, West Elizabeth, Pa. They write:

"I will be a member of your club because I help my mother and father. My mother said she could not do without me. I read the funny about you every day, but Sunday I do not. If you are in Sunday, will you please tell me?"

No, there is no Junior Patrol comic strip published in the paper on Sundays, girls. We are mighty happy to have you as new members.

Then, here is a note from John Doloughty, of 3903 May street, Pittsburgh. He and his two friends want new pins because they lost their first one. They send in new pledges for them. John wants to be a captain, too, but you have to be elected by 10 members to be a captain, John.

David Evans, of 1136 Fourth street, Monongahela, Pa., is another member who is the captain of a patrol. He says he has 13 members in his patrol, but he doesn't send pledges for them. You don't have to send printed pledges, Dave—a copy of the pledge is just as good.

CLOTHING THEFT SUSPECTS HELD

Two suspects in the theft of thousands of dollars worth of clothing from the Winer Style Shop, 1342 Fifth avenue, were held for court by Magistrate Howard B. McNutt in Central Police Court today.

They were Pete Albenze, 28, of 1132 North Euclid avenue, and Frank Valenti, 22, 1720 Locust street, who were arrested in connection with the theft while they were in the county jail. They had been held on counterfeiting charges.

Clothing valued at between $13,000 and $15,000 was stolen from the Winer shop January 21. Hezekiah Lankford and Maltee Gober, Negroes, who previously were arrested in the case, testified Albenze and Valenti brought an automobile filled with merchandise identified as part of the loot to their garage in Locust street.

FRANCE DEFIES OWN RIOTERS, FOES ABROAD

PARIS, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Fast and firm action to show the world that France is thoroughly able to take care of herself at home and abroad was planned by the new cabinet, after mounted guards early today rode down rioters in several provincial cities.

After a day of comparative tranquillity during the 24-hour general strike yesterday in which laborers demonstrated against Fascism, disorders were quelled at Marseilles, Nantes, Toulon, Lille, Roubaix and Mulhouse.

One was known dead and upwards of 150 wounded and injured as a result of the strike and accompanying violence. Forty were arrested at Marseilles after a furious pistol battle between police and a local mob.

A firm attitude toward Chancellor Hitler, of Germany, to see that Austria is protected, will be taken by the cabinet of Premier Gaston Doumergue, it was indicated.

Likewise, the government let it be known it was not afraid to make trade reprisals against Great Britain, following the opening of a trade war with that country.

SOVIET CHEERS UPRISINGS

MOSCOW, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—The capital of Communism today watched avidly events in Austria and France and, through the columns of the Communist party newspaper Pravda, cheered on the fighting workers in both countries.

Their activities, it was explained here, was a fight against the rising tide of Fascism.

Calling for a "united front" of all workers in those countries, the newspaper says:

"The demonstrations and general strikes in France and Austria show the revolutionary forces against Fascism are rising and ripening.

"They can be victorious only if control over the movement is assumed by revolutionary workers headed by the Communist party."

JAPANESE VOTE BIG ARMS FUND

TOKIO, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—A budget bill providing for the largest peacetime defense appropriations in Japan's history was passed [illegible] House of Representatives. Overwhelming majority [illegible]al was expressed by an uncounted, standing vote.

The bill then was sent to the House of Peers where equally smooth passage was expected.

Adverse votes came from the Proletarians and the Kokuningomei, the latter group because it is uncompromisingly opposed to the cabinet of Premier Saito—not because of any disapproval of the budget's record military estimates.

Japs Watch Deals Between U. S., Reds

TOKIO, Feb. 13.—(INS)—Commenting upon present Russo-American trade negotiations and anticipating the Soviet government's payment of Czarist debts to the United States, the Japanese Foreign Office stated today that Japan will demand payment of money owed her by Moscow as soon as any debts are paid to other nations. Japan will press claims amounting to $100,000,000 stipulated in an existing Russo-Japanese treaty, it was stated.

Empty Your Gall Bladder

And You'll Feel Like a Billion Dollars!

Sleepless nights, dog-tired days, headaches, pains in all parts of the body—indigestion—gas. Do you suffer from one or all?

And have you tried every medicine under the sun, only to find yourself back where you started?

No wonder, for you, like thousands of others have probably been treating yourself for everything but the right thing. Get at the unsuspected cause—your gall bladder. If sluggish, it won't pour into your small intestines the most important digestive juice necessary for neutralizing gastric acid, quickening digestion and disinfecting the intestinal tract. If this juice doesn't flow freely, then your food sours, putrifies, stomach becomes filled with gas and acidity.

From the world's greatest chemists comes a simple, pleasant means to make this digestive juice flow freely, and put you on the sunny side of life. Magnesia Oxoids, little white tablets that release pure oxygen. This amazing oxygen—purer than the air you breathe—plus magnesia, gently stimulates the gall bladder, neutralizes burning acidity and sweeps that poison-packed bowel clean.

Take two Oxoids after each meal and before retiring; drink plenty of water; put your gall bladder to work and you'll jump out of your skin for joy. Such new health! Such robust vigor! Get Magnesia Oxoids today from your druggist.

VIENNA CHILDREN DIE AS BIG GUNS ROAR

Men fell, dead and wounded, but there was no time nor opportunity to count the casualties.

The battle at the Karl Marx building was as horrible as some of the veterans who fought had seen in the days of the World War.

Machine guns blazed from the windows of the homes of laborers at the soldiers who sought to enter.

The government forces found machine guns, hand grenades and tear gas insufficient to batter down the stubborn resistance. So they unlimbered howitzers.

The big shells ripped into the concrete structure. Cement dust rose in the air. Whole corners of the building disappeared.

FIGHTING RENEWED

Heavy fighting also broke out again, after hours of comparative calm, in the Floridsdorf factory section of Vienna.

Socialists, who lost a fight for possession of their own headquarters, were stormed and captured.

Eleven were reported dead in this engagement.

At the same time, defenders of the big municipal flat, the Complex Schlingerhof, refused to surrender after they had been handed an ultimatum.

As a result, artillery fire was opened against the buildings. Field artillery howitzers were used.

The army held off with its artillery for hours. The big guns finally were trained into play, however, with machine gunners stationed at the corners of the great building pouring a deadly fire into the troops.

A Socialist machine gun nest was blown up. Elsewhere, the whole surface of the structure—which is so big that only an airplane photograph is capable of giving a complete view of it—was pockmarked by bullets.

WOMEN, CHILDREN PERILED

For hours the attackers confined themselves to machine gun and rifle fire. They planned to wait for a chance to storm the building with tear gas. They wanted to avoid any possibility of casualties among women and children inside.

In the working class district of Ottakring, Socialist headquarters were captured by police and soldiers after a merciless artillery attack had wrought tremendous damage.

Field guns and howitzers were turned during the attack on Karl Marx Court against neighboring community flats, the Complex Sandleiten. This development approaches the court in size and modernity.

Two machine gun nests were buried by debris.

During the intense fighting in the capital, reports from the province of Styria said Socialist headquarters at Eggenberg had been destroyed by artillery fire.

GOVERNMENT GAINING

In and around Linz, where the uprising began yesterday, the government forces appeared to be steadily gaining ground. Socialist fighters withdrew to the outskirts of this city. They occupied an old fortress.

Several thousand Fascist Heimwehrmen, meanwhile, were reported marching on Linz under the personal command of Prince Ernst von Starhemberg, leader of the Heimwehr, or Home Guard.

He was caught in machine gun fire, and his adjutant, Maj. Wrabel, received a bullet wound in the arm.

Few escaped injury in this furious conflict.

WORLD WAR TACTICS

They advanced crouching, shouting, in short rushes, as they had down Allied enemy trenches during the World War.

Every corridor of the building was a trench, every face that appeared an enemy.

They tossed hand grenades.

There were shouts of rage, screams of wounded, cries of surrender—and of those who went down fighting.

In the Floridsdorf section, the Socialists attempted to form a barricade by uprooting the young trees in the city park. Over these they piled park benches.

They held their barricades well into the afternoon while soldiers raked them with heavy fire. The Socialists fired back undaunted.

All through the working class district the battle raged, up and down the streets.

SHOUTING MOBS

Men struggled together in tight groups, now shouting, now panting in the agony of battle.

Rifles and pistols blasted out death from windows. Everywhere in the fighting zone was felt the jarring detonations of hand grenades.

Prince Schoenburg Hartenstein, the under secretary of defense, issued an appeal to all World War veterans to rally with him to the defense of the government.

It was as though Austria was in a state of siege.

Several hundred Socialists, prisoners of the troops, already had been summoned before the authorities. The majority of them, it was announced, will be court martialed with death as the penalty of the insurrection.

Even orphans, held in an asylum in Sankt Poelten were not spared the horrors of war.

POLICE SURROUNDED

The police in the Kepfnerg area were surrounded by Socialist forces. Late in the morning they were making a desperate stand against annihilation. Troops were ordered to cut a path through the ring of steel surrounding them.

The police and soldiers appeared to have gained control of Karl Marx Court but they continued their mopping up action through the long rambling corridors.

The Socialist headquarters in the Ottak ring is a mass of ruins after the heavy artillery bombardment of the night and this morning.

The government is rushing every available reserve into Vienna.

Many of these men are simple farmers arriving from the country. They are not even uniformed but are merely wearing red-white-red arm bands and carying rifles.

Communist Strike Battled in Spain

MADRID, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Dispatches from Bilbao said today nine persons were wounded and a number arrested in clashes throughout the city growing from a Communist-led strike.

500 Americans In Vienna as War Rages

VIENNA, Feb. 13.—(INS.)—Between 500 and 600 Americans reside in Vienna, but none of them has been injured since civil war broke out in the capital, Alfred W. Kliefoth, American charge d'affaires, told International News Service this afternoon.

Most of them, he said, are keeping to their apartments and avoiding trouble centers.

GERMANY EYES AUSTRIAN WAR

International News Service.

BERLIN, Feb. 13.—Germany, watching events in Austria closely today expected an inevitable alliance of the Fascist Heimwehr and the Austrian branch of the Nazis.

The word "anschluss," denoting the union of Germany and Austria, for which Nazi leaders long have been clamoring, was carefully avoided for the present.

Official circles and the press were of the opinion that Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss would fall soon, and that Nazism remained Austria's only hope of salvation.

The Voelkischer Beobachter, Chancellor Adolf Hitler's own newspaper in Munich, said:

Nazi Arms Demand Opposed by France

After reaching its decision, the government immediately approved the text of a reply to the recent Hitler memorandum. It will be sent to Berlin shortly.

Gray Hair

Best Remedy is Made At Home

You can now make at home a better gray hair remedy by following this simple recipe: To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it yourself at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained.

Barbo imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair, making it soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

CRIME EXPERT HOLDS LAMSON INNOCENT

BERKELEY, Cal., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—August Vollmer, widely-known criminologist and former chief of police here, announced yesterday he had concluded after a private investigation that David A. Lamson, convicted of murdering his wife and sentenced to hang was not guilty.

Vollmer said he had been persuaded to investigate the case by the Rev. Rudolph I. Coffee, former head of Temple Sinai, Oakland. Said Vollmer:

"I am convinced Lamson is not guilty and does not know how his wife came to her death.

"But our present legal system resulted in his being found guilty. And I am sure that my opinion would be held by anyone who made an impartial study of all the evidence.

"There was no motive for a slaying, but the state introduced Lamson's interest in other women and an unhappy home life, which were entirely irrevelant.

"I believe Lamson is innocent because there was no evidence that a murder had been committed, nor that if there was he had any part in it. The jury was apparently prejudiced and the blood spots in the bathroom of the Lamsons' home prove that Mrs. Lamson came to her death by falling against a wash bowl. I visited the bathroom and the evidence is still there."

Lamson was a representative of the Stanford University Press, and his wife, Allene Thorp Lamson, was employed by the Y. W. C. A. They were married after what their friends described as an ideal campus romance. They had a young daughter.

Mrs. Lamson's death became known May 30, 1933. On the morning of that day Lamson, after working in his garden, during which he tended a bonfire, went into the house to open the front door to a real estate dealer.

Suddenly he cried out that his wife had been killed and that he had found her body in the bathtub of their home.

He was arrested later. The prosecution asserted he had beaten Mrs. Lamson to death with a piece of pipe, allegedly found in the bonfire. Lamson denied the accusation, saying she apparently had fallen.

He was sentenced to hang last December 15, but his appeal automatically stayed the sentence. Vollmer declared:

"Any intelligent person who would visit the Lamson bathroom and see the demonstration put on by E. O. Heinrich would be convinced that the death was accidental and that Lamson is innocent."

Heinrich, Berkeley criminologist, was engaged by the Lamson defense, but was not permitted to "reconstruct" the death scene before the jury. He said the direction of the blood spots indicated Mrs. Lamson had fallen.

Rivera Attacks Rockefeller as Vandal of Art

(Editor's Note—Diego Rivera, noted Mexican artist, was bitterly resentful today of the action of the Rockefeller interests in destroying the mural he was commissioned to paint for Rockefeller Center in New York City. In the following exclusive article he scathingly attacks John D. Rockefeller, Jr., for ordering destruction of the mural and calls it a barbarous deed. Rockefeller Center objected to Rivera's inclusion of a portrait of Lenin.)

By DIEGO RIVERA

International News Service.
(Written for, and copyrighted, 1934, by International News Service.)

In tearing aside the hypocritical curtain of philanthropy from a scientific foundation's patronage of art, he has unmasked the capitalistic bloody repressions against the miners of Colorado and a thousand other brutal acts against the workers of the American continent.

The assassination of my work again nullifies all the patient propaganda of Rockefeller and his agents to associate his name with humanity.

Rockefeller destroyed the picture of Lenin, builder of the Soviet Union, with synical hypocrisy at the same time he was doing an excellent business with that very state and at the moment the Unied States had recognized it. Why?

I naturally feel keenly the destruction of my mural in Rockefeller Center as it was among my best work. But I recognize that this act of capitalistic vandalism confirms the barbaric nature of capitalist society and proves clearly the revolutionary class and character of my work. It was an incident in the class struggle in which I shall continue my role as the artist of the proletariat.

I leave judgment of the assassination of these murals—in which the work of a number of scientists, among them one very eminent boilogist of the Rockefeller Institute was portrayed—to the intellectual workers of the United States and in general to all men who are conscientious and respectful of the rights of human thought.

Carnegie Slayer Sent to Prison

John Olik, 40, of Carnegie, was sentenced to serve one year and eight months to five years in prison on a voluntary manslaughter charge today after he pleaded guilty to a charge of killing Lawrence Szczap, 50, of 2 Pine street, Carnegie, last October 29.

Olik went on trial before visiting Judge S. John Morrow, of Fayette County, yesterday, but changed his plea to guilty after Szczap's widow testified.

TERRIERS FIGHT DANES TO TAKE SPOT IN SHOW

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Like small boys fidgeting while the minister drones on and on; that is the impression given by most of the 2,461 dogs competing at the Westminster Dog Show.

It's their big trial of the year—an ordeal during which they are rewarded for acting as little like dogs as possible. Such natural, commonplace things as gnawing old bones and chewing the tar out of their neighbors are strictly taboo.

A lot of stoics went on with the show today. They posed like statuary while the judges looked them over; they trotted sedately up and down the ring while that "Scottie" with grandiose delusions barked defiance from a secure place in the adjoining ring.

SWELL DOG'S LIFE

A swell dog's life, this Westminster exhibition!

Old-timers around the judging arena say, however, that some of the show dogs go stagy in a big way, that the applause of the crowds and the lure of the lights get into their blood.

Wire-haired fox terriers, for example: incorrigible show-offs and natural posers. Fanciers say there is not breed that adapts itself better to the artificial life of the canine stage, provided they can be stopped from attempting to throttle every Great Dane or St. Bernard that passes. This is generally hard on the fox terriers.

All the terriers, as befits their original purpose in life, are imbued with ideas of conquest. They are responsible for most of the noise at any dog show. Otherwise, good "troupers."

SPANIELS BEHAVE WELL

Some breeds, spanels and sporting dogs, notably, are better-mannered in the ring. Naturally phlegmatic, they have an easier time suppressing their impulses than the irrespressible terriers.

Impressions at the Westminster:

There is an inverse ratio between the size of the dogs and the owners. Large women exhibit small dogs; small men show Great Danes.

Some of the toy breeds are kept in glass cases, like flowers. A lusty breath would wilt them.

There is a strong resemblance between certain breeds and the natives of the countries in which they originated. Chows, for example, have distinctly Mongolian faces. Dobermann Pinschers, German dogs, have clean-cut, alert and military appearances.

Ice Box Warms Butcher During Frigid Wave

RIDGETOWN, Ontario, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—It was cold in the butcher shop of William Bedard—outside the thermometer was at 20 degrees below zero.

He stepped inside his refrigerator to get some meat and found the temperature was 32 above zero. So Bedard summoned two friends and they spent the rest of the day in chairs inside the vault.

'BULLET' TRAIN HERE MONDAY

PULLMAN, Ill., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—The Union Pacific introduced its $200,000 baby to the railroading public today—an aluminum bullet of a train, good for 110 miles an hour and the prototype of others being designed to trim nearly a day from the Chicago-San Francisco time table. It will be exhibited in Pittsburgh next Monday.

Accepting delivery of the three-car unit from the Pullman Car and Manufacturing Company, Chairman W. A. Harriman, of the Union Pacific, announced that already three more lightweight, stream-lined trains are being built. These will include sleeping cars and equipment for trans-continental travel.

The train pulls out today for Washington where it will be inspected Thursday by President Roosevelt. The next day it will be opened to the public. On February 17 it will be taken to Baltimore, and then February 19 to Pittsburgh.

Nuns to Attend Educational Parley

Market Proprietor Held Up at Garage

D. N. Roth, of 1604 Jancey street, was held up and robbed of $37 by two armed bandits in his garage in the rear of 1254 Jancey street, last night, according to a police report.

Roth, proprietor of a Franks-town avenue meat market, had just put his truck in the garage when the holdup men confronted him, he told police.

FUND NAMED 'COMMUNITY'

Seven new members were elected to the board of directors of the Welfare Fund and a resolution to change the name of the Welfare Fund to the "Community Fund" was unanimously adopted late yesterday at the annual meeting of members of the fund's council in Kaufmann's.

The new directors ars:

RUUD HOT WATER

as good as 4 extra maids

DISHWASHING

LAUNDERING
Clothes last longer when RUUD washes them . . . and hours are clipped from the laundry-day schedule.

CLEANING
Save your strength. Let RUUD Hot Water dissolve the dirt and wash it quickly away.

GENERAL UTILITY

WHOEVER wrote "Woman's work is never done" was thinking of . . . dishwashing . . . laundering . . . scrubbing . . . cleaning.

Today, woman's work can be finished,—quickly, definitely and completely. The modern emancipator is the RUUD Automatic Water Heater and its housework help that equals the services of four extra maids . . . one to dispatch the dishes in jig-time . . . one to take the hard work out of washday . . . one to scrub and clean . . . and one for all other routine tasks of housekeeping.

Instantly ready, inexhaustible in its flow, reliably sure, uncha ging in its always-hot temperature, RUUD Hot Water is certainly the answer to a maiden's prayer, especially when that maiden is responsible for the smooth operation of a HOME.

A few minutes spent at our store will literally save you hours of housework drudgery. A demonstration does not obligate you to buy; it merely shows you the short way to freedom. Special terms now!

"Sure, I like Old Gold ... but maybe you won't"

"You see, son, you've got to do your own smoking . . . and your own choosing. Nobody else can tell you what cigarette you'll like best.

"There are a lot of good cigarettes. But I like OLD GOLDS because they're free of artificial flavoring. Just better tobacco . . . and nothing else. That seems to make them smoother and easier on the throat.

"Maybe that won't mean a thing to you! I'm just suggesting that you try OLD GOLDS for a few days. Then let your own taste decide!"

PONZI TO FIGHT DEPORTATION TO ITALY

Universal Service.

BOSTON, Feb. 13.—Paying the last few hours of his seven-year debt to the state for unprecedented financial hornswoggling in the early 1920's, Charles Ponzi, of "fifty per cent in 90 days" fame, today was packing to leave grim Charleston State Prison.

The smiling little Italian, who rolled $200 into more than $9,000,000 between 1919 and 1924, will leave his cell tomorrow with $84 saved from his prison pay of a dollar a week. He said he will not attempt to roll that sum into a fortune by any of the old "sucker" devices.

Sitting on the side of the small cot in his cell today, his bright eyes twinkling, his face wreathed in smiles, Ponzi said:

"No, I want to go to work. I think I have the brains to make money honestly, and I hope I will not be deported—I'd like to make my living in America."

A warrant for arrest of the "international coupon king" as an undesirable alien has been issued. It will be served on him when he "checks out" at the prison office tomororw morning. It is the plan of the federal government to ship him back to Italy. The Italian government has announced it will accept him if he is sent there.

But Ponzi has prepared an appeal which will stay his deportation at least a year. He claims he was born in the United States, although federal records purport to show he came to the United States via Montreal in 1919.

TECH ABANDONS FREE COURSES

The Carnegie Institute of Technology will discontinue the policy of allowing unemployed Tech graduates to attend undergraduate courses tuition free, officials announced today. The rule is effective today.

Lack of sufficient interest and lack of real need for the courses are the reasons cited for the action, which was ordered by the executive board Saturday.

The free tuition policy was started in February, 1933. During the past semester, registration has dropped from 148 last March to about 75 at the end of the last semester, according to Alan Bright, registrar. Explaining the board's action, he said:

"This seems to indicate that there was a decrease among the number of unemployed graduates and that general business conditions in this district were picking up. The board felt that while there would be a small number of graduates who would attend as long as this policy was continued, this number would not justify the inconvenience caused the professors and instructors by the increased attendance."

Bright indicated that if the need for free tuition became necessary again, the policy would be reinstated.

Teacher Institute Set for Thursday

More than 400 teachers will meet to discuss educational problems at the sectional institute for the North Boroughs and Ohio Valley school teachers, in Bellevue High School, Thursday. Teachers from Avalon, Ben Avon, Bellevue, Emsworth, McKees Rocks, West View, Sewickley and Ross Township will attend the sessions.

Dr. C. R. Foster, president of Indiana State Teachers College, will be the principal speaker.

Gone! That COLD—

When This Remedy Gets Busy!

A cold is no joke and Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine treats it as none! It goes right to the seat of the trouble, an infection within the system. Surface remedies are largely makeshift.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is speedy and effective because it is expressly a cold remedy and because it is direct and internal—and COMPLETE! It does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. That's the treatment a cold requires and anything less is taking chances. When you feel a cold coming on, get busy at once with Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. For sale by all druggists, 30c and 60c. Ask for it by the full name and resent a substitute.

IF YOUR EARS RING WITH HEAD NOISES

If you have roaring, buzzing noises in your ears, are getting hard of hearing and fear Catarrhal Deafness, go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal trouble of the ears, is hard of hearing or has head noises should give this prescription a trial.

First of 3 Brothers To Wed Woman Dies

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—James De Tarr, 38, a writer and one of three brothers who married the same woman, Harryette Post of Denver, died Sunday in a private clinic. He recently suffered a nervous collapse.

De Tarr married Miss Post several years ago and they were divorced. She then married his brother, Noble De Tarr. They were divorced. Late last year the youngest of the De Tarr brothers, Beverly, married her.

OPEN LECTURES TO AID ALIEN

"The Spirit of the Service" was the subject of an address today by Charles Garfinkel, assistant divisional director of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, in the Pittsburgh district, before employes of the service in the Federal Building. It was the first of a weekly series covering the purposes and policies of the authorities in Washington.

Garfinkel told his hearers they must perform their duties efficiently, but at the same time humanely and in the spirit of helpfulness rather than persecution. He said:

"Prosecutions are an inevitable incident to our work, but they must never degenerate into persecutions. We must always keep in mind the essentially judicial nature of our duties, our obligation to accord fair and impartial hearings. Courtesy and consideration are the least expensive and perhaps the most useful of the tools we must employ in our work."

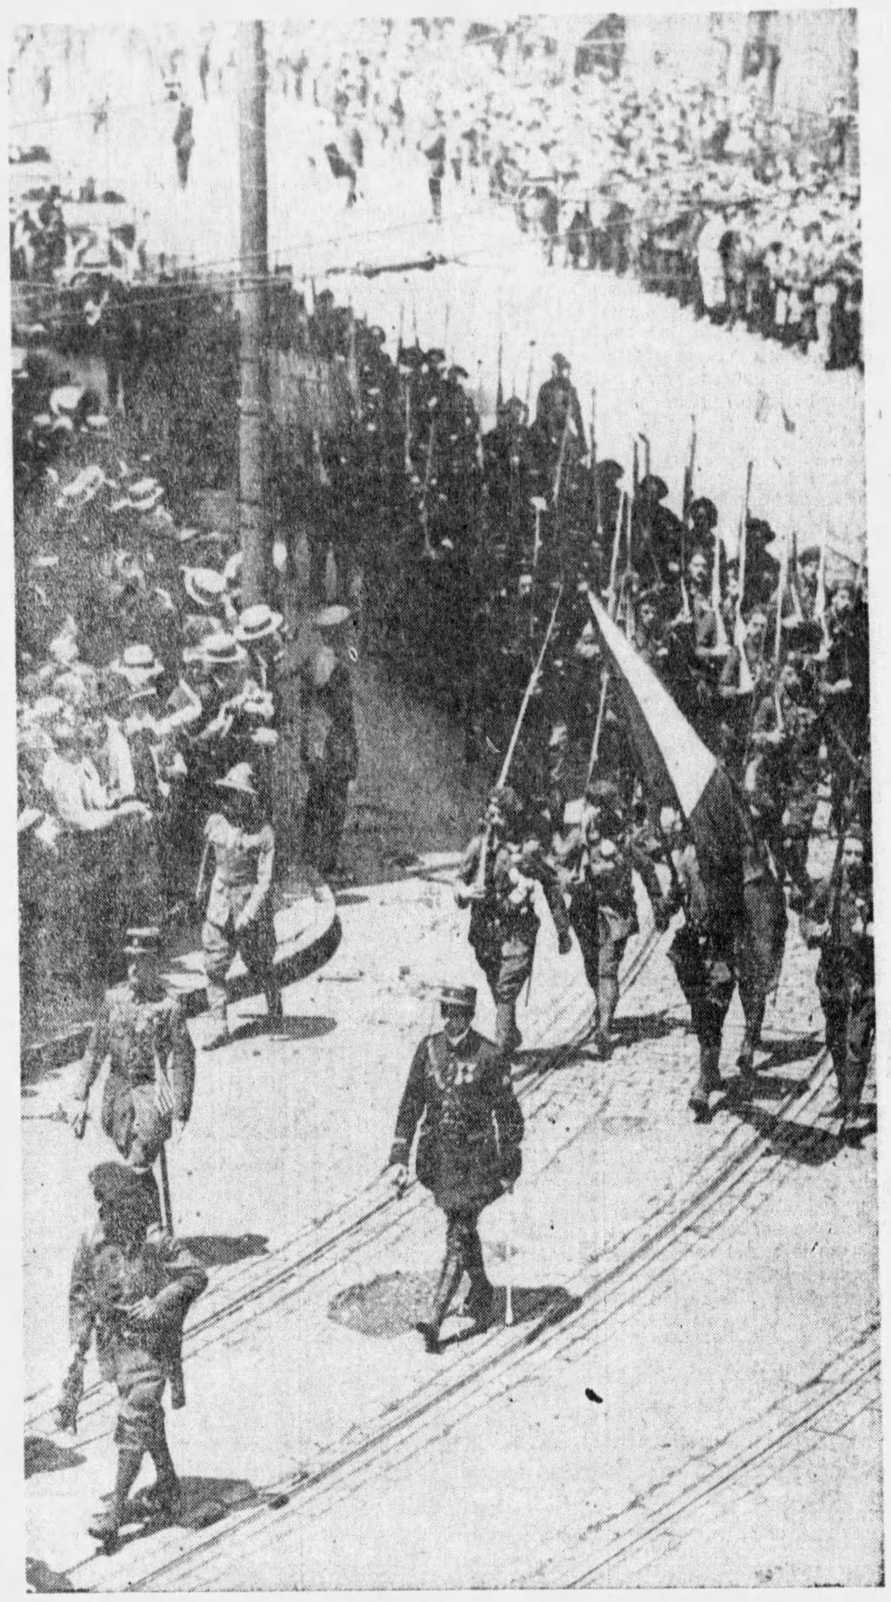
'THE WAR AT HOME:' FRENCH TROOPS IN PITTSBURGH

Wartime enthusiasm at its highest pitch among the citizens who stayed at home—the men behind the men behind the guns—ran through this parade of workmen in downtown Fifth avenue. They manned, with the help of women, the vital industries and kept the munitions plants running full tilt.



The French Blue Devils—the very name thrilling among the stories of heroes early in the World War—parading in Pittsburgh to inflame U. S. patriotism to even higher degrees.

Student soldiers, these lads practicing at trench-digging on Carnegie Tech's campus. Fortunately the World War ended before they were called.

A French soldier on the unwanted detail assigned to the burial of fallen comrades. Just a simple cross marked the crudely-dug grave of each man who died for his flag.

Infantrymen of the U. S. 1st. Division, outracing their tank, going into action with an attack across open country. Splendid targets they were for the fire of the defending foe, anxious to hold to every single inch of the ground that cost him so dearly in human life. Notice how one adjusts his helmet.

French soldiers in a ruined town. Bent low, the better to escape the fire of the enemy, they're crossing a village street in a methodical mopping-up of soldiers hidden in these houses, shattered by the heavy cannonading. This is a copyright Underwood and Underwood News Photograph Service picture.

DEFENSE VITAL, HOUSE LEADER DECLARES

(National Defense Week, which opened yesterday, brings to the mind of every American the necessity of protection against an outside enemy. In the accompanying article, Representative John J. McSwain, chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee, who has made a deep study of our national defense, tells the American people what fighting forces they should have on land and sea and in the air.)

By REP. JOHN J. M'SWAIN
Chairman, House Military Affairs Committee.
Written expressly for Hearst Newspapers.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—The American people are peace loving and will never consent to a war of aggression. They are willing to prepare merely to repel invasion.

They insist on attending to their own business and will insist that any other nation not meddle with our business.

Due to our geographical situation, adequate air power and a proper Navy will either completely repel invasion or give us time to organize land forces.

Of course we must keep reasonable land forces as an abundant precaution. If we maintain this state of preparedness no other nation will try to invade us and thus preparedness prevents war and obtains peace.

Where we have been deficient in Army and Navy our participation in a war—as those of this generation can realize from our part in the World War—has been costly both in lives and dollars.

The best guarantee of peace is an adequate Army and Navy supplemented by programs for industrial mobilization which can be readily made available in event of conflict.

America, the home of aviation, should have the greatest air force in the world.

WAR PICTURES LAUDED BY REED

Lauded by leaders everywhere as a tremendous argument against unpreparedness, the Sun-Telegraph's presentation of uncensored World War photographs today were commended by Senator David A. Reed.

Declaring that such pictures, showing the youth of our nation mangled and crushed on the death-seared battlefields of France, need never have been published if the United States had been prepared in 1917, Senator Reed said:

"The publication of these graphic pictures is wise at this time when there is so much jingo sentiment abroad.

"In depicting the horrors of war there is shown the need for preparedness for emergencies. If the United States had been properly prepared in 1917, we would not have been drawn into the World War and these pictures of the suffering of our young men would not now be printed."

Flush Clean with Non-Irritating Pluto Water

Ever hear of "cathartic constipation?" Medicine laxatives cause it. Most of them work by irritating the membranes of the digestive tract—an unnatural method!

That's why more than 50,000 physicians recommend Pluto Water. For Pluto is not a drug or medicine laxative but a saline mineral water. The same amount each time—no need to increase it—always performs, does not gripe, gives positive results in less than one hour. It cannot give you the laxative habit!

Pluto Water is gentle — but speedy. It promptly opens the pylorus valve — permitting the flush to enter the intestines without anxious hours of waiting.

The proper dilution—one-fifth glass Pluto in four-fifths glass hot water—is practically tasteless. Take it whenever sluggish—get results within an hour—and end that laxative habit! In two sizes: Splits (8 ounces)—large bottles (3 times the quantity). At all druggists.

CITY CELEBRATES DEFENSE WEEK

Radio talks, National Guard demonstrations at various armories and a series of reserve corps meetings and conferences will feature Pittsburgh's observance of National Defense Week, to continue through February 22.

Among those scheduled to make radio addresses are Maj. Gen. Adelbert Cronkhite, Col. C. C. McGovern, Gen. A. J. Logan, Col. Eric Fisher Wood, Col. W. R. Dunlap, Brig. Gen. C. B. Mehard, Col. Andrew Berger, Col. Frederick A. Prince and Capt. J. O. Corbett.

National defense, vital to the nation, is of particular importance to the Pittsburgh district, Col. McGovern, chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, declared in commenting on the observance. He said:

"An adequate national defense is of particular and vital importance to Allegheny County, entirely apart from the general necessity of the nation at large. Pittsburgh and the district of which it is the nerve center together produce more than half of the sinews of modern war. Iron, steel, coal tar derivatives, aluminum and glassware industries make this section the certain object of an enemy attack.

"National defense is self-defense so far as Pittsburgh is concerned. We need a National Defense Week to remind the citizens of that fact."

The three-fold program of broadcasts, demonstrations and conferences will be co-ordinated under the general chairmanship of Col. Prince.

Climaxing the national observance, which will include preparedness services in churches throughout the country and numerous local programs sponsored by patriotic organizations, will be a coast-to-coast broadcast from Washington with a number of military leaders and advocates of adequate defensive measures participating.

MEETING LAUDS WAR PICTURES

The Sun-Telegraph was praised at last night's meeting of the Retail Credit Men's Association in McCreery's diningroom by W. H. Goldman, president, for the "splendid war pictures" it has been publishing. He added:

"The pictures being shown by the Sun-Telegraph depicting the horrors of war, amplify to the greatest extent the necessity of military preparedness to America as a prevention of future participation in war."

His statement preceded the presentation of motion pictures showing how citizens of the Pittsburgh district are given credit ratings in the payment of bills, by the merchant-owned Credit Bureau, Inc., with which the credit association is affiliated. This feature was followed by a skit in which the bureau staff participated.

Short talks were given by Col. Franklin Blackstone, H. E. Wilson, B. J. Lindberg, W. B. McConnell, C. G. Kaessner and T. L. Ford, who outlined the membership campaign now in progress to double the association's membership.

Things I Never Knew 'Til Now

(You should live that long!

That another reason why so many people are out of work in these United States is that the U. S. Federal post office employes' brass buttons are made in England instead of in this country! (And that I've seen the proof to Congressman Walter Nesbit, by golly!)

That I still can't understand why funeral begins with FUN.

That a new ruling in the Police Dep't of N. Y. gives a uniformed cop a day off every time he arrests a "wicked" woman on the streets. (Why not give a month off to those who arrest real criminals?)

Oh, Mr. Ripley! At the Hollywood rendezvous the other night, when the nudists of the chorus came out—Gable blushed!

That there is a law in Kansas prohibiting the making of mince pies because you might get drunkee on the brandy in them. Hic.

That a man attains his maximum weigh, at the age of 40, loses it at 60 and at 80 his stature is diminished about 2¾ inches. (Maw! Git me my wheel chair. I wanna go places and look at the girlies!)

That a baby breathes twice as fast as an adult. (Except when the stock market crashes or he discovers his bank has failed.)

That if you cannot repeat 10 digits in their proper order after hearing them once, you're not normal. (I give up. What's a digit?)

That another parlor game is this one, now making the rounds. You write down the number 7 and the word Red and cover it with your hand. Then you say: "Give me a number quick!" (The usual answer is 7.) Then you say: "Give me a color!" (The usual answer is Red.) If a person says 7 and red—he is "normally intelligent." And you show him the 7 and red you marked under your hand to "prove" it.

That if in the same game the person says "3" instead of 7 he is "normally intelligent," but it isn't so impressive because you marked 7. (I forget why 7 is the normally intelligent answer—but people usually say red because that color is the most outstanding.)

That me sec'y said: "Six and blue." (Which gives you an idea.)

That your personality is regulated by glands. If they are healthy you have a sweet personality. (Bernie's must be dead.)

That Babe Ruth has hit a home run in every major league ball park except at the National League Phillies.

That according to the Portland Oregonian, for the money you pay to see a big league football game you see only 11 and four-fifths minutes of action. The time, plus outs, substitutions, rest periods and the time between referee whistles, make up the other two hours.

That umpires in baseball wear black bow ties for a good reason. Many years ago an ump (short for chump) in the Texas League got mixed up with a player over a decision and the player almost choked the ump to death by violently yanking his four-in-hand. (Since then—bow ties!)

That Jess Willard, one time heavyweight fighter, quit being a cowboy because he couldn't find a horse big enough to ride, which didn't force his feet to drag on the ground. He was 6 ft. 6 and was 247 at the time.

That when big business starts to compute which is the biggest business in the country, it shouldn't overlook fishing. Last year there were over nine million fishermen in the United States who spent more than 25 million dollars for tackle and equipment.

That in Austria the hangman gets very little for the job. He cleans up, however, by peddling bits of the rope to the morbid.

That the Panama Canal cost the U. S. millions to build—and it still costs millions annually for water—although there is plenty of it on each side (the Atlantic and Pacific oceans) but it isn't fresh water—which is what they have to use in the canal locks.

That one of the better definitions of friend is revived by Peggy F. Hawley, of Jackson Heights—source not recalled: "Every man should have a fair-sized cemetery for the faults of his friends."

That other oldies but goodies include: The only way to have a friend is to be one—and—it is chance that makes brothers—but hearts make friends. I like this one, too—When two friends part—they should lock up each other's secrets in their hearts and exchange keys.

Joe Says New Is Best

Joe Cawthorn, veteran of a score of song-and-dance hits on Broadway, beamed.

"Don't expect me to drop a tear for the old days—and say that musicals were better then. Not on your life. Here in Hollywood they're doing things now that we couldn't even touch. Why not admit it?"

Joe Cawthorn is working just now in the Warner Bros. production, "Hot Air," featured with Dick Powell and Ginger Rogers. This alignment reminds him of that famed co-starring trio, Julia Sanderson, Donald Brian, Joseph Cawthorn—which any pre-war playgoer will remember. In such musical shows as "Sybil" and "The Girl From Utah," they were as much landmarks on Broadway as the Knickerbocker Theater—and the Knickerbocker Bar.

It was in "Sybil" that Cawthorn sang the immortal "I Can Dance With Everybody But My Wife."

Cavalry Masquers Play 'Here Today'

"Here Today," a comedy of last season, by George Oppenheimer, never shown here professionally, was presented at the first of two performances by Cavalry Masquers last night. It will be repeated tonight in the Masquers' Theater, 315 Shady avenue. The cast includes Herbert Osgood, Madeleine Moore, Ralph Radcliffe, Jr., Keth Sterling, Mrs. Henry Scott, Jr., George M. Rowland, Jr., Eda Szeckay and John Johns. The sets for the play, the action of which is laid in the Bahamas, were designed by Mary Sawders. Charles L. Wooldridge, Jr., directed.

Other Little Theater productions last night included "Richelieu," by the Newman Players, in the Cathedral High School; "The Dybbuk," repeat performance in "Y" Playhouse, by that organization, and "The Alarm Clock," by the Resurrection Players in the Brookline Public School auditorium, to be repeated tonight.

Perfect Crime in the Nixon Meets the Approval Of All Present

By GEORGE SEIBEL

If there is any necessary and commendable homicide to be committed, the one that has to perform the not too disagreeable duty should see to it that a nice accessible clock furnishes him a "Ten Minute Alibi," such as was witnessed at the Nixon Theater last night. When two clever men from Scotland Yard fail to puncture this alibi, why should a mere critic, who took keen delight in the bloody work, set himself above them? The drama by Anthony Armstrong is as perfect as clockwork—if anything, it is a little too perfect.

There are so many occasions when the avenging hero almost slips up, that there surely must have been a kindly disposed stage manager to make everything come out right.

"Ten-Minute Alibi" is a gripping drama acted with absolute finish. The scene is laid in Bloomsbury, that region of London around the British Museum, and every one of the seven people in the play might have been picked up in Tottenham Court road. Atmosphere must be credited at 100 per cent, even to the reek of the Inspector's very British pipe. Accents perfect — ethics those of poetic justice—and everything on time exactly by the meridian of Greenwich.

Mr. Seibel

This is a thriller so thrilling that you feel the narrow escapes of the homicidal hero down your own spine.

YOU DON'T BLAME HIM

This hero, acted with consummate finesse by Bramwell Fletcher, dreams his perfect crime in act one and commits it in act two. You don't blame him, though you might admire him a little more if he had done his job without bothering about any alibi. Stiano Braggiotti is such a detestable villain—definitely classified by Scotland Yard as "a swine"—that you feel a certain reluctance to praise him as an excellent actor. So, too, with Daphne Warren Wilson, the heroine for whose sweet sake the crime is committed—she is so soft-headed that you are somewhat unwilling to admit that she reminds you very much of our own Eva LeGallienne.

It is a remarkably even and excellent cast, with Oswald Yorke as a very solemn British barrister, Reynolds Denniston and Leslie Barrie as hard-headed minions of the law, and Donald Randolph as a butler with a guilty past.

So perfect is the acting that you would accept the story of the crime as true even if the alibi were not air-tight—even if you did not see the dream murder translated into actual assassination.

Whether such perfect clarity and definite precision is possible in a dream may be left to Havelock Ellis and Sigmund Freud. We believe it because we saw it.

ELEMENT OF TIME

Everything clicks. And the clock ticks on. Minutes are counted—this melodrama depends on the chronometer. Anthony Armstrong must have got his inspiration from Big Ben.

What does it matter—all the things that might have happened didn't happen—the silent gun worked perfectly, and the villain died as promptly as all the victims in books and plays of crime—so what does it matter? We accept the alibi, as the Scotland Yard men do, and we go home well pleased that justice has been done and we have been highly entertained. If we feel any qualms about having connived at the killing of a good actor like Braggiotti, we consider his evil intentions toward that good actress, Miss Wilson. As for the gallant Fletcher, he is a practical dreamer whose dreams come true. He did a good night's work and Bloomsbury is a better place in consequence. This crime wave at the Nixon deserves the approval of all homicide fans and mystery addicts.

Variety Books Miss Scheff

Fritzi Scheff, former operetta star, who until recently was hostess of a New York night club, has been engaged to appear in the Variety for the week of February 26. A few days ago Walter Winchell made note of the fact that Miss Scheff, once a highly paid artist, had no work, and that the situation was serious because nonpayment of taxes threatened her home on Long Island. Ben Jaffe, acting manager of the Variety in the absence of his father, vacationing in Hot Springs, got in touch with Mr. Winchell, through whom Miss Scheff was signed for a Variety engagement.

She will appear in a scene from "Mlle. Modiste," a Victor Herbert operetta in which she once was starred, and will sing "Kiss Me Again," a memorable song she made popular.

Broudy Gets Old Job

When stage shows are resumed in the Stanley Theater Friday, after an absence of nearly a year and a half, Dave Broudy again will conduct the Stanley orchestra, and several of the musicians formerly in the organization will again be back in the pit.

The first stage show is to be a Shubert tabloid revue, "Artists and Models of 1934," featuring Jans and Whalen, Jimmy Savo, Kendall Kapps and Joe Herbert. Edith King, formerly leading woman in the Pitt, is a member of the company, too. The show opening February 23 will be headed by Ben Bernie and his gang.

Singer Is Ill

Lily Pons, noted French soprano, booked to give the fifth May Beegle concert in Syria Mosque tonight, has been compelled to cancel the engagement because of a severe cold. Tito Schipa, Metropolitan tenor, is the artist substituted for Mlle. Pons.

Opera 'Mazeppa' to Be Sung Tomorrow

Grand opera will be heard in Syria Mosque tomorrow evening, when Tschaikowsky's "Mazeppa" will be heard for the first time in Pittsburgh, under the auspices of the Ukrainian Art Theatre, Dimitri Chutro, Director. The libretto is based on the epic poem of Pushkin, and concerns the political situation created by the alliance of Mazeppa with Charles XII of Sweden against Peter the Great. Principal members of the cast include Lola Monti-Gorsey, soprano, Elena Bussinger, mezzo-soprano, Nicolai Karlash, and M. Dubinsky, baritones, Dimitri Criona and M. Didovitch, tenors, and Michail Shvetz, bass. The orchestra will be under the direction of Paul Ouglitzky, and the ballet under Dimitri Chutro.

Oklahoma City Votes Teachers Pay Boost

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 13.—(AP.) — Oklahoma City school teachers are going to get a salary increase next year. The Board of Education last night unanimously authorized a hike of at least 7 per cent—more if revenues permit—for all school employes.

Story-Topper's Sad Plight Told by Joe E. Brown

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 13.—The story is going all over Hollywood, but Joe E. Brown tells it best. It is about the group of comedians who gather in a Hollywood restaurant to swap stories. No one ever pays much attention to the man who is talking. They're all thinking of stories to top him.

So it went the other day when one of the group glumly remarked:

"I got a wire last night that my brother is dead. I feel bad about it. I hadn't written him for a year. You know how it is."

For all those who say Hollywood has no heart, here is a story.

Several nights ago, a little actress, called Ruth Stovall, was injured in an automobile accident. Ruth was striking enough to pose for the ads of a big cigaret company. She came to this crowded beauty market of ours and found the going tough. Extra work was all she could get until RKO gave her a small part in "Finishing School."

She was still doing that part when the accident occurred. In the hospital she woke up to learn that she has bad cuts on the face and legs. You can guess what that means to an actress.

Someone told Frances Dee of her predicament and Frances sent flowers to the hospital. Most practical of all, she planned to move her to a private hospital where she will see that those cuts get the best care that science has devised.

A face without scars, that will be Frances' gift to Ruth Stovall.

You might think he'd object but Bing Crosby is all for that contract Dixie Lee has just signed with Monogram Pictures. He says working will give her something to do.

Dixie smiles and admits that everybody has talked her into going back to work.

"I'm not crazy to act but I might as well," she says. "I don't like luncheons and I don't even know how to play bridge. You couldn't call me a good mixer. I'm self-conscious and, because I'm near-sighted, I'm always failing to recognize people. Sometimes, when I go into a crowded restaurant, I don't even look up for fear a friend will think I purposely didn't speak."

The strange thing is, people in Hollywood do occasionally make this mistake about Dixie. Also about Joan Bennett, who is near-sighted, too.

You'd suspect that jealousy might worry the wife of a feminine idol like Bing Crosby. But it doesn't bother Dixie. Not so long ago, in New York, a woman called her up and calmly said she was going to steal Bing. She kept on calling and Dixie kept talking to her.

All In A Day

By MARK HELLINGER

Newspaper Story.

LINGERING over our bottles of ginger ale the other night, some of the rewrite boys began talking of the old newspaper days in Chicago. There was one story that I liked particularly well, and I think I'll tell it to you here. If there are errors in a locale or two, I hope my Chicago readers will accept my apologies . . .

We'll travel back some twenty years or so, and raise our curtain on Eddie, our hero. Eddie worked on one of the evening papers—when he felt like working. Sober, he was considered one of the best reporters in Chicago. Drunk—well, he wasn't even considered.

Late one afternoon, as Eddie lounged at his desk and pondered the mysteries of life, the Managing Editor approached him.

"Eddie," grinned the boss, "how do you like airships?"

The reporter grinned right back. This episode took place, of course, before the World War, and the flying art was something of a general mystery. More, there was nothing in this world for which Eddie had less use than a flying machine of any kind.

But when a Managing Editor cracks a joke, it behooves a careful reporter to string right along. And that's what Eddie did.

"Airships?" he replied. "Why, I'm just crazy about them, boss. I love to fly. What makes you ask?"

"Because," returned the big shot, "that's the type of assignment you are now getting. I'm glad you like flying because tomorrow morning, you're going over to White City Amusement Park. They have a dirigible there that will fly over Chicago on a sightseeing trip, and we have exclusive rights to the story.

"You'll do a human interest piece on the trip. See Bickett for the rest of your instructions. And I suppose it feels pretty good to get an assignment you really like, eh?"

Eddie gulped.

"Sure, boss. Sure, I'm just tickled to death." . . .

I don't suppose I have to tell you that, when Eddie left the office a short while later, he proceeded to get himself very properly plastered. He hastened to one of the favored newspapermen's rendezvous of the day and lapped up all the rye that the boys would buy him. The more he drank, the more maudlin he became.

The other reporters were quite sympathetic. One painted a vivid picture of the terrors of dying in a dirigible crash. Another remembered a dirigible blast that killed ten people—and none of the bodies ever were found. And so on and so forth, with the stories growing more horrible as the hours passed.

Accordingly, just before Eddie passed out, he was quite certain of one thing. He knew he wasn't going on that dirigible ride the following morning. . . .

And he didn't, either. He timed himself beautifully. At the last moment, he raced like mad. And he reached the grounds just as the giant bag was clearing the towers of the park.

Did Eddie worry? Not a bit. He was too good a reporter for that. Did he have to make the trip in order to turn out an authentic yarn? Positively not! He'd simply go back downtown, give the fool thing time to return, and then walk into his office and write his story. Nothing to it.

Whistling happily, he boarded an "El" train and rattled to the business center of the town. He had a few hours to kill—and what better place to kill them than in the saloon in which he had spent most of the previous night? Thither he went, and he was soon lapping up all the ryes that anybody would buy him.

Meanwhile, the lighter-than-air machine had headed directly for the Loop after leaving the amusement park. This was Chicago's first view of such a craft, and thousands and thousands of people watched the ship as it drove its way through the clouds above.

As it reached the North River, it battled the wind as it turned and then started back toward the field. It passed over Chicago's tallest buildings and neared the end of the Loop. Near the corners above Jackson and LaSalle, it was seen to hesitate. And then, to the horror of the watchers on the street below, the big bag suddenly crumpled.

The swinging gondolas, containing seven passengers, hurtled downward. The course of horror never changed. Into the skylight of a bank plunged the gondola, the engines and the human cargo. Clerks and stenographers were working beneath that skylight—and seven of them were killed.

Seven of them, and six of the passengers on the dirigible . . .

The newspapers, as you can well imagine, went into frenzied action. Especially Eddie's sheet. One of its own men had perished in this horrible disaster; perished in the line of duty. Even the boys who didn't like Eddie began to remember nice things about him.

Hennessy, official poet of the office, immediately wrote a piece about the reporter who had died for his paper—and it was set for the front page. It was all very tragic, and all very unfortunate.

The first edition, hastily thrown together and with "EXTRA" plastered all over it, went to press. And some 10 minutes later, Eddie—slightly stewy but bearing up nobly—walked into his office, seated himself at his desk, placed some paper in his typewriter and calmly began his fake story.

He hadn't heard a word about the disaster! . . .

Oh, yes, Eddie was first all right. He was fired within an hour. And he never did get back on that sheet, or on any other paper in Chicago. He was fired—for not being dead! . . .

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J LEWIS

We have often wondered why actresses who are especially fitted physically, and are possessed of wholesome attractiveness, personal charm and ability to act are given roles that set badly with audiences. Barbara Stanwyck and Kay Francis, for instance. Miss Francis in particular. Why should she continually be inflicted with parts calling upon her to be unconventional in morals merely upon the idea that the character may be that of a person more sinned against than sinning, and that any fault is washed away by some theatrical sacrificial gesture that is far too much overworked?

Tracing the downward descent of Miss Francis in recent pictures there is a record of "Mary Stevens, M. D.," "I Loved a Woman," "House in 56th Street" and "Mandalay," in none of which has she played a wholly admirable specimen of womanhood. The worst of it is she doesn't look the type of woman who would submit to being forced by circumstances into any of the situations in which Miss Francis has found herself in the pictures named. The answer may be that no actress does have such an appearnace, and that a real artist can play any kind of a part, and that somebody has to play the parts of bad women, and not-really-bad-at-heart women as well as good women.

Well, if they do, make them look the part. Florence Reed did it in "Lullaby," on the stage—changed from a picture of innocent girlhood to one of abandoned depravity. She was a victim of circumstances, too, but the circumstances left their imprint upon her, and she reflected what change time had made.

Of course, the movies wouldn't want that—they want their central characters to be attractive. That may be a good idea in the studios, but it is not in the minds of persons experienced enough to know that sin is hideous and that there is danger in presenting it in an attractive form. Audiences cannot have complete sympathy with such characters, and the natural reaction is loss of prestige for an actress who plays such parts in a string as continuous as the one that has made up the recent characterizations of Miss Francis.

Our hope is that she will not have to play any more of them. We like her too well. Why should any actress have to play them? Why should the "facts of life," so called, be considered to embrace only the sinister elements? There are other facts of life, wholesome facts, important facts, believable facts that are just as dramatic and more digestible than a lot of trash that is supposed to be sensational, but succeeds only in arousing resentment of people who think. A photoplay perhaps need not always be purposely "uplifting" in intent, but it certainly always ought to be anything but degrading. In that statement we make such allowances as are necessary for broad comedy that is fun instead of dirt and suggestiveness.

Mortgage Interest Cut Seen in Italy

ROME, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—The newspaper Gionale d'Italia today had indicated a nationwide reduction of interest on mortgages will be ordered by the government.

Mortgage houses will be forced to reduce interest, the newspaper says, in exchange for permission to lower interest payments to their depositors. Industry, which has had to pay as high as 11 per cent interest, will be one of the chief benefiters, the newspaper added.

Do You Know As Much As Your Cat?

She's a knowing cat.

She asks for little—just her meals, a saucer of milk and a place in the sun. She gets plenty of sleep and exercise. She never worries, never frets. What is the result? Such vitality and resistance that we say, "Cats have nine lives."

What does your cat do when she is not well? She eats catnip, if she can find it. She eats grass and certain green plants to which her instinct leads her.

Your cat takes herbs for a tonic.

Did you ever stop to think that Old Mother Nature, who supplies the herbs necessary to your cat's health, has also provided the herbs necessary to your own well-being?

You don't have to hunt for them as the cat does. The herbs you need are skillfully blended and compounded in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, an old fashioned tonic that will help to restore your strength and energy.

When Your Cough Hangs On, Mix This at Home

Saves Good Money! No Cooking!

If you want the best cough remedy that money can buy, mix it at home. It costs very little, yet it's the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. To make syrup, use 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, and stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. It's no trouble at all, and gives you four times as much cough medicine for your money—a real family supply. Keeps perfectly and tastes fine.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the germ-laden phlegm, soothes and heals the inflamed membranes, clears the air passages, and thus ends a severe cough in a hurry.

Pinex is a compound of Norway Pine, in concentrated form, the most reliable healing agent for severe coughs. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Not to Team Too Often

You remember Edmund Lowe and Victor McLaglen in "What Price Glory." But do you realize that that picture was made seven years ago? Somehow one always associates those names, despite the fact that in nine out of ten pictures in which they star they are not together.

"It is dangerous for two persons to co-star too often," Lowe asserts. "It is too easy to always do the same type of role. And when you are teamed with another star, that pairing seems to be your fate unless you wait a long time between pictures.

"Recently McLaglen and I signed a contract with Charles R. Rogers to co-star in Paramount's 'No More Women.' When we signed we also agreed that we would not play together again until after July 17, 1934. That protects the producer from having two of our pictures on the market at the same time and protects us by not giving the public a chance to tire of our team. 'No More Women' will be our fifth picture together in seven years."

Rabbi Rosenbloom Latovah Speaker

the abc of pipe tobacco

The best tobacco for pipes comes from Kentucky . . and it's called "White Burley"

WE use White Burley in making Granger Rough Cut. It comes from the Blue Grass region of Kentucky—ripe, mild leaf tobacco that just about tops them all for fragrance and flavor.

From the right place on the stalk we select the kind that's best for pipes. Then we make it into Granger by Wellman's Method—and cut it up into big shaggy flakes.

"Cut rough to smoke cool" is the way pipe smokers describe Granger—try it

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair
—With—
Patricia Pitt

Many of the smart set jumped —mentally, of course—from the Nineteenth Century yesterday afternoon, represented by the Junior League's current art exhibit, to the Twentieth Century last night at the Nixon, where the latest in mystery stories, "Ten Minute Alibi" is playing.

At the Junior League, the enthusiastic arts and interests committee opened its third "show" of the year with an exhibit of portraits of early Pittsburghers, done by Nineteenth Century artists. The exhibit will be open to the public beginning tomorrow.

Aristocratic Mrs. Harmar D. Denny, Sr., presided at the tea table. And there was sherry for those who preferred it to tea, and of course, almost everyone did.

Mother of Chairman Attends Pre-View

Among those I noticed at the pre-view, the few minutes I was there, was Mrs. W. Terrell Johnson, mother of Mrs. Raymond Ford Moreland, arts and interests chairman.

Mrs. Johnson wore a smart greyed-green heavy knitted fabric, boasting beige coin dots, arranged in a diamond design, and a novelty-weave green wool swagger coat, with a fur collar.

Tyrolean Red Feather Adorns Black Turban

Mrs. J. Stuart Brown was in a novelty ribbed red wool dress with a black turban boasting a Tyrolean red feather. Mrs. W. McCook Reed in a tailored blue wool dress, Louise Reed in a green wool dress with a metal chain belt. Others I recall seeing there were Miss Sarah Bissell, Mrs. William D. Bickel, president of Junior League; Mrs. Herbert A. May, Dorothy Jarvis.

There is a tendency, as the winter continues, for many of the smart set to wear in-between costumes to the theater—sort of Sunday night affairs. Mrs. Wilmer M. Jacoby, for example, wore a Russian-looking black velvet turban, trimmed with a band of white fur, with her black crepe dinner dress.

And the young David McCargos (she was Gretchen Bickford) were in street clothes. Margaret Phillips and her fiance, A. Craig Succop, I noticed during intermission. Margaret's black velvet dinner-type dress had quaint puff sleeves of heavy old ivory lace.

Playwright Mrs. Chapin There With Husband

Playwright Mrs. Newton Chapin, with Mr. Chapin, was there, home from New York, where her play opened a week ago. Mrs. Chapin appeared in an interesting gown of shimmering yellow net and chiffon, embroidered with scintillating sequins.

Others I noticed at the theater were Helen McCloskey in red velvet; Katharine MacCloskey in a green crepe gown with a matching jacket; the James O. Flowers, Mrs. A. S. F. Keister, Miss Mary Provost, Mrs. William Maclay Hall, Elizabeth Jenkins, Mary Carroll, Mrs. E. P. McKinney, Frances Fitzgerald in sapphire blue lace with a touch of red at the waistline.

And I had a glimpse of Mrs. Edwin Rhea, of John O. Burgwin, the E. W. Gwinners, Mrs. Frederick Gwinner III, Mrs. H. Allen Machesney, Mrs. Simon T. Patterson and Miss Eleanor Gillespie, Mrs. Kirkland W. Todd, Louise Baton, Mrs. Enoch Rauh, Mrs. Sidney Hammong, Mrs. Lawrence Knapp and Mrs. A. N. Otterbein.

VIVACIOUS MEMBER OF THE YOUNG SET

MISS DOLLY MEYER . . . MISS ELLIS' PUPIL, SHE MOVES IN THE YOUNGER SCHOOL SET.

Dilworth Hall Group Guests at Bridge

Mrs. Rose E. Willis, of Beechwood boulevard, is entertaining members and friends of the Dilworth Hall Alumnae Association at a dessert bridge in her home this afternoon for the benefit of the Janet L. Brownlee fund.

She is having 15 tables of bridge, and the affair will be in the form of a white elephant party. Mrs. George B. Moore and other members of the social committee are assisting the hostess.

Garden Club Exhibit To Start on March 1

One of the most interesting events to anticipate now is the exhibit of all things pertaining to gardens to be arranged by the Garden Club of Allegheny County, with the aid of Carnegie Institute, for March 1 at Carnegie Institute. And the exhibit will continue throughout March.

There'll be a committee of Garden Club members each day to serve as hostesses, and guides to groups representing garden clubs or other groups in the Tri-State district.

Mrs. W. Maclay Hall Chairman of Hostesses

Mrs. William Maclay Hall will be chairman of the hostess committee, assisted by Mrs. Alexander J. Barron and Mrs. Alexander Hunter.

In addition to the garden exhibit, to include models of different types of gardens, garden furniture and the like, there will be a display on the balcony of flower arrangements. Different clubs will have this exhibit on different days, and will compete for honors.

Pitt Group Giving Tea On Campus

The freshman women's cabinet of the University of Pittsburgh is giving a tea at Heinz House today, in honor of the mothers of all freshman women and also new freshman women on the campus this semester. The party will be from 2:30 to 5 o'clock, and entertaining skits showing the nature and scope of each activity will be featured by the seven units of the freshman class.

The members of the freshman women's cabinet sponsoring this mothers' tea include the officers of the freshman class, Miss Dorothy Holbrook, president; Miss Katherine Hardy, vice president; Miss Betty Reiger, treasurer; Miss Janet Gass, secretary, and Miss Elinor Scott, Women's Self Government Association representative.

Dr. Florence Teagarden and Mrs. Gladys Iliff will pour. The guest list includes Dean Thyrsa W. Amos, Miss Isabelle Anderson, Miss Helen P. Rush, Dr. Auleene Marley Jamison, Mrs. Stephen Tracy, Miss Helen Battrick, Miss Elizabeth White, and Miss Emily Irvine.

Dr. Whitney to Speak Before Liberty P. T. A.

At its meeting in the school this evening the Liberty Parent-Teacher Association will hear Dr. Gerald D. Whitney, professor of vocational education, University of Pittsburgh, speak. Mrs. H. C. Williams will provide music for the program.

State President Addresses Business Women's Club At Luncheon Here

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Miss Susan Rhodes, of Columbia, president of the Pennsylvania Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, had a busy day in Pittsburgh and vicinity yesterday. She was interviewed twice on the radio by Louis L. Kaufman, Globe Trotter for the Sun-Telegraph, met and addressed the Pittsburgh B. P. W. Club at luncheon in Kaufmann's and was guest of honor and speaker last night at the McKeesport Club's anniversary dinner.

She spoke of the "honor, responsibility and obligation" of the federation, which is carrying out the purpose for which it was formed—to be better business women in a better business world. In its loyalty and service the federation is not only a business proposition but a friendly proposition, leading to a richer life. She spoke, too, on the stabilizing and adjusting which is woman's definite and particular contribution to business life.

In an interview Miss Rhodes dwelt especially on the national federation's 10-year objective which was adopted two and a half years ago—development of leadership in economic thinking and the social implications involved in order that there may be brought about such adjustments as will give men and women alike an opportunity to develop their capacities and to be adequately rewarded for their labors.

Chicago Girl Wed In East End Church Rites

At 11 o'clock yesterday morning in the rectory of the Sacred Heart Church, the Rev. Victor Kennedy solemnized the marriage of Miss Vernyce Minnette Quamme, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Quamme, of Chicago and Racine, Wis., to William L. Guckert, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Guckert, of Howe street, East End.

Mrs. C. Earl Scholl, sister of the bridegroom, was the matron of honor and Frederick C. Magill, of Rochester, N. Y., formerly of Pittsburgh, served as best man.

The bride wore an ensemble of eleanor blue and grey kidskin, and carried a muff of orchids and lilies of the valley.

There was a breakfast in the Fort Pitt Hotel for only the members of the families after the ceremony. After a honeymoon in Miami, Fla., Mr. and Mrs. Guckert, Jr., will be at home in Cleveland.

Margaret Ladley Wed at Church Ceremony

Mrs. Albert Edward Mancuso was Miss Margaret M. Ladley, daughter of Charles White Ladley, of Beechview avenue, before her marriage this morning at 10:30 o'clock to the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Mancuso, of Dagmer avenue.

Mrs. Frank Lia, sister of the bridegroom, as matron of honor and Frank Lapin was the best man.

The ceremony took place in the rectory of St Catherine's Church with the Rev James Hanlon officiating.

Mrs. Mancuso

After a wedding breakfast in the Ladley home there will be a reception and dinner. Mr. and Mrs. Mancuso will be at home in Beechview avenue.

Women's Press Club To Mark Anniversary

Members of the Women's Press Club will dress to represent a motion picture when they have their forty-second anniversary dinner at the College Club Saturday. Reservations are to be made by noon Thursday with Mrs. Charles M. Bregg, who is serving under Mrs. Vincent Drayne, general chairman. Other members of the committee include Mrs. Anne Ryan Lesh, president of the club; Miss Marion Brunot Haymaker and Mrs. John A. Shoemaker.

Miss Altman Marries at Latrobe

At a pretty home wedding Saturday noon in the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Altman, of Latrobe, their grand-daughter, Miss Bernice Altman, became the bride of Marquard H. Arndt, of Vallejo, Cal. Following a reception in the Hotel Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Arndt left for Washington, D. C., where they will reside. The bride is a niece of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. McDowell, of Regent Square.

Peace League Members Meet Congressman

Fifteen members of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, headed by Mrs. George Bray, chairman of the Pittsburgh branch, met by appointment with Congressman Henry Ellenbogen on Sunday. This is the first of three visits to legislators scheduled for this week, in which league representatives will make a plea for decrease of naval armament and an investigation of munitions interests. Senator David Aiken Reed and Representative Clyde Kelly are to be interviewed later.

Counsel Service Society Will Hear State Aide

Miss Helen D. Pigeon, of the bureau of corrections, Department of Welfare, Harrisburg; will speak at a luncheon to be held by the Counsel Service Society in Kaufmann's on Thursday. Her subject is "Protective Work For Adult Minors and Adolescents." Miss Pigeon is a former executive secretary of the International Association of Policewomen and as such has traveled extensively in all parts of the United States and Canda.

Newlyweds Making Home in Avalon St.

TELL IT TO ELSIE

By ELSIE ROBINSON

All of Us Must Face Ugly Circumstances

"Ingratitude is sharper than a serpent's tooth!"

Somewhere "Les Miserables" read that line, and she's here to testify with big, wet sobs, that every word of it is true. All because of what? All because of Betty.

Dear Elsie:

Will you give me some help? Mother says I am to blame for not using my head. Oh, probably I am—but what would you do in a case like this?

Last May I met a girl. She was working then, but soon she lost her job and things got bad for her. She was soon down and out—and I mean down and out. Well, I wasn't working either, but my brothers gave me money for clothes and things, and I gave her a lot of dresses—twelve to be exact—because she was practically without clothes. My sister gave her shoes, hats and stockings.

Every night this friend and I—I'll call her Betty—went walking. In June we met two nice boys and began going out foursome, and I fell in love with Jack, one of them.

Well, in September Betty got a job as housemaid. She met another girl doing the same work. They got chummy, and Betty began cheating on me. She introduced her new friend to the boys, and they sneaked out foursome without telling me.

VICTIM OF LIES

One night Betty and the Boy Friend both phoned that they didn't feel well and weren't going out, and later I ran into them at a dance, where I went with my brother. Betty tried to make excuses, but I wouldn't listen. She put all the blame on the boys.

After this Jack never showed up. I met him one day, and when I asked him about it he told me a lot of lies Betty had told him about me—how I was supposed to be married, and was going to marry another fellow as soon as I "got my divorce," and how she'd gone out with him and made him promise not to tell me. She told him I was just stringing him along, and a lot of other things. I told him they were lies, but he wouldn't believe me. And he had cared for me, too.

Later I met Betty, and told her what I thought of her. But, of course, she denied everything, although seven different people had told me what she'd said.

After all I did for her, how can she be such a two-faced liar? I lost most of my friends on account of her. No one liked her. She was crude and uneducated, and her manners were atrocious. But I stuck by her in everything and almost made a new girl of her—and she repays me like this!

Please help me. Life is bare, gloomy, miserable. I'd rather be dead than live on like this. What shall I do?

LES MISERABLES.

What'll you do? First—stop thinking of yourself as a Pitiful Victim, Sissy. You're nothing of the sort. You're just a generous youngster who let her heart run away with her head—and who is now facing the unhappy consequences.

HAPPENS OFTEN

There is nothing unusual in that. In a world which includes 57 varieties of cheapskates and moochers, as well as Regular Folks, one is bound to be short-changed. It happens to all of us—and it keeps right on happening, as long as we live. And the more generously and bravely we live, the oftener it is apt to happen.

But what of it? That's life. And it isn't the thing that happens to us that breaks us—but the way we take it.

So prove the stuff that's in you, little girl, by taking this like a game sport. You had the misfortune to befriend a lying tramp. But your generosity was fine, even if her response wasn't. And your own decency stands, even if her loyalty fails. So, in the end, while this experience may sicken you and smart a bit, it can't really hurt you. It's her bad luck, not yours.

So snap out of the mopes, honey. You stubbed your toes. That's nothing! Pick yourself up, dust off the old pep and get going. The lies this girl has told can't keep you down unless you, yourself, let them. So on your way! Prove to folks that you're regular, and you'll find plenty of friends and fun—and love.

How dull, lifeless hair gleams with life and lustre this way

Good bye dull, faded looking hair forever! That's what thousands of women are saying thanks to Geral—the original make-up for the hair. Geral is not a dye, bleach or henna—nor does it contain oil. Applied in a moment, Geral beautifies the hair as rouge, powder and lipstick beautify the face. No matter what the color of your hair—blonde, auburn, brown, brunette or gray—no matter how lifeless and drab, Geral will impart NOT an artificial look but the natural life, sheen and softness of youthful girlhood. Obtain Geral at all good toilet counters and drug stores.

WORN SHOES

THAT YOU THINK "GONE" ARE NEVER SO FAR GONE THAT WE CAN'T GIVE THEM NEW LIFE.

We lengthen and widen shoes . . . dye (not paint) them, redress suedes or convert them into smooth leather for Spring wear . . . in fact, we correct every ill your favorite shoes have.

JOSEPH HORNE CO

New for Now

● For immediate wear, mostly everywhere, we have exhilarating new Spring dresses of black and navy crepes, many made versatile with jackets. Tailored touches of white pique and taffeta applied in an ultra-sophisticated manner animate one high fashion group. For instance, see that crisp, stand-up pique collar on the tempting black dress sketched. See those crisp wide gauntlet cuffs.

All dresses, of course, have the immense chic you expect to find here . . . and always do.

THROUGH THE SPYGLASS

Viewing the New

You little shoppers who want to learn the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column day by day ...call GRANT 6500 ... and ASK FOR THE SPYGLASS. Or send in a stamped self-addressed envelope for your reply. THE SPYGLASS is always on the alert, peering out new "finds"...and you will be answered promptly!

Pajamas with a new spirit! Pajamas that breathe of the Southland . . . and yet have a place in our daily lives 'round h'yar!

Terry cloth pajamas . . . in two styles—with trous and a tuck-in shirt, or the trous and a three-quarter loose swagger coat! The former at $2.95 . . . the latter at $5.95 . . . and every pair of them in good colorings like blue and white, yellow and brown, rose and pink, red and white. All fast color (scrub them as frantically as you please and see how they can "take it!"). Large, medium, small.

Handsome is as handsome does, maybe! But we'd advise looking into the mirror to make sure. And the new mirrors which are going on sale now for $1 are worth looking into (literally and figuratively!). Venetian style or framed in polychrome wood, round or upright.

Others of plate glass at $2.98. In semi-Venetian style — wood frames in smart two-tone finish.

Sports shoes to walk in with springey stride! And only $1.95. We were all agog over these new smartsters when we came across them t'other day in all the glory of their black pig leather . . . moccasin styles . . . attached or detachable flaps (which give one such a nice feeling as they "flap" up and down). A variety of leathers . . . all colors such as brown, dark brown, smoked elk, parchment calf, and others!

Nothing like wearing an egg beater on your chest! The insignia of the housewife . . . or is it? Because, one of the stores has some swanky chrome pins now which are the exact image of egg whisks . . . in miniature size, of course. And they're awfully trick for $1!

Thinking that you might like to watch time flying we bring you the news of these wrist watches (sports types) with leather straps and 2 jewels! Very nice and neat . . . and a real bargain for $5!

And you might try young sonny boy out in his time-keeping by presenting him with one of the nickel-cased "turnips" which are to be had at $1. Nothing like a bright and shiny pocket watch to teach the youngster how to get in from play on time.

To find pillows like these at a mere $1 is a feat . . . and we bow low to their buyer!

FOR . . . they're of homespun or printed linen . . . with boxed edges or plain ones . . . fringed or bound . . . in a variety of shades and shapes . . . all nice large sizes . . . Kapok filled . . . and a joy for the sunroom, the living room, the children's room and later on the porch! WE mean every word of it.

Girls Here Guests at Cornell

ITHACA, N. Y., Feb. 13.—Cornell University's annual Junior Week began Wednesday and continued through Saturday evening. Numerous activities of all sorts were scheduled, including two basketball games, with Cornell against Syracuse and Penn, a wrestling meet with Syracuse, two performances by the Cornell Dramatic Club, a concert by the Musical Clubs, and numerous formal and informal parties and tea dances given by the fraternities. Climax of Junior Week, as always, is the Junior Prom, held Friday evening.

Among those who were guests at house parties here were Miss Helen Campe, Miss Harriet Erickson, Miss Coral Frank and Miss Bobby Main, of Pittsburgh, guests at Delta Tau Delta.

Miss Frances Alter of South Dallas avenue, was a guest at Alpha Delta Phi houseparty.

Miss Loraine Kelly of Beacon street, attended a house party at Psi Upsilon fraternity, and Miss Reelsa Smith, of Pitsburgh, was a guest at a house party at Alpha Chi Omega fraternity.

Spanish Republic Will Survive, Club Told

Sisley Huddleston's interrogative subject, "Will the Spanish Republic Survive?" was answered in the affirmative when he spoke before the Twentieth Century Club yesterday morning. Mr. Huddleston, who makes annual visits to Spain, sketched the history of the country from the time de Rivera became dictator and mentioned the many things he had done for the country.

Spain, Mr. Huddleston said, is a paradoxical country, a combination of the old and the new and despite the fact that the Spanish are the slowest people in the world, they now have the most progressive constitution and are setting an example of established democracy.

Alumnae Here Hostesses For Zeta Tau Alpha

Miss Vujnovic

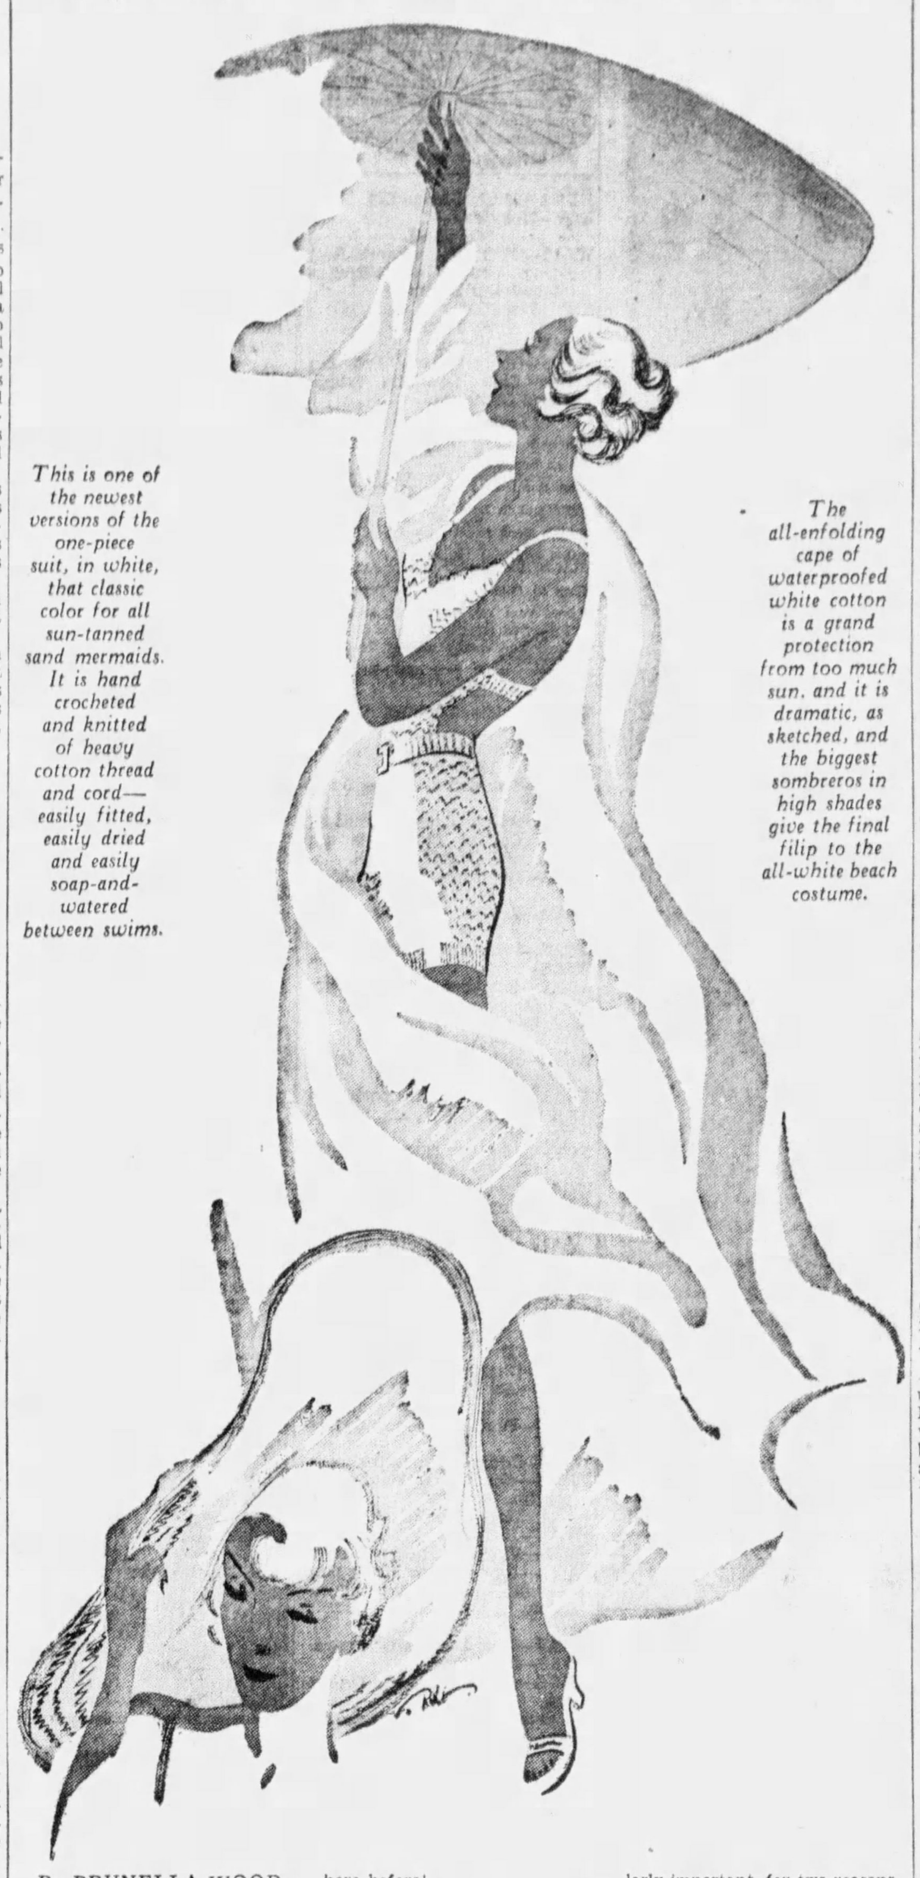
COTTON IS SEA-GOING STUFF



This is one of the newest versions of the one-piece suit, in white, that classic color for all sun-tanned sand mermaids. It is hand crocheted and knitted of heavy cotton thread and cord—easily fitted, easily dried and easily soap-and-watered between swims.

The all-enfolding cape of waterproofed white cotton is a grand protection from too much sun, and it is dramatic, as sketched, and the biggest sombreros in high shades give the final filip to the all-white beach costume.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THERE SEEMS to be no doubt about it that all the reports of brief bathing suits are too, too true. And do the girls look swell in their new models that are more like the French idea of sea suits than any of those that we have seen around here before!

The baby pants turn out to be very becoming, although they belong properly to the girls who really get active in the water, rather than to those who prefer beach lizarding to swimming.

ACCESSORIES TO the very brief swimming suit are particularly important, for two reasons. One is good Old Sol, who burns up the very much exposed body past the confines of comfort. The other is a purely esthetic reason. Women look pretty stark if they pose about with very few coverings, and a graceful cape, robe, or poncho helps them out a lot.

Mt. Lebanon Music, Drama Groups Present Program

Two hundred guests attended yesterday's general meeting of the Mt. Lebanon Women's Club when the program was presented by the department of music and drama. The drama offering was the one-act play "None of Them Perfect", written by Sophie Kerr, former Pittsburgh newspaper woman, and given an adroit preformance by Mrs. C. A. Axford, Mrs. A. M. Ramsey, Mrs. S. Ulmar, Mrs. E. C. Noyes, Mrs. L. A. Wallgren, Mrs. R. S. Godard, and Mrs. H. G. Sands under the direction of Mrs. R. F. Kunz.

Using the title "Aufwiedersehen", the music department presented a tuneful sketch depicting a farewell party for a German university student. The script which was written by Mrs. Adolph Batz, furnished opportunity for the use of several well-known favorites including "Elsa's Dream" from "Loghengrin", sung by Mrs. M. L. Gardner, "Still as the Night", by Mrs. E. J. Kreiling, and "Thy Blue Eyes", by Mrs. B. K. Conaway.

Solo lines in the opus were sung by Mrs. Adolph Krebs, Mrs. A. E. Loeffler, Mrs. Batz, Mrs. F. W. Ely, Mrs. W. K. Estep, and Mrs. Carl Cappel. A violin solo by Helen Hunt Allen and a reading by Mrs. E. J. Gealy were also included. Accompanists were Mrs. Cappel and Mrs. A. J. Volmrich.

Whose Fault?

When a Child Won't Study

"Kept after school!" And it isn't the child's fault, or the teacher's. His mother is to blame. How can a boy get his lessons when his senses are dulled day after day by dosing with sickening purgatives? When a child's bowels are stagnant they need help, of course. But not some drastic drug to upset the stomach, perhaps weaken the entire system; or form the laxative habit. On the right, parents will find a happy solution of this problem: Here's a boy who gets good marks, has time and energy for play. He is never ill, hardly ever has so much as a cold. When he does show any symptoms of being sluggish, his mother knows just what to do. She gives him a little California Syrup of Figs—and that is all. It's a natural, fruity laxative that is agreeable to take, and its gentle laxative action comes from senna. Parents are urged to use just pure California Syrup of Figs. Be sure bottle says 'California'.

Outlook Alliance Program For Foundation Arranged

The program of music and readings for the Outlook Alliance's Stephen C. Foster Scholarship Foundation on Thursday will be presented by Elsie Breese Mitchell, Miss Sarah Jamison Logan, Mrs. Elizabeth Lloyd Kirkpatrick, Mrs. Robert L. Finlayson, Mrs. Herbert Lytle, Mrs. H. Kloman Schmidt, Mrs. Josephine Blume, Miss Mazie Sybert and Mrs. Martin Leisder. Dr. Harvey B. Gaul will speak.

Aides for the affair, which is to be given both afternoon and evening in the Congress of Clubs, are Mrs. W. A. Thompson, Mrs. William Early, Mrs. Harry Ralpp Phillips, Mrs. Perin Peoples, Mrs. R. G. Dorrance, Mrs. A. L. Daily, Mrs. George Jones, Mrs. S. A. Myers, Mrs. John Fricke and Mrs. A. K. Brady. Honors will be shared by Mrs. Marion Foster Welch, daughter of Stephen Foster, her daughter, Mrs. Jessie [illegible] and Miss Matilda Orr Hays, honorary chairman of the scholarship foundation committee.

A special dinner, for which reservations are to be made at Congress House, will be served at six o'clock.

Rockledge Club Names New Officers

Annual election held yesterday by the Rockledge Garden Club made Mrs. F. D. Newbury president; Mrs. Howard K. Jones, vice president; Mrs. J. R. Wylie, Jr., recording and Mrs. W. J. Hagar, corresponding secretary; Mrs. A. W. Johnston, treasurer, and Mrs. W. A. Jordan and Mrs. A. P. Lindsay, directors. Charles H. Lehmann, of McCann's, gave an interesting talk on "Modern Trends in Marketing," illustrating it with several baskets of foods, which were presented to the club.

Mrs. W. F. McCrady will be hostess for the March 12 meeting of the club at her home in Briar Cliff road.

The stories of the persecution of Jews in Germany are overdrawn, Ellery Walter told the Sewickley Valley Woman's Club in his talk on "The German Youth Movement" yesterday. Germany's youth, in order to save the country from Communism, has turned to the extreme of Fascism, he said, going on to speak of Hitler's magnetic personality, which inspires and draws men to him. Much of the detail of government was gone into by the speaker, who also gave his views of conditions in this country.

Mrs. Ralph W. McKenzie, of Center street, Wilkinsburg, will be hostess at a luncheon for members of Chapter G, P. E. O. on Thursday. Following the business meeting, the program will be presented by Mrs. A. K. Tinker who will read a paper on "Chinaware," and Mrs. P. M. Browning who will have a paper on "The Barrymores."

The Soubrette Club held its first social affair in the home of Miss Eleanor Goldman, Alderson street, Friday evening. Miss Rose Cohen has been elected president of the organization, and other officers are Miss Dorothy Cohen, vice president and social chairman; Miss Belle Slavkin, secretary-treasurer.

* * *

The meeting of the Jewish League of Women Voters has been postponed from today until tomorrow and will be held at the Day Nursery in Center avenue. Charles Sable will preside and will introduce the speaker, Attorney Alexander Cooper.

ENTIRE STOCK FUR COATS 1/2 PRICE

Do you realize what this means? It means that EVERY coat in the Meyer Jonasson stocks—is now at just one-half of what it was earlier in the season. It means coats of every description—every model and kind and price—are yours now—to-morrow—at this huge reduction—despite the fact that right now raw furs have advanced as much as 60%—and will unquestionably cost you more next season (Europe for the first time in years is buying great quantities of American raw furs, because of the favorable exchange).

Therefore we counsel you to take a good look at your own fur wardrobe this evening, realize what is happening, what one-half off means when associated with furs bearing the Meyer Jonasson label—and lose no time in getting to our third floor to-morrow, for YOUR fur coat at one-half price. Sale prices start at $9[illegible]

WOUNDED VETERANS, TAX TALK :-: Ruth Etting Seth Parker :-: ON AIR TONIGHT

Injured Vets Recall War Experience

Men who have seen the most of war talk the least about it.

But this evening, a group of World War veterans who have weathered the withering fire of machine guns and artillery; breathed the dragon's breath of liquid fire and inhaled the acid fumes of mustard gas, realizing that another generation soon may face the same—and worse—horrors of war, have consented to tell the radio audience of their experiences in No Man's Land.

On crutches, wheel-chairs and in hospital cots, they will be brought to a WCAE microphone, in the Veterans' Hospital at Aspinwall, to recall vividly the memories of war that they long have tried to banish from their minds.

Jim Hays, writer of narratives of the Navy, and Sun-Telegraph Aircaster, will conduct a 15-minute hospital interview with the wounded veterans, over WCAE at 7:15.

GLOBE TROTTING

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Tomorrow is Ash Wednesday and I'm glad. Too many of you of late have been gnashing your teeth and muttering nasty remarks because your announcement wasn't made on the radio. I don't blame you.

If my club had gone to the trouble of arranging some special affair and I had asked for announcement to be made and it wasn't made I'd be angry, too, especially if I was a regular subscriber to the paper.

What has all this got to do with Ash Wednesday? Well, a lot! It is just before the Lenten season that everyone who has been thinking that sooner or later she is going to give a party for the girls in the club realizes that if it is to be given before Lent it better be right away. The wherefores and therefores are obvious.

I'll need lots of time during the Lenten weeks to make up on the birthday announcements now some several days in arrears.

Oh, yes, besides being Ash Wednesday tomorrow is Valentine Day. And so "Roses are red, and violets, etc."

Gov. Lehman Champions Our Cause

Governor Herbert H. Lehman of New York espouses the cause of the Sun-Telegraph, in a broadcast on behalf of economy in State and Local Government, over NBC-KDKA tonight at 7:15.

Governor Lehman's speech is the first in a series of programs on the general subject, "Reviving Local Governments."

The new series will present a picture of local governmental conditions in various parts of the country, pointing out faults and suggesting remedies, with the aim of reducing governmental costs.

The Sun-Telegraph is publishing daily articles on the same subject.

Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, president of Allegheny County League of Women Voters, will be featured on the network series April 3, explaining to a nation-wide audience the local governments of Pittsburgh and Allegheny County.

Read How New Mineral Concentrate Rich in "FOOD IODINE" Is Building Up Thousands of Nervous, Skinny, Rundown Folks Where All Else Fails

Here is a new way to add 3 to 8 lbs. in 12 days or it doesn't cost you a penny. Thousands of skinny, scrawny, rundown people have tried it and are amazed at this astounding new natural way to win back health and weight. Yet these results are not unusual. Doctors know how vitally necessary are natural food minerals, often so woefully lacking in even the most carefully selected vegetable diets. Unless your system gets the proper amount of these minerals, many of them needed in only the tiniest quantities, even the best food fails to nourish you, fails to build rich, red blood, firm flesh and sturdy muscles. This lack of mineralization results in the failure to digest starches and fats in the normal diet. It makes no difference whether your appetite is good or bad, your food is converted into poisonous wastes instead of firm flesh and tireless energy.

Food specialists, however, have only recently discovered a marvelous source of practically every single mineral essential to body needs. It is known as Kelp-a-Malt, a pleasant, easy to take vegetable concentrate made from a luxuriant sea plant from the Pacific Ocean combined with diastatic malt extract in delicious, pleasant-tasting tablets. It provides in easily assimilable form iron, copper and manganese for tireless vigor and vitality, calcium and phosphorus for strong teeth and bones, sulphur for proper elimination, sodium, potassium and magnesium to correct stomach gas, acidity and indigestion.

Supplies Newer Form of Food Iodine

And most important—Kelp-a-Malt is the richest known source of the newer form of food iodine, the lack of which experts in nutrition maintain is our foremost national health problem.

Scientists know that the blood, liver and vital glands of the body contain definite, determined quantities of iodine which heretofore have been difficult to obtain. A recent report indicates that 60 million people in the United States alone fail to get enough iodine in their daily food. To overcome this deficiency, dietitians suggest that we should all eat two plates of raw oysters—heretofore regarded as the best source of iodine—each week, to overcome this appalling iodine shortage. Yet Kelp-a-Malt, this newest iodine concentrate, contains thirteen hundred times more food iodine than oysters!

Gains 7 Lbs. in 10 Days

Read what Kelp-a-Malt users say.

"I have gained 7 pounds in 10 days since taking Kelp-a-Malt and have a continuous appetite." W. C. K., Mt. Vernon, N. Y. . . . "I have gained 6 pounds on my first bottle of Kelp-a-Malt. I am very much pleased." D. E. G., Silvertown, Va. . . . "Kelp-a-Malt helped my nerves and blood." M. S., Deer River, Minn. . . . "I find one bottle of Kelp-a-Malt has put seven pounds on me already." F. M., Dunkirk, N. Y. . . . "I have gained 9 pounds on your Kelp-a-Malt." L. L. P., Hannibal, Mo.

Try Kelp-a-Malt for a single week. Watch your appetite improve, firm flesh appear instead of scrawny hollows. Feel the tireless vigor and vitality it brings you. It not only improves your looks, but your health as well. It corrects sour, acid stomach. Gas, indigestion and all the usual distress commonly experienced by the undernourished and the underweight disappear. Contains no yeast—doesn't cause bloating.

Money Back Guarantee

Prove the worth of this amazing weight builder today. Two weeks are required to effect a change in the mineralization of the body. At the end of that time, if you have not gained at least 8 pounds, do not look better, feel better and have more endurance than ever before, send back the unused tablets and every penny of your money will be cheerfully refunded.

Introductory Offer

Don't wait any longer. Regain alluring curves and youthful energy this easy, scientific way. 100 Jumbo size Kelp-a-Malt tablets—4 to 8 times the size of ordinary tablets—cost but little.

Wanted shades, but not all shades in all plains—all shades in prints.

Not every day, season, or year such a sale—it's the first time all the foremost American makes combine—at a price so radically low! Look at the famous names on the bolts (sorry, we can't publish them!) You'll find any and all for your favorite makers' silks at 68c. Artistic prints! Subtle colorings! Plains—genius in design. Lights. Darks. Plaids. Florals. Stripes . . . It makes us almost "dizzy" to think of the thousands of Pittsburgh women who will whisk up dresses from these brand-new, up-to-the-minute silks fashion sponsors for Spring—at fractions of today's wholesale cost!

*Because of the Low Price we can't name them, but they're tagged on every bolt.

No One Will Guess This Is a Maternity Dress!

Boggs & Buhl introduces to Pittsburgh a thorrough collection of Maternity Dresses so adroitly styled than even your nearest and severest will be so-surprised to find out what you're wearing!

The radical difference in these dresses is that they look young, smart, and spirited. Not old lady styles, not good, large size adjustable coat dresses—but the newest and freshest Paris ideas adapted and adopted — such as the built-up shoulderline, cleverly luring the eye to the upper part of the figure.

We have them in every kind of daytime dress, and in dinner dresses—unusual to find in any circumstances. We invite you to see them, especially if they can fill a distinct need for you. $10.95—$39.75. Model sketched, $29.75.

HIGH SCHOOL CLUB WINS RECIPE PRIZE

New Brighton Group Given Award for Candy Formula

Today, as well as the individual prizes generally awarded excellent recipes, there is a $1 prize which is going to a group, the Home Economics Club of New Brighton High School. When interested members of the junior and senior classes at the school recently organized the Economics Club one of the first things they did was to hold a candy sale. All the candies sold were made by the girls themselves and they proved so popular that the club decided to send the recipes in to Prudence Penny. And with good result, too, as its name in the list of winners proves.

Mrs. Ida Hartman also has a recipe so popular among her friends that it has induced her to submit it to the Sun-Telegraph. After giving the recipe she adds a little note:

"Fruit juices are not only healthful and valuable for their mineral salts, but are particularly tempting to the jaded appetite . . . in drinks and gelatin salads. The following recipe for pears jellied in grenadine is appropriate for the main luncheon or supper dish, or in small portions for convalescents."

You, too, must have recipes which win the admiring praise of all your guests. Send in your methods to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, not forgetting the return may be a $5 prize or one of ten $1 prizes awarded daily. Since so many recipes are received in every mail, it is impossible to return any of them.

Five Dollar Prize Winner

GEETRUDE PRICE,

HOT FUDGE WHIFFS

Bake your favorite chocolate cake in muffin tins. Scoop out the inside of the cake and fill the hollow with whipped cream and replace the top. Cover each cake with hot fudge sauce. Hot fudge sauce (six servings):

One cup sugar.
One square grated chocolate.
One tablespoon cornstarch.
One-third cup milk.
Two tablespoons corn syrup.
One tablespoon butter.
One tablespoon vanilla.

Mix all ingredients, but the butter and vanilla, and stir over boiling water until sugar has dissolved. Cook in double boiler without stirring until mixture forms a soft ball in cold water. Add butter and vanilla. Serve on cakes.

Ten $1 Prize Winners

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB,
New Brighton High School, New Brighton.
OPERA FONDANT

Two cups granulated sugar.
Two tablespoons light corn syrup.
One cup cream—One cup milk—Four tablespoons butter may be used instead.

Cook together until they form a medium soft ball in ice water. Pour on tins which have been rinsed in cold water. When cool stir with a wooden spoon until the mass is creamy, then knead with the hands until perfectly smooth. Add candied fruit and nuts, coarsely chopped. Knead only enough to mix and mold into small pieces. These may be dipped in chocolate if desired.

EVADENE BERKHISER,
447 Kossuth street, Rochester.
SHRIMPS IN PEPPERS

Two cups cooked shrimps (fresh or canned).
One tablespoon butter.
One-half teaspoon mustard.
One-half cup bread crumbs.
Six green peppers.
One egg.
One-fourth cup chopped celery.

Cut off stems of peppers or tops and remove the seeds and veins, then soak in salt water for an hour. Mix the shrimps and the remainder of ingredients together, drain the peppers and fill with the stuffing. Bake in a moderate oven for 20 minutes. These may be baked in tomato soup if desired.

MRS. H. M. BELL,
407 Cowell avenue, Oil City.
STRAWBERRY OMELET

This is an original recipe and very delicious. It is especially appropriate at this time of the year, when one's appetite is likely to be somewhat jaded and need a little coaxing. And strawberries, as well as eggs, are now so reasonably priced.

One pint strawberries.
Five eggs.
One-third cup milk.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
One-half teaspoon cornstarch.

Wash and stem berries, cut in half if large, and mix with one-half cup powdered sugar. Separate eggs, beat yolks until light color; add salt, cornstarch and milk; fold in stiffly beaten whites. Pour into omelet pan; over slow fire cook for five minutes. Add one cup berries (no juice), spreading carefully over omelet. Place in hot oven five to eight minutes to finish cooking. Fold on hot platter. Pour remaining berries and juice over this.

MISS MARGARET MICHALKO
336 Price avenue, North Braddock.
LAMB IN POTATO SHELLS.

Select eight large and uniformed size potatoes, peel and cut; slice off top of each potato and with a teaspoon scoop out centers, leaving a thick shell. Brown on all sides and fill with lamb and onion dressing. Arrange in a casserole and add one tablespoon tomato paste, one cup of water, one-half teaspoon salt and one-eighth teaspoon pepper. Cook twenty minutes. Serves eight.

MRS. A. PETTERSON,
Box 82, Springdale.
SPANISH CASSEROLE

One-fourth cup butter.
One small onion, minced.
One green pepper, minced.
Two cups tomatoes, puree or canned tomato soup.
One teaspoon salt.
One tablespoon sugar.
One-eighth teaspoon paprika.
Thirty-four flake crackers coarsely crumbled.
One-half cup sliced canned or cooked mushrooms (optional).

Heat three tablespoons butter in pan, add onion and green pepper and brown lightly. Add tomatoes and seasoning and bring to boiling point. Reserve one-fourth cup of finely crumbled crackers and add the rest of the crackers and mushrooms. Pour into greased casserole, sprinkle with the fine cracker crumbs and dot with the remaining butter. Bake in hot oven (450 degrees F.) about 15 minutes. Six portions.

MRS. IDA HARTMAN,
1684 Leslyn avenue, Carrick.
PEARS JELLIED IN GRENADINE

One can choice pears.
One cup grenadine.
One-half cup pineapple juice.
One-half cup orange juice.
One-fourth cup apricot juice.
One-fourth cup lemon juice.
Two tablespoons gelatin.
One-half cup water.
Small jar green cherries.

Drain pears and chill fruit. Prepare an aspic of one cup grenadine and the fruit juices. Heat to boiling point; add gelatin softened in ½ cup water. Stir well until dissolved; cool. Put a green cherry in hollow of each pear, arrange upside down in the molds and pour over grenadine aspic. Chill in refrigerator. When set, serve on lettuce with mayonnaise to which a little whipped cream has been added.

MRS. C. A. ECKERT,
270 Beaver road, Emsworth.
GRECIAN STEW

Two pounds pork loin cut in cubes.
Six large onions.
One can tomatoes.
One can green beans.

Simmer the cubed pork and chopped onions in two tablespoons of lard for 10 minutes. Add tomatoes and beans and simmer for about two hours. Season to taste. This served on mashed potatoes, makes a very delicious dish for eight people.

MRS. BANKS FETZER,
277 Jefferson street, Brookville.
CIGARS

One package cream cheese.
One-fourth pound dried beef, cut thin.
Horseradish, grated.

Mix cheese with small tablespoon of horseradish, or enough to soften cheese. Do not used juice from horseradish. Roll cheese in shape of a cigar. Wrap a piece of dried beef around the cheese. Serve with salad or with crackers.

MRS. ELLA L. BELL,
816 Second avenue, Tarentum.
SPAGHETTI SURPRISE, WITH MANHATTAN SPRINKLE.

One-half pound spaghetti (long or elbow).
Two tablespoons flour.
One quart oysters.
Two tablespoons butter.
One and one-half cups milk.
Buttered crumbs.

Cook spaghetti until tender and drain. Place spaghetti and oysters in alternate layers in baking dish. Make a sauce of the butter, flour, milk and oyster liquid. Pour this over the spaghetti. Cover with buttered crumbs. Bake in hot oven (425 degrees Fahrenheit for 10-15 minutes. Serve piping hot. Pass dish containing Manhattan Sprinkle, prepared as follows:

Take desired amount of chopped blanched almonds and dry thoroughly; fry in butter or olive oil until brown; drain on brown paper and salt well. This recipe will make four liberal servings.

ELSIE SUTTER,
404 Caldwell street, Clairton.
WHOLE WHEAT FRUIT PUDDING

One-half cup flour.
One teaspoon soda.
One-half teaspoon cinnamon.
One-fourth teaspoon cloves.
One-fourth teaspoon nutmeg.
One egg.
One cup whole wheat flour.
One-half cup sour milk.
One-half cup molasses.
One-fourth cup shortening.
One-fourth cup chopped nuts.
1 cup raisins.

Sift the white flour once before measuring. Sift flour, soda and spices together and mix thoroughly with the whole wheat flour. Add the well-beaten egg, sour milk, molasses and melted shortening. Stir in the nuts and raisins. Pour into well-greased small pudding mold. Serve with foamy sauce or any desired pudding sauce. Steam two hours.

FOAMY SAUCE

One-half cup butter.
One cup confectioners' sugar.
One egg.
One tablespoon hot water.
One teaspoon vanilla.

Cream butter and add sugar gradually. Add the well-beaten egg and the hot water. Heat over hot water, beating continually until it thickens. Add the vanilla and serve.

AGED WOMAN INVALID BURNS TO DEATH IN HOME

POLITICS

By MARK SHIELDS

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 13. — If confusion and turmoil describe the condition of the Republican party in Pittsburgh and Allegheny County, then chaos is the only term to be applied to that party in Philadelphia. To some extent this chaos also applies to the Democrats, but in that party the recalcitrance is confined chiefly to the wing which always has been a Republican adjunct, and to the 1933 converts, some of whom profited by the unprecedented sweep which buried the Vare Republican candidates in the last municipal election.

Mr. Shields

Many Republicans believe that William S. Vare, theoretical leader of the Republican organization, will not return from Florida during the primary. He may not come North until Atlantic City becomes a summer resort.

His presence here is of comparative unimportance. Mr. Vare is now no more than a symbol of past party greatness. His name is valuable as keeping the civil strife in the party somewhat within bounds, but has no power at all to rally the old-time Republicans to a cohesive force behind any candidate.

Ward Bosses Cool To Hazlett Leadership

Meanwhile, Mr. Vare has delegated his authority to James M. Hazlett, chairman of the Republican City Committee. That would mean something if the authority was respected, but it is not. A dozen ward leaders, some of them strong enough to have their power extend beyond the scope of their immediate territory, are not disposed to go along with another Vare ticket.

They consider not only the impending state campaign, but the municipal campaign of 1935, when a Mayor is to be elected. They recall that in 1933, with the Vare organization making a local battle with every resource at its command, the result was a stunning defeat.

To be affiliated with a Vare ticket this year, they believe, would be to invite defeat again, and the coincidence might become a habit which would sweep from these Republican ward leaders the power of patronage they have enjoyed for years.

With Hazlett directing affairs, there is a fear among these ward leaders, if they follow his leadership, that the past prestige of Philadelphia in the party will be destroyed.

It is being recalled that at the Chicago convention, when Vare was insisting upon a wringing wet plank in the Republican platform, and demanding that his delegates so vote, Hazlett was recording them for the equivocal declaration sponsored by State Chairman Edward Martin at the instance of the Hoover administration.

Indifferent, But Willing To Support Reed

These ward leaders are perfectly willing to be for Senator David A. Reed. For one thing, they don't care who is Senator, particularly when the administration at Washington is Democratic and a Republican Senator is no more than a voice in the senatorial forum.

For another, they have little love for Gov. Gifford Pinchot, though some have gone the length of agreeing to support Mr. Pinchot if he would give countenance to a Governor they might approve.

Some feel that Mr. Pinchot's presence on the tickeet next November might prove a better vote lure than would Senator Reed, bitter as that conclusion is to many. One prominent Republican today said that the policies now being followed by the so-called leadership would turn the Philadelphians over to the Mellon group in the western end of the state.

An example of the trouble within the party is the advancement of the name of Judge Harry S. McDevitt as a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination. This proposal has the support of County Commissioner James G. Clark, backed by some ward leaders.

There is practically no chance that Judge McDevitt will become a candidate. But, according to some impartial observers, Mr. Clark is using the incident to assert his own authority. He has come fast among the Republican leaders, and is no friend to Hazlett. He would like to be considered on an equal footing when the ticket making finally is done.

Division of Authority Adds to Confusion

There has never been any real clarification of authority between Hazlett and Harry C. Davis, managing director of the city committee. Mr. Davis is in the South with Vare. The uncertainty of the two authorities adds another bit of confusion.

Then, there are other ward leaders who are for making their own commitments, free of whatever may be done by Vare, Hazlett, Clark, Davis or Edwin R. Cox, president of the Philadelphia City Council, and a suave politician.

In this latter group are Joseph C. Trainer and State Senator Samuel W. Salus. Trainer is designated leader of the Third Ward and Salus of the Fourth. However, Trainer's authority goes beyond ward lines and is felt throughout South Philadelphia.

Salus not so long ago went the length of suggesting Pinchot and Lieut. Gov. Edward C. Shannon as a state ticket, the latter for Governor.

That ticket will not eventuate because the two men will not run with each other, but the willingness of Salus to support a ticket with Pinchot on it illustrates the extent to which the organization is milling about.

FORTIFIED JOBS BALK COUNTY REFORMS

State Constitutions Ban Changes to Cut Tax Load

(Constitutional barriers which stand in the way of improvement in county government are reviewed in today's article, the thirty-second in the series being published by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, in its campaign to reduce governmental costs through elimination of waste and duplication.)

The large number of elective county officials who are securely fortified by being specifically provided for in state constitutions is the first and most serious barrier to change in the form of county government, the National Municipal League states in a report recently made public by the committee on county government. This report, submitted by John A. Fairlie, of the University of Illinois, chairman of the committee, is one of a series being published by the league as a result of a long study on local governments.

STEPS SUGGESTED

After studying the documents of 48 states as they pertain to the restrictions which "block progress," the committee reports that there are five possibilities for improving county government.

The five points are:

1—Changes in the form of government.

2—Changes in the area of government.

3—Changes in the functions of the county.

4—Abolition of the county.

5—Improvements in administrative methods.

The report points out that where the constitutional officials of a county are so numerous, no satisfactory alteration in the form of government can come without a change in the constitution, either by amendment or convention. Enlarging on this condition, the report states:

"It is obviously impossible to obtain vigorous administration with most of the administrative officers running their own affairs in their own way and responsible to nobody but a vast unorganized electorate or to a political machine which exists solely for the purpose of perpetuating them in office. West Homestead Fights Tax Rates

A group of West Homestead property owners will visit the county board for the assessment and revision of taxes, Friday, to protest the increases in assessments on properties in the borough for 1934-35 and '36. Borough Clerk Wade G. Ewing said that some properties have been assessed at one-third more than the previous assessment.

'The Owl,' Touhy Gangster, Linked To Escape Here

Basil Banghart, "The Owl," captured in Baltimore and held for trial in Chicago in the kidnaping of John (Jake the Barber) Factor and reputed member of the Touhy gang, is the elusive prisoner who escaped from a deputy United States marshal in the Federal Building here four years ago, according to federal authorities.

Banghart, who had been arrested in Bedford, Pa., for transporting a stolen automobile, broke away from Deputy Marshal John Lowers, October 16, 1928; dashed from the third floor of the Federal Building and disappeared. He was recaptured six weeks later in Philadelphia.

The alleged kidnaper also escaped from the Alabama Penitentiary and from jail in South Bend, Ind., his record reveals.

Along with Banghart, federal men in Baltimore arrested Isaac Costner, who police here say is a brother of Rufus Costner, who served time in Western Penitentiary in the fatal Boggs & Buhl payroll holdup in 1921.

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—(INS.)—Accompanied by detectives, John ("Jake the Barber") Factor left Chicago today for Baltimore to view Basil Banghart and other Touhy gang prisoners seized there last Sunday by Federal agents.

BREMER KIDNAP HIDEOUT FOUND

DES MOINES, Ia., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—An Iowa state policeman stole the spotlight of the Bremer kidnap hunt today with what may be a vital clue to the identity of the kidnapers.

The farmhouse where Edward G. Bremer, St. Paul banker, was held prisoner until a $200,000 ransom was paid, is believed to have been found. That was the important information offered to federal operatives today by Park Findley, chief of the state bureau of Crimination investigation.

The kidnap hideaway, according to Findley, is nine miles from Creston, in southwestern Iowa. If the information proves accurate, it means that the kidnapers, when captured, may be prosecuted under severe federal statutes.

Bremer has said he can identify the place in which he was held despite the severe restrictions that were placed upon him during his three-week captivity. He believes the wallpaper of the room, in which he was held, will enable him to make positive identification.

OHIO-LAKE ERIE CANAL PLAN REOPENED

Unfair Charges Leads Engineer to Make Survey

Following repeated charges that Western Pennsylvania has practically been ignored in the distribution of Public Works Administration funds, the government has reopened the Lake Erie-Ohio river canal projects.

Maj. W. D. Styer, United States district engineer here, has been ordered by the War Department to prepare a new survey of four proposed routes, including the French Creek-Allegheny river plan.

The others include the Beaver-Mahoning waterway, the Cincinnati-Toledo and the Portsmouth-Sandusky schemes.

His survey will be a review of previous studies made in 1925 by Col. C. W. Kutz, Maj. Styer said. At that time the French Creek proposal was considered least practical of the four plans and was not recommended for a further study.

NEW LOCKS BUILT

Since Col. Kutz made his report, five new locks and dams have been built in the Allegheny River, carrying traffic up to Riemerton, and this may change the situation, according to Maj. Styer, who pointed out that the chief of engineers also has recommended to the River and Harbor Committee of the House of Representatives construction of another lock and dam to be known as No. 9.

Col. Styer said:

"Another startling comparison is the granting of 22 million dollars to the state of Wyoming with a population of 225,565 for the Casper-Alcova project, also for irrigation purposes for the developing of agricultural lands."

Despite the interest of Oil City and Erie leaders in promoting the French Creek project, the Lake Erie and Ohio River Canal Board of Pittsburgh is still convinced that the Beaver-Mahoning waterway is the most practicable and desirable for Pittsburgh.

BEAVER-MAHONING ROUTE

George M. Lehman, engineer for the board, listed these facts:

"From the Point, a tow of barges would travel only 127 miles to Lake Erie via the Beaver-Mahoning canal. It would have to go 200 miles via the French Creek route. Add to this fact the much greater industrial area served by the

BLAZE IN CAFE ROUTS TENANTS

A half dozen families were routed from their apartments when fire damaged the Mirror Restaurant at 610 Penn avenue, Turtle Creek, early today.

The blaze, believed caused by an overheated furnace, started in the restaurant basement and burned through to the second floor of the two-story brick building. The top floor was used as a store room.

Several families living in an adjacent apartment fled to the street when the blaze threatened to spread. The restaurant was operated by Mrs. Helen Schultz and Mrs. Reese Williams, police said.

Visiting Judges Assigned to Duty

Judge Norman T. Boose, of Somerset, and Judge Charles L. Culver, of Towanda, Pa., have been assigned by President Judge Ambrose B. Reid to sit in Common Pleas Court here next week. Judge John H. McCann, of Ebensburg, and Judge Culver also will sit as visiting judges in the same court the week of February 26.

Judge McCann is also hearing cases here this week as well as Judges William A. McConnel, of Beaver, and Charles C. Greer, of Ebensburg.

MOTHER'S HUNT FOR BABY VAIN

The mother of a 4-year-old girl sought unsuccessfully today to bring her sister-in-law into court so that she might obtain custody of her child.

Mrs. Mary I. Welsh, a widow, of Derry, Pa., appeared before Judge Ambrose B. Reid in Common Pleas Court expecting to see her daughter, Mary. But Mary was not there. Neither was Miss Edith R. Welsh, the child's aunt.

Mrs. Welsh sought a habeas corpus writ to compel her sister-in-law to return Mary to her. She charged she gave Miss Welsh permission to take the child to her home at 221 Tipton street, where Miss Welsh lives with her mother, on November 11, and that she now is unable to find the child.

The mother said the child was to be returned to her January 1. Both she and Miss Welsh are school teachers. The mother and child formerly lived with the Welshes in Tipton street.

Mrs. Welsh's attorney, George J. Scheif, told Judge Reid they had been unable to serve a writ on Miss Welsh. He said telephone and personal calls at her home were not answered. Judge Reid fixed Thursday as the date for further hearing.

2 Children Hurt As Sleds Hit Autos

Two children are in the Homestead Hospital today suffering injuries received when their sleds collided with automobiles yesterday.

The children, Paul Schotting, 5, of 3016 Nineteenth avenue, Munhall, and Eleanor Connely, 11, of 1618 West street, Homestead, were bruised about the body.

OPEN FIRE SETS CLOTHING ABLAZE

Caretaker in Library Dies in Flames Few Hours Earlier

A 78-year-old woman was burned to death early today when a hot coal set her clothing afire as she huddled by a grate in her bedroom.

Firemen carried Mrs. Dora Hofmeister from her home, 1819 Maginn street, when they found her unconscious in her smoke-filled bedroom. She was removed to St. John's Hospital and was pronounced dead upon her arrival there.

It was the second death by fire in the city within a few hours. Earlier an aged caretaker was suffocated when a blaze damaged the Carnegie Library branch in Wylie avenue.

Mrs. Hofmeister was an invalid. She is believed to have left her bed shortly after midnight to stoke the coal fire in her room. In some manner her night clothing caught fire.

SMOKE FILLS ROOM

A few minutes later, her only relative, Richard Hofmeister, a nephew, came home, and called the fire department when he saw the smoke-filled room. He was nearly overcome as he groped around the room in an effort to find the woman.

The fire had reached the mattress, but firemen succeeded in confining it to the bedroom. Damage was estimated at $50.

Fire officials today were investigating the two-alarm fire in Carnegie Library, Wylie avenue, that late yesterday brought death to August Auchter, 63, the aged caretaker of the building and routed a large number of children who were in the building.

Auchter lived in an apartment on the top floor of the library building with Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Benson. He was discovered prostrate on the kitchen floor by Fire Chief Richard L. Smith and was pronounced dead on arrival at Passavant Hospital.

CHILDREN MARCH OUT

An autopsy conducted at the morgue disclosed that Auchter had died from suffocation and carbon monoxide poisoning, according to a Coroner's report.

Benson, who is also a caretaker of the building, discovered the fire at the top of the steps as he climbed to his rooms. Flames blocked his entrance, and he fled downstairs to sound an alarm.

Children on the first floor were marshaled into line by library attendants and marched safely to the street. Chief Smith estimated the damage, confined mostly to the third floor, at $3,500.

Ralph Munn, director of the Carnegie Library of Pittsburgh, was visiting the branch at the time, and supervised the clearing of the building.

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Army fliers are packing the mail bags today. Give 'em a chance to make good that boast about landing on a postage stamp.

Don't know what happened to the mail contracts. They were in the bag, too.

We've got to fix a famous slogan. Now, the mail stops for neither snow, wind, rain, nor investigations.

We're going to turn square if we have to go back to the pony express. We had just as fast service when the Indians were chasing us.

We don't understand the bids, either. They must have been sealed in chicken wire.

The investigation will now proceed on a lavish scale. It requires the biggest and best elephant traps to snare a mouse.

'RIPPER KILLER' TENNIS CHAMPION OF DEVIL'S ISLAND

Scores Straight Set Victory Over Bank Bandit

By GORDON SINCLAIR
CHAPTER XII

CAYENNE, French Guiana.—With a smashing forehand drive and an uncanny control of the sidelines, Number 46,754, "Ripper Killer," won the Devil's Island mid-winter tennis tournament recently by a straight set victory over 43,848, a mere bank bandit.

Sounds fantastic, doesn't it? Well, it is fantastic.

First-class convicts not only play tennis, but sport a couple of football teams who can, when they get a chance, trim visiting crews from the mail boats with humiliating regularity.

And laugh this off. The red clay tennis court is kept in shape, not by convicts, but by outside labor which gets 12 cents an hour for pushing the 100-pound roller around while jailbirds look on.

During this tournament prisoners in their pink and white boudoir togs sat around eating pistachios, betting on favorites—even on the next point—and drinking beer.

Billiards and Ping-Pong

Afterwards they rode on bicycles down toward the cemetery where convict restaurants are set out under the mango trees. They sipped aperitifs and nibbled hors d'oeuvres skewered to soda biscuits. When it got dark, the boys went inside to play billiards and ping-pong.

Yet this is Devil's Island: Land of Do Without, home of the black vulture, colony of convicts and contrasts.

For instance, no guard in any of the 12 Guiana penitentiaries dares strike a prisoner. No convict is ever flogged, no matter what assault or insult he commits.

THREE WHITE MEN AT PORT-OF-SPAIN AND THE BOAT IN WHICH THEY ESCAPED CAYENNE

One day, for no apparent reason at all, I saw a convict spit in a guard's face and call him foul names. The guard dared not strike back. Right at this moment there is an ex-guard in the civil jail serving a year's term for knocking a convict down.

No prison official can inflict additional punishment on any convict. If the man beats up a fellow prisoner, escapes, assaults a guard, robs his fellows or townspeople, he's tucked into the guardhouse.

There he awaits the traveling tribunal composed of magistrates from Guiana, Guadalupe and Martinique. The only punishment they can give him is the dungeon or an addition to his sentence which, in nine cases out of ten, is life already. He can never be whipped.

Tales of Horror

Well, you demand, what about the gangs who work under clouds of mosquitoes and a blazing sun, stark naked? That's bunk. It used to be done, but was stopped years ago.

When word spread around of what I was doing in Guiana, convicts and liberes used to waylay me in alleys, ambush me in the fringe of jungle and tell the most astounding and terrifying tales of physical and mental torture. They told me, with names and dates, of convicts who, in a fit of frenzy, turned on a guard and as a result were set, naked, over red ant hills to be plucked to pieces bite by bite.

Prisoners Look On Contest in Pink Boudoir Togs

I took these names and dates to Commissioner Sontag, chief of all the prisons. He said:

"All nonsense. To prove that we aren't denying in a general way, you, yourself, can run through the files and look up these names."

I did, and there was no evidence whatever to substantiate the convicts. I don't think the officials were two-timing me. Why should they?

Well, then, who are these convicts? Do they deserve to be here for life? Here, folks, decide for yourselves. No man, except a murderer, is sent to Guiana until he is a third offender. Seldom unless he is a fifth offender. At least 40 per cent, or 2,339 convicts, are either murderers, rebels or brigands.

Remember the bad men who used to terrify all tourists in Corsica, shoot them down, kidnap them, and even torture them for ransom? They're here in the hard labor gangs and Corsica is now safe.

Remember the Arab marauders who terrified all Morocco and Algeria, kidnaping travelers and cutting their tongues out? More than a thousand of these are here. Cruel killers, these—the worst of all the convicts. Even since they arrived, they have slaughtered 126 fellow convicts; sometimes just for a pack of cigarets.

Remember the come-on boys who used to reap a harvest from the suckers who gave Montparnasse a play in the days of the sky high dollar? They were

Township Fire Laddies In Row Over Truck

Former members of the company had a fire truck, but no offical recognition as a fire company.

While one polished up on its pinochele playing and wondered what they were going to do in case of fire, the other pondered disposal of the $5,500 fire apparatus.

Max Homer, chief of the disbanded company, explained:

"We bought the truck four years ago, paying $5,500 for it. We had it all paid off but $200 when the new commissioners disbanded our company. Now the new company wants the truck but doesn't want to pay for it. The boys went over last night during the commissioners meeting and took the truck. No, we didn't steal it. Several of the new company were there. What are we going to do with it? Sell it, I suppose, or else keep it."

Ernest Angelo, chairman of the new Board of Commissioners said:

"It's true that they own the truck, but we own the tires. I don't know whether we can prosecute them for trespassing on borough property or not. If so, I will prefer charges."

CATHOLICS RAP UNFAIR TRADE METHODS

Elimination of unfair business competition by the NRA was declared to be the backbone of the recovery program in the closing sessions today of the Catholic Conference on Industrial Problems.

The consumer is the center of the whole economic problem, Mrs. Oliver J. Haller, president of the Congress of Women's Clubs and executive committee member of the Allegheny County Consumers' advisory board, told the conference meeting in the Hotel William Penn. Contending that producers should operate only for the benefit of the consumer, Mrs. Haller warned:

"I firmly believe that some more equitable distribution of wealth must be found or it will be forced upon us as it has been in various countries of Europe.

"How much better for us that such distribution be made through high wages to many people than through excessive taxes on the wealthy that the government may dole it out to those whose spirits are broken."

The consumer's responsibility is to report unfair business practices to the advisory councils, Mrs. Haller said. The unscrupulous offering of products at unfair prices and under misrepresentations can only be stopped by this co-operation, she added.

Outlawing of cut-throat prices, secret rebates, splitting of brokerage, unfair advertising and loss-leader selling are only a few of the gains made for consumers and benefits is derived for the small business man, according to Charles Wolff, president of the Retail Grocers Association of Western Pennsylvania.

Of the NRA the Rev. Dr. John P. Boland, of Buffalo, said:

"It is in line with the papal hope that employers' associations, dedicating themselves to rational production and employes groups, reaching out to shop managements and shop ownership, may give the natural right that all now have to private property its first full opportunity."

Under the chairmanship of Councilman P. J. McArdle, the afternoon session was hearing Dr. Francis D. Tyson outline the American approach to unemployment insurance; State Senator Frank J. Harris discuss old age pensions, and Dr. Elizabeth Morrissy, of the College of Notre Dame, Baltimore, compare legislation and the encyclical.

Beaver-Mahoning route and the argument is overwhelmingly in favor of it."

It is in reference to this dam that L. H. Gavin, secretary of the Oil City Chamber of Commerce, has notified Secretary H. L. Ickes, as Public Works administrator, that:

"We waited patiently until we secured the approval of the recognized federal branch of the government, created for the specific purpose of passing upon projects that are sound and economically justified, and after we had secured this approval you came back at us and intimated that $3,330,000,000 is practically exhausted and that it might be difficult for you to find approximately $2,700,000 for a job that can tomorrow put hundreds of men to work for a period of several years."

Gavin points out that Pennsylvania contributes the third largest amount in taxes to the federal government and that all Western Pennsylvania is asking is a "bone to chew on" out of the public works funds. His letter to Ickes continued:

"We cite you as a glaring illustration of unfairness when the state of Montana with a population of 537,606 was granted the Fort-Peck Dam irrigation project for twenty-five million dollars, the Seminole Dam irrigation project for six million dollars or the granting of thirty-one million dollars to a state with a handful of people, less than one-third the population that is in Allegheny County."

ROAD WORKER KILLED BY AUTO

Benjamin F. Saltzer, 53, of Imperial, a State Highway Department employe, was killed late yesterday when he was struck by an automobile while he was scattering cinders on the snow-covered Lincoln highway at Imperial, according to the Coroner's report.

The automobile skidding, struck Saltzer and then crashed into a fence and a pole, the report stated. Joseph J. Froelich, 19, of 651 Lauder street, Lincoln Place, the driver, unhurt, was arrested by Highway Patrolman H. J. Wertz, and ordered to post bond at the Coroner's office, according to the report.

Mrs. William Cobert, 34, of Cochrane Hill road, Jefferson Township, was fatally injured last night when she was struck by an automobile at Stewart's Stop, Library, according to a Coroner's report. The alleged driver, Thomas Dennich, of Library, was ordered to post bond before the Coroner.

William Schwartz, 25, of 11 Enon was surrendered to South Side police last night shortly after his automobile struck George Smith, 7, of 25 Enon way, in front of the latter's home, police said.

After the car struck the boy, Schwartz was said by police to have picked him up and left him on the front steps of his home. Found by his mother, the victim was taken to South Side Hospital where he was treated for cuts and bruises and then taken to his home. The Smith boy said Schwartz was repairing the car when it backed and struck him.

ARREST 13 BOYS IN THEFTS

Eight youths, alleged members of a group of 13 who, police charge, banded together under the name of "The Black Hawks" and who preyed on East Liberty merchants, were held today by police.

They were arrested early today when Radio Patrolmen Leon Dayton, Harvey Scott and Henry Formato, cruising in Larimer avenue, discovered that a chain store had been looted. Hiding themselves in the store, the officers arrested four of the youths when they allegedly returned for a second load of groceries.

Police said that the group admitted stealing more than a dozen automobiles, clothing, rugs and other articles. Because of their age, the Sun-Telegraph will not publish their names.

GIANT, 18, KILLS GRANDMOTHER

DENISON, Iowa, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—A young giant—Louis Hamann, 18, who weighs 210 pounds and stands 6 feet 3 inches, today was confronted by a possible life sentence in prison on a charge of slaying his 76-year-old grandmother, Mrs. Charlotte Evers.

He confessed last night, County Attorney Andrew Bell said, that he slew the woman last Sunday night with a piece of stove-wood in the hope of obtaining money he thought she had hidden in her home at Schleswig, Ia. He is quoted as saying:

"I'm sorry that I did it."

CITY PIONEERS SHOWN AT ART DISPLAY

By PENELOPE REDD

The Junior League presented an exhibition of "Pittsburgh Portraits" in their galleries in the Clark Building at a private view yesterday afternoon.

Miss Redd

The exhibition will be open to the public Wednesday, February 14, and will continue on view until March 3.

Fourteen oil paintings, four miniatures and two drawings have been borrowed from the descendants of the individuals portrayed.

The portraits represent celebrities of the late federal and earlier industrial periods. Thus we find the landed proprietors, early philantrophists, pioneer church dignitaries, members of the judiciary, the first industrialists, and in many cases their wives arrayed appropriately for their station and their time.

Of the 14 oil paintings shown, the companion portraits of Mr. and Mrs. Elihu Hall by C. W. Peale (1723-1790) take chronological precedence. These portraits are lent by Mr. and Mrs. William Maclay Hall.

There are six portraits by Sully and a seventh attributed to him. The personages are: Mr. and Mrs. John H. Shoenberger, Mrs. George K. Shoenberger, William D. Lewis, Hon. Richard Biddle and Henry Baldwin. The respective lending descendants are: Lawrence D. Blair, Carroll Fitzhugh, Mrs. F. T. Billings, Mrs. James D. Heard and Mrs. Harmar Denny, Sr. The Trinity Episcopal Church contributes the portrait of the Rt. Rev. William White, attributed to Sully.

Chester Harding (1792-1866) is found in a single canvas, the portrait of Harmar Denny, lent by Mrs. Harmar Denny, Sr. The only native Pittsburgh painter represented in the show is J. R. Lambdin (1807-1889), who is seen in the portrait of Jonas Roup McClintock, the "Boy Mayor" of Pittsburgh in 1836, and also in the serene study of Mrs. George Hogg. The McClintock portrait is owned by Mrs. Walter S. Straub and the other by Mrs. Samuel Hartwell.

M. J. Franca's portrait of Mrs. Sylvanus Lothrop, lent by Mrs. Harold P. Hobart, may have been done in the fifties for the costume has the Victorian impress of formal elegance.

The companion drawings of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Ormsby, lent by Mrs. John Ormsby Burgwin, are from the hand of the itinerant Saint-Memmin (1770-1852).

The miniatures are more difficult to trace. Two are lent by Mrs. Harmar D. Denny, Sr., and represent Gen. William Croghan and Gen. James O'Hara, famed in local history. A third is the portrait of the Hon. Robert Selden Garnett, Tidewater gentleman and scholar, contributed by his descendant, Porter Garnett. This miniature is ascribed to John W. Jarvis (1780-c.1834).

LEGISLATURES CURBED

The report further points out that 29 state constitutions have provisions forbidding legislatures to pass local and special laws applying to counties. Of these, 26 prohibit legislation on the subject of locating or changing county seats or lines. In 20 states legislatures are prohibited from passing special legislating regulating county affairs. Pennsylvania is one of those states having the above-mentioned barriers.

Concerning township organization, the report reads as follows:

"In states where the township organization has been written into the constitution, these clauses must be rubbed out before satisfactory improvement can be made in the form of government. Authorities are agreed that, with the possible exception of the New England states, township government should be abolished."

ECONOMY IN MERGERS

Touching upon a condition similar to that which exists in Allegheny County, the report states:

"Undoubtedly, vast sums of money can be saved through city-county separation or consolidation, wherever the boundaries of cities and counties are so nearly coterminous as to make consolidation desirable. At present only two state constitutions contain provisions pertaining unlimited city-county consolidation.

"In California city and county government may merge into one municipal government and incorporate under the general state laws governing incorporation of municipalities. An amendment to the Montana constitution 12 years ago gave the Legislative Assembly power to merge cities and towns and county under one municipal government."

In reaching its conclusions the committee reported as follows:

"If we were starting from scratch in this matter of developing local areas of administration for functions of statewide concern, it is conceivable that the most intelligent thing we could do as of 1932 would be to omit all reference to county government in constitutions, and put our trust in legislation action. The local rural community could be safeguarded by some form of initiative and referendum machinery. We could then concentrate upon developing responsive and efficient state governments.

"Since the county is now firmly embedded in our laws, customs and traditions, however, it is important to reap whatever advantage it may have, and avoid the disadvantages. Writing advantages into constitutions is no simple task, because an asset today may be a liability of tomorrow. There is no better illustration of this than some of the constitutional provisions restricting legislatures from classifying counties.

"Originally designed to prevent the operation of the spoils system at its worst, these clauses became an obstacle to wise solutions of the county government problem."

FOUR WAYS OUT

The report points out that there are four opportunities for a simple and satisfactory way out of the labyrinth. The first is for the Legislature to work out improved systems of county government and make them available to counties. The second is for individual counties to solve their own difficulties by drafting their own charters. The third is for an improved distribution of functions as between existing municipalities and counties, and the fourth is for city-county consolidation.

Members of the committee make the following comment:

"If the history of city government may be cited, it will be remembered that by far the most constructive and efficient governmental methods have been developed by individual municipalities, once they were given the opportunity to experiment, unrestricted by general state law. There seems to be no reason why this should not be true of counties."

Schnader Advocates Local Reorganizations

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Attorney General William A. Schnader—one of the Republican gubernatorial prospects—favors a state-wide unemployment insurance system and reorganization of local governments.

Asserting "we must insure against the future," the Attorney General in an address yesterday said:

"We must provide a reserve to take care of the unemployed when next we dip into the depths of economic distress."

SNAP OUT of Coughs, Colds with Primary VITAMIN A

It is now contained in Smith Bros. Cough Syrup

DRIVE out that cough and cold faster! Avoid re-infections—"one cold after another"!

Those are not empty promises. It can be done NOW. Not with pills or gargles or external rubs! But with Nature's own "Anti-Infective" Agent. Primary VITAMIN A.

A revolutionary medical discovery now makes it possible to include Primary Vitamin A in Smith Brothers Cough Syrup. This vitamin is the same precious substance that Nature gives you in carrots, butter, whole milk . . . but in Smith Brothers Cough Syrup you get concentrated quantities of it.

What Vitamin A in Smith Brothers' does

Vitamin A in Smith Brothers Cough Syrup does two wonderful things:

It aids Nature in DRIVING the cough and cold out of the system faster. And it raises your resistance against re-infection with new coughs and colds.

That's completely different from merely drugging or "doping" a cough or cold! Nature herself leads you back to bounding, vigorous, "million-dollar" health.

The Vitamin A benefits are in addition to the fast cough relief that Smith Brothers Cough Syrup gives. . . It soothes the throat . . . loosens phlegm. . . clears the air passages.

Please remember that the only cough syrup containing Primary Vitamin A is SMITH BROTHERS. Yet it costs you only 35c. Today get a bottle. Fight coughs, colds with Nature's own weapon. New health will be yours! . . . (Smith Brothers Cough Drops also contain Primary Vitamin A.)

Note to Doctors: 10,000 A. D. M. A. units of Vitamin A (Biologically tested Carotene) have been added to every bottle of Smith Bros. Cough Syrup. For literature please write Smith Bros., Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

LAWYER ROSS EASES HIS SORE THROAT INSTANTLY

And Wins His Case

THIS IS TERRIBLE . . . THAT BIG CRIMINAL CASE IS UP IN TEN MINUTES AND I HAVE A TERRIBLE SORE THROAT . . . CAN HARDLY WHISPER.
OH, MR. ROSS, I KNOW A WAY TO RELIEVE IT IN TIME . . . BAYER ASPIRIN . . . I HAVE SOME HERE.
(A)
NOW I'LL CRUSH AND DISSOLVE 3 BAYER TABLETS IN HALF A GLASS OF WATER TO GARGLE . . .
(B)

REPEAT THE GARGLE BUT DON'T RINSE THE MOUTH— LET THE GARGLE REMAIN ON THE THROAT MEMBRANES.
(B)
3 MINUTES LATER
WELL IM OFF. . . NOT A TRACE OF SORENESS LEFT, BELIEVE IT OR NOT! AMAZING ISN'T IT!
FINE . . . NEVER TALKED BETTER . . . SAY THAT BAYER ASPIRIN SIMPLY CHANGES ALL OLD IDEAS ABOUT TREATING SORE THROAT

Here's that 3-Minute Way to Relieve Sore Throat

Modern medical science now throws an entirely new light on sore throat. A way that eases the pain, rawness and irritation in as little as two or three minutes.

On doctors' advice, millions are following this way . . . discarding old-time "washes" and "antiseptics."

Simple to do. All you do is crush and dissolve three BAYER Aspirin Tablets in half a glass of water. Gargle with it twice—as pictured above. If you have any indication of a cold, before gargling take 2 Bayer Aspirin Tablets with a full glass of water. Keep on taking if cold has a "hold." For Genuine Bayer Aspirin will not harm you—does not depress the heart.

Reduces Infection, Eases Pain Instantly. Gargling with Bayer Aspirin will do three things: Relieve soreness at once. Allay inflammation. AND—reduce infection; which is the important thing in fighting a sore throat.

Be careful, however, that you get real BAYER Aspirin Tablets for this purpose. For they dissolve completely enough to gargle without leaving irritating particles. Watch this when you buy.

THE SUN-TELEGRAPH

OWNER, WAITER HELD IN CAFE DEATH

A Garfield tavern proprietor and his waiter were held for questioning by homicide detectives today in connection with the death of George Haber, 49, of 4905 Cypress street.

Haber, found lying in Penn avenue, near Winebiddle avenue, February 3, died last night in St. Francis Hospital from a fractured skull. Police first took him to West Penn Hospital, where he received treatment for apparent bruises on the face and head, and then lodged him in the Forty-third Street Police Station on a charge of drunkenness, according to Detectives Albert Buck and Myles Smith.

Four hours later Haber complained of pains in his head and was taken from his cell to St. Francis Hospital, the detectives said.

TWO FACE GRILLING

The two arrested for questioning are William Holtz, 32, proprietor of Holtz' Tavern, at 5115 Penn ave, and Herbert Adrian, 24, the waiter, of 5419 Broad street. The two men said they ejected Haber from the place when he became disorderly, the detectives asserted. After the ejection, Haber fell to the street, the detectives said.

A thorough investigation of the death had been ordered after Deputy Coroner Stanley Guzenski received conflicting reports concerning the man's injuries. Police told him they had two witnesses who saw Haber fall in a doorway in Penn avenue.

BEATING CHARGED

Relatives of the victim declared he had been beaten, Guzenski said. The body was ordered taken to the Morgue for an autopsy.

Following the receipt of the two reports, Detectives Smith and Buck began an investigation, which resulted in the holding of the tavern keeper and his waiter for questioning.

Convict Dies With Freedom Year Off

Frank Marcus, 38, of Beaver County, who would have completed a 12-year term in Western Penitentiary for burglary August 3, 1935, died yesterday in his cell.

He entered the penitentiary in 1922, but later was granted a parole, which he violated. He was sent back September 9, 1924. Through good behavior he obtained another parole, but a few months later was sent back for violation. He was then transferred to Rockview and made a trusty, later escaping and remaining at liberty until March of last year. This resulted in a sentence of one and a half years in addition to his original sentence.

Federal Men Seize Liquor After Chase

After trailing an automobile from the Hill district to a point near Dunlevy, Washington County, a distance of 26 miles, agents of the Federal Alcohol Beverage Unit seized the machine and arrested John Bremenour, 21, and Frank Grantz, 20, of Cardale, Fayette County, who were held under bonds for a hearing before the United States Commissioner.

According to the agents, 26 five-gallon cans of untaxed liquor were found in the machine. The two men were charged with having possession of liquor on which no taxes were paid, and concealment of it.

ICE MEN TOLD OF 'AD' DRIVE

Members of the Ice Publicity Association of Allegheny County will elect officers and arrange for a committee to attend a convention of ice manufacturers in Philadelphia March 14, at a meeting in the Chamber of Commerce Thursday.

Speaking before the group at a luncheon in the Hotel William Penn yesterday, Richard Bircher, president of the Philadelphia Ice Marketing Association, discussed promotion work in the eastern city, where he said $90,000 has been spent by his organization since August 15 for advertising purposes.

Frank L. Duggan, general manager of the Consolidated Ice Company, who presided at the meeting, said the Pittsburgh Association is gathering data preparatory to the launching of a publicity drive in the spring.

Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance

By MARION BRUNOT

Success and Pathos Often Go Hand in Hand

You are one of those girls with a vision, and you see yourself doing big things and reading about it in huge letters in the newspapers and even in electric lights over the theaters.

You have a career ahead of you. Of that, you are dead certain.

Every time you hear of some sweet young thing who has amassed fame at a delicate age, or a woman who has gone over in mammoth fashion and in but a short while your breath comes quick, and your eyes flash, and you feel as if you are being handicapped by everything and everybody.

Greta Garbo in huge letters. Or a biography of the rise of Faith Baldwin. These set you haywire, every time.

A career, and a home. You'll have them both, you say. And you have faith in your words, too.

Mary Roberts Rinehart, right here in Pittsburgh, did this very thing. Praise for her "Man In Lower Ten." Admiration for her "Amazing Interlude." The editors of western magazines burning up the wires to Sewickley, and all to get a peep at her stories first. And all the while, her husband worshiping her, and her three boys adoring her.

FASCINATED BY VOICE

I recall seeing her one day eating lunch in a Pittsburgh hotel, and looking like a school girl, as her sons grouped about her. When I stopped to speak to her, the three young fellows stood up, and like a phalanx they were, and one that seemed enough to satisfy the longings of any woman's heart.

Yet even then she was in the throes of one of her big novels.

Also, if you have a memory, there was Mme. Louise Homer. She spent her girlhood in a parsonage here in Pittsburgh, being a minister's daughter.

When I heard her sing at a concert in Carnegie auditorium, I was fascinated with the glory of her voice.

"You ought to see her lovely children" someone whispered in my ear

Yet carries pathos with it. I know a woman who has everything from a self-gotten standpoint. She is a lawyer who is known far and near, and she attends conferences with weighty portfolios carried by an assistant.

NO GENUINE AFFECTION

Yet I saw her recently, and was sorry for her.

She was before her wood fire and reclined on a handsome wing chair, and at her side was a table laden with English hothouse grapes and orange-shaded pomegranates, and thin layers of bread on which was spread caviare.

What a feast, and yet the woman's heart was weighted with woe.

"I have nothing I haven't paid for," she sighed. "Not a dog welcomes me home, for I have been too busy becoming a good lawyer to win any living thing's genuine affection."

"I can't go on," she moaned. "Life is too colorless."

And yet in a day or two I read of some important opinion on legal matters she had thundered forth.

No one knows the sadness of a human heart. No one knows the lonely fight behind the hard-boiled feminine face.

Assets aren't, everyone of them, printed in the press, or mentioned at banquets.

Some assets lie so close to the heart they are never heard of in the outside world.

So before you set about to carve out that career for yourself be sure your putty wouldn't mould a better skillet.

FAY-KING

By FAY KING

Women were never wiser for their own good interests than when they were "old-fashioned."

The old-fashioned girls were really more prudent than prudish. They well knew that men's chief conceit is in their vices. That they like nothing better than being thought worse than they really are.

So, the old-fashioned girls pretended to be horror-stricken at cigar smoking, and shocked at a few tumblers of weak wine. The men were so flattered to be thought "so dissipated" there was no need to seem worse. The sweet young things married model husbands to "reform" them.

But modern girls have imitated and tolerated men so much further in their vices that men must actually sink to cads and rakes—for this vanity.

A Sequel to Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Avis' Swoon Proves to Be a Sham

As Avis Arlen slumped against Harry Underwood in what appeared to be a swoon, I thanked my particular little joss that her mother and Philip Veritzen, upon the other side of the improvised aisle, were looking toward Noel and Mary, whose marriage ceremony had only just been concluded, and did not see her.

A swift glance around told me that all other eyes save mine were also fixed upon the bridal party. Putting aside my wish to go up with the rest, congratulate Noel and wish Mary happiness, according to the time honored custom which forbids congratulations to a bride, I moved swiftly to a spot directly in front of Avis so that I shielded her from any chance glances.

"As soon as we get her out of here, have Katherine come into the little study," Lillian whispered. "If her mother misses her, you'll have to let her come, too, I suppose, but I think we'll have her back here before anybody misses her. Thank the Lord, that door at the side here is open. Side along in front of us, Madge, and I think we'll turn the trick. Got her, Harry? All right, heave ho."

I did not know just how they were going to manage this exit of an apparently unconscious figure, but I knew their resourcefulness, and I was not surprised to see Avis apparently walking from the room between them. I knew that they were holding her upright in an iron grip and that her feet were not touching the floor, but the impression given to any casual eye was that of three people walking close together.

As soon as they were through the side door into the hall, I shut it after them and, making my way to Katherine, gave her Lillian's message. Then by a separate exit I made my way again out of the living room, seeing from beneath my lowered eyelids that Mrs. Arlen had not yet missed her daughter.

JUST PRETENDING

In the little study, when I reached it, I found Avis stretched out upon the couch where Harry and Lillian had laid her.

She was apparently unconscious, and Katherine, leaning above her with a practiced hand upon her pulse, suddenly detached that hand and gently lifting the girl's eyelids, looked at the pupils of the eyes beneath them. Then she straightened herself and turning her back upon the girl, formed with her lips the one word, "Shamming."

The word could not possibly have been heard by Avis, and she made no movement, remaining in her death-like posture while Katherine spoke swiftly aloud.

"There is no danger. It's a simple faint from which she's likely to come out any minute. Will you get me some water, Harry?"

Her voice uttered the request, but her eyes significantly negated it, and Harry's movement toward the door was slow and deliberate, with a palpable waiting for recall.

With a little smile playing around her lips, Katherine winked deliberately at us, then, turning back to the couch, made a sudden swift, almost stealthy movement which I could not see, but the evidence of which was promptly manifest as Avis opened her eyes wide and squealed, "You pinched me!"

AVIS AROUSED

"Oh, my dear child!" Katherine's voice fairly dripped honey and maple syrup. "That wasn't a pinch. That was simply a test of your reactions to see whether you were conscious or really in a swoon. I am so glad you didn't really faint, but just felt like it. Of course, I realized that you hadn't actually swooned, when I looked at your eyeballs just now. I could tell by your eyelids, although you're a pretty good actress; you kept them almost still. But I didn't want to judge you without all the tests, so I lifted your eyelids, and then gave you what you are pleased to call a pinch. Now, if you feel ill, I'll get you anything you wish, but don't try to pull any more pretended faints on me. I've been nursing too long for that."

Keeping Bananas

Bananas must be kept in an even temperature, otherwise they may turn black. Sixty degrees is the best heat for them. If they are stored in the pantry, they should be wrapped in soft paper. If kept in the dining room, wrap them in paper at night, or they will blacken in the cooling room.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Sinusitis Not Uncommon in Very Young Children

I recently visited a home where the youngest member of the family was confined to bed because of nasal sinus infection. I am sure you will be surprised to learn that the patient was only two and a half years old.

Dr. Copeland

The word "sinusitis," as its name implies, is an inflammation of the sinuses or air passages within the nasal bones. It is a common affliction of adults. But few realize that it is likewise an affliction of young children.

Like sinusitis in the adult this infection may prepare the way for other disturbances. In fact, neglect of sinusitis in children often leads to serious complications and permanent damage to the body.

The germs that cause sinusitis may be absorbed by the blood stream and be carried to vital organs, such as the heart, liver, gall bladder or kidneys. This danger can be avoided by prompt medical attention.

It is sometimes difficult to make a diagnosis of sinusitis in a child. Even if X-ray pictures are taken, the information may be incomplete since certain sinuses are not fully developed until a later age.

As a rule, the child has a "running" nose, but otherwise appears to be in perfect health. There is, however, one sign that should arouse suspicion in a child suffering from a running nose. I refer to fever. Though the child does not feel feverish the mother is amazed when taking the temperature to find the thermometer registering between 99 and 100 degrees. This fever persists and it is a sign that must never be ignored.

A child with signs of fever and running nose should be kept in bed. If the sinuses are involved, a good plan is to use a vaporizer or old-fashioned croup kettle. And a teaspoon of compound tincture of benzoin to a pint of water and let the child inhale this. Keep the temperature of the room moderately warm.

The food should be simple and nutritious. Include such foods as milk, cream and eggs. These are rich in vitamins A and D, vitamins that combat infection. Above all, remember to keep the child in bed until the temperature has returned to normal and has remained there for at least 24 hours.

During the winter months, it is a good plan to give cod liver oil to the child. When sunlight is abundant, as in the summer time, this medication is not necessary. Sunlight supplies the necessary elements found in the cod liver oil.

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Bidding for Grand Slams

Recent Grand National ...nent of the United ... Bridge Association af... for the first time in his... a splendid opportunity to ... the comparative bidding ...laying skill of players from ...arts of the United States, ...aps to the surprise of a ... many New York experts, ...rs from other cities like ...Louis, Mo., Madison, Wis., ...querque, N. M., Portland, ... and Anniston, Ala., demonstrated not only that they ...mastered the principles of ...ng and play as well as the ...Yorker, but that owing to ... precise bidding methods often reached better contracts than did a number of the New York players engaged.

Take as an example the hand below. It is, of course, a laydown Grand Slam for East and West, yet the Grand Slam was bid by only two pairs out of 14 East and West pairs engaged in the Pair Tournament and strangely enough, even the Small Slam was missed by two players, both of New York.

The hand was:

West, Dealer.

East and West vulnerable.

	♠ 8 ♡ K Q 8 7 2 ◇ 8 6 3 2 ♣ J 8 4
♠ J 9 5 ♡ A ◇ A K J 7 4 ♣ A 7 6 2	North West East South	♠ A K Q 10 6 4 ♡ 10 6 5 4 ◇ Q 9 ♣ 5
	♠ 7 3 2 ♡ J 9 3 ◇ 10 5 ♣ K Q 10 9 3

The successful bidding was:

West	North	East	South
1 ◇	Pass (1)	1 ♠	2 ♣
3 ♣ (2)	Pass	4 ♣ (3)	Pass
5 N T (4)	Pass	7 ♣ (5)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—Perhaps a nuisance bid might have helped at this point. North could bid one heart but the bidder of the North hand reasoned on the basis of his own holding of four diamonds that East and West might possibly have a misfit, and that there was no reason for him to bid and possibly help them out of difficulties. The question of an Overcall is very close as North's hand is very weak in honor tricks and further weakened by the presence of four diamonds.

2—Showing control of the first round of the suit bid by South. The bid, of course, is a very strong one but certainly no stronger than is justified by West's holding. While his trump support for East is not quite adequate, still it would do in a pinch.

3—The Jump Trump Rebid showing a long trump suit with not more than one loser.

4—West knows that the spade Knave solidifies the trump suit. Thus his bid of five notrump, showing three Aces and the King of a bid suit, is certainly fully justified.

5—In view of West's bid of five notrump, East knows that he holds both the Ace and King of diamonds. The bid of three clubs, followed by the later bid of five notrump, also assures him of first-round control of every suit. Obviously, West's diamond suit must be sufficiently long to provide for the discard of losers in hearts in view of the fact that East holds the Queen.

So far as the play is concerned, there is absolutely nothing to it. The hand is a laydown Grand Slam.

TOMORROW'S HAND

If West, vulnerable, bids one spade, how should the North and South bidding proceed?

East, Dealer.

East and West vulnerable.

	♠ Q J 9 ♡ A K 6 3 ◇ A Q 8 ♣ A 10 3
♠ A 10 7 5 4 ♡ 10 9 8 ◇ 3 2 ♣ 8 4 2	North West East South	♠ K ♡ Q 7 5 4 2 ◇ J 7 ♣ K Q J 9 5
	♠ 8 6 3 2 ♡ 1 ◇ K 10 9 6 5 4 ♣ 7 6

The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Family Ties

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me if this is not a mark of disrespect to my sister-in-law and to me? Our mother-in-law was buried last week. In placing us in the coaches, our husbands were seated in the coach with their father and sisters. The wives and children were put in different coaches. Later on my sister-in-law, my husband's sister, remarked that we did not belong in the family. F.

I am sure that this arrangement was not made with an intention of disrespect or unfriendliness, and I beg you not to take it in that spirit for we must try to understand the actions and thoughts of people in this sorrowful time. And undoubtedly they thought that this was the proper arrangement, thinking only in terms of the members of their immediate family. You can, I am sure, see how this might be. But it would have been the better arrangement for the husband, the wife, and the children to have been seated together in the same coach.

YAROSZ, UNDER WRAPS, EASILY DEFEATS SMITH

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Yarosz Headed for Title. Best in Present Field. Durable Second Sackers. • Frisch to Keep Going. Sullivans Swamp Smiths. New Line On Schmeling.

Announcer Ray Eberle may have been departing from Queensberry ethics and taking quite a lot for granted last night when he proclaimed Teddy Yarosz at the conclusion of Pittsburgh's first legalized 15-round bout "the winnah and next middleweight champion of the world." But after all, who is there to stop Yarosz from reaching those heights eventually? If there had been any doubt before that the Monaca boxer has a good chance to become the leader of the present 160-pound company, it must have been dispelled by the exhibition in which Teddy, through far superior speed and smartness, outclassed Jimmy Smith so easily in retaining the state title as to give many of the spectators the impression at times that the Philadelphian was being carried.

Teddy Yarosz

Besides beating Young Terry, one of only two men who ever received a decision over Yarosz, Smith has also defeated Lou Brouillard, former middleweight champion. Yet Smith couldn't give Yarosz anything more than a good workout. As for the present title-holder, Vince Dundee, Teddy himself already has trimmed him twice. That Yarosz, after what he did to Smith, could beat Terry handily in a return meeting, there is no doubt in anybody's mind. Who else is there to bar Teddy's way to the title? The present middleweight division may not be the best in history, but it's only with the field of today that Yarosz has to reckon, and a close scrutiny of that field fails to reveal a man in it who can by any stretch of the imagination be called the Monaca lad's equal.

ONLY THREE IN 2,000 GAMES AT KEYSTONE

Second base has been called a position involving less strain than third base or shortstop, and therefore a post at which a player ought to last a long time, but the statisticians have found that in all major league baseball history only three men ever played 2,000 or more games at the keystone bag. Topping the list with the highest all-time total is Eddie Collins, now general manager of the Red Sox, who took part in 2,684 championship contests during his career as an active player.

Next to Collins ranks John (Biddy) McPhee, who played 2,124 games for Cincinnati. In 1896, McPhee, always a great defensive player, made a fielding average of .982 in 116 games, which stood as the record for second-base play in one season until 1925, when Sparky Adams went through 144 games with a mark of .983. One year later, Max Bishop boosted the record to .987 in 119 engagements. The only other second sacker apart from Collins and McPhee to reach the 2,000 line in games played was Napoleon Lajoie, who figured in 2,024 contests, and, with a life-time batting average of .341, outhit all other keystone performers except Rogers Hornsby.

FRISCH SEES BENCH EDGE BUT WON'T QUIT

Frankie Frisch, one of the nine playing managers in the big show, admits that the double role is a heavy burden. He conceded in discussing the subject with Frank Graham that the bench manager, because he sits apart a little way and holds a better perspective on the field, has an edge on the playing manager. But Frisch says very emphatically that he has no intention of becoming a bench pilot in the near future, and that he won't retire to the dugout as long as he can stand up.

Frankie Frisch

What, in the final analysis, is the recipe for success as a manager? Frankie says it isn't original with him, and he thinks Al Schacht said it first, though a lot of skippers had discovered it for themselves without putting it into words. The secret of success as a manager, says the Cardinal boss, lies in knowing your men and knowing when to take out your pitcher. Frisch finds it hard to size up the National League pennant race at this early stage, observing that a lot can happen even before the season gets under way, to say nothing of what can happen before the Fourth of July, but he admits that both the Giants and Pirates are good and thinks the Cardinals, too, must be counted in, though he doesn't mention the Cubs.

TWELVE SULLIVANS ON ONE SCHOOL SQUAD

The Smiths and the Joneses may continue to hold their traditional sway in some localities, but in the Irish atmosphere of Boston the name of Sullivan appears to be as strongly dominant as it was in the days of the immortal John L. When new athletic requirements brought out a record squad of 125 boys for the track and field squad at Boston Latin School, Coach Charley Fitzgerald was at a loss to connect all the faces with all the names, but now when he is not sure of a name he says "Sullivan" in a questioning tone, and usually he finds he has made the right guess. Once, however, he forgot himself and called to one of a group of a dozen boys. Then he was non-plussed, for 10 of them answered his call.

On good days, Fitzgerald has as many as 12 Sullivans working out in track togs. Sometimes the number is decreased to seven. But when a meet comes around, all the Sullivans are on hand to bewilder the clerk of course and confuse the judges. There are three John Sullivans, with different middle initials, two Williams, and one each of Patrick, James, Kevin, Ralph, Edward, Paul and Timothy. The Smiths can muster only four representatives on the squad, and the Jones aren't in there at all.

LINE ON SCHMELING EXPECTED TONIGHT

Just where Max Schmeling is to be ranked in the field of possible contenders for the world heavyweight fistic crown probably will be determined tonight, when the German will inaugurate another American campaign with a 12-round bout against Steve Hamas in Philadelphia. Schmeling hasn't fought since Max Baer knocked him out last summer to upset the general belief that the Teuton still was the best heavyweight in the game despite the loss of his title to Jack Sharkey.

Max Schmeling

Prior to the Baer disaster many boxing critics had considered Schmeling as likely to be the first unseated heavyweight champion ever to regain the throne. Now they're not so sure about it. Schmeling's form against Baer indicated that the former champion had lost something. Whether it was only a temporary off-spell or he is out of the running for good is the question that tonight's bout may answer. Max can't expect to be at par in his first fight after a lay-off of eight months, but at least the test ought to give some sort of line on his later possibilities. Hamas is no soft touch, and may put up a surprising fight, but he is hardly to be rated among the title contenders, and Schmeling ought to win if anywhere near his old standards. If he doesn't, there will be little chance of his ever approaching the top again.

JACKETS, SOX IN LACROSSE FINALE

By CARL W. SHATTO

The first half of the American and International Lacrosse Association's split-season race will be brought to a close at Motor Square Garden tonight, when the Yellow Jackets will oppose Kelly DeGray's rough and ready Chicago White Sox. The Jackets clinched the first half title by defeating the Sox for the first time in five clashes here Saturday night, and because the Chicagoans are firmly entrenched in second place, tonight's fray will have no bearing on the team standings.

The Blue Ribbons, Chicago's other entry in the association, are to help the locals pry the lid from the second half campaign here Saturday night. The winner in the second half of the race will qualify to meet Pittsburgh in a post-season playoff series for the association championship.

By winning tonight, the Jackets can even their season series with the Sox. The next goal scored by Harry LaFrance, the locals' brilliant center and leading scorer, will be his fiftieth of the season. The probable lineup:

Pittsburgh No.	Player		Chicago Player	No.
1	Cordick	G	Stokes	1
2	B. Langevin	D	Osler	3
3	N. Langevin	D	Clarke	4
10	LaFrance	C	DeGray	5
7	Boullane	F	Davidson	9
9	Vincent	F	Atkinson	14

Pittsburgh substitutes—No. 4, McLean; No. 5, L'Heureux; No. 6, Core; No. 8, Jennings; No. 12, Silk.

Chicago substitutes—No. 2, Wallace; No. 6, Campbell; No. 8, Bradley; No. 11, Dodds; No. 12, O'Regan.

Carnera-Loughran Bout Delay Sought

MIAMI, Feb. 13.—(INS.)—Matchmaker Jimmy Johnston, of Madison Square Garden, today planned to go before the Florida Boxing Commission to ask a later date for the Tommy Loughran-Primo Carnera fight, orginally scheduled for February 22.

Johnston said the fight would be set back four or five days due to competing attractions on Washington's birthday. If the commission agrees to the delay he will ask either the twenty-sixth, twenty-seventh or twenty-eighth for the heavyweight title match.

FIGHT RESULTS

At Wheeling, W. Va.—Mose Butch-Ross Fields bout postponed.

At Holyoke, Mass.—Steve Carr and Joe Kaminski drew, 10 rounds; Tommy Walsh knocked out Battling Ardie, 2 rounds; Jimmy Richie defeated Billy O'Brien, 6 rounds.

At Huntington, W. Va.—Johnny Roberts defeated Al Cortez, 10 rounds; Harvey Mason won by a technical knockout over Harry Devore, 4 rounds. Joe Maillolo knocked out Charles Chapin, 4 rounds.

CITY'S FIRST 15-ROUNDER ONE-SIDED

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

Ted Yarosz, of Monaca, was a step nearer the world middleweight championship goal today, following an easy 15-round victory over Jimmy Smith, of Philadelphia, before a sellout crowd at Motor Square Garden last night, but he wasn't satisfied.

He wanted to win by a knockout, and all he did was to win 14 of the 15 rounds, losing the thirteenth, when he coasted and permitted his opponent to do all of the leading. There were no knockdowns.

Smith, the man who whipped Young Terry, who won a recent decision over Yarosz in New Jersey, and was figured to be a dangerous contender for Teddy's state middleweight title, simply wasn't in the running, but he stayed in there trying to the final bell and had his moments, although Yarosz was boss of the fight any time he chose to take the lead.

For a highly-ballyhooed fight and Pittsburgh's first legalized 15-rounder, it left much to be desired in the way of action, which was explained somewhat by the statements of the boxers in the dressing room immediately afterward.

'TERRY FIGHT EASIER'

Yarosz shook his head as a questioner asked him if it wasn't one of his easiest fights. He replied:

"No, the Terry fight that they say I lost was easier. I had no trouble hitting Terry with a right uppercut. Smith was hard to reach with that punch. I wanted to win by a knockout tonight and get the fight over inside the limit, because I wasn't sure of myself. That cold which caused me to ask for a postponement left a drag and I had to slow down in my training the last few days. I didn't say anything about it because there was some criticism of me when I asked that the bout be set back, doubt being expressed that there was anything wrong with me.

"I had some trouble breathing and got tired in stages and had to pace myself carefully. That is why I wasn't moving as fast or attacking as vigorously as I usually do. However, I found out early that Smith wasn't hard to outsmart and that I could keep him at a distance and outscore him, and, under the conditions, I had to win that way. I'm glad there was no question about the decision."

'BETTER MAN WON'—SMITH

Smith, a bath towel thrown over his shoulders, and still in fighting togs, was interested in watching his stablemate, Danny Hassett, fight Anson Green, Homestead Negro middleweight, in the semi-final, which was being fought after the main bout. He had to stand on a table to see over the heads of others who were crowded about the dressing room window facing into the arena. He said, pleasantly for a man who had just gone through a grueling battle:

"What's the use of talking? The better man won. At least he was the better man tonight. He moved too fast and kept me from getting close. I couldn't seem to get going, but maybe it was his speed that was responsible. Or maybe it was the fact that I trained too long for

Fans Riot, Tickets Scalped, Win Nets Yarosz $3,376

A new attendance record forboxing at Motor Square Garden was set by the Ted Yarosz-Jimmy Smith 15-round fight last night, figures announced today revealed.

There were more than 5,000 persons in the building, including 4,431 paid admissions, the others being in on passes and employes' tickets.

The gross receipts including federal and state tax, were $10,154, but the State Athletic Commission colected its 5 per cent on $10,768, the difference being in unaccounted-for tickets, as checked against the printer's report.

Yarosz received 35 per cent of the net receipts of $9,646.30, or $3,376.20, his second largest purse. He received almost $5,000 for beating Vince Dundee at Forbes Field last fall. Smith dragged down 20 percent or $1,929.26.

SCALPERS PLY TRADE

A Champion Johnny Wilson-Joe Chip fight at Motor Square Garden some years ago drew more than $12,000, but at larger prices. More than 2,000 fans were turned away last night, and listened to an account from a loud speaker in front of the building. The Garden being totally inadequate to handle the throng anxious to witness the battle. When the fans broke down the general admission gate they re-enacted a scene the Garden has not known since the turnaway for the Jack Zivic-Lew Tendler battle almost a decade ago. Zivic, incidentally, was a spectator last night.

Some of the fans who had bought their tickets in advance capitalized on a chance to scalp them for a profit, and, while the top box office price for seats was $3.30, late comers were reported to have paid as much as $5 for $2.20 ducats.

NOTABLES AT RINGSIDE

Notables in all walks of life were prominent among the ringsiders, including doctors, lawyers, judges, politicians, college athletic officials, business men and many women.

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Max Schmeling vs. Steve Hamas, 12 rounds; Abe Feldman vs. Lou Poster, Reds Barry vs. Humberto Arce and Sam Portney vs. Johnny Rosseau, 6 rounds each and Paul Marques vs. George Chip, 4 rounds, Philadelphia.

Henry Woods vs. Cecil Payne, 10 rounds, Seattle.

PERRY OPPOSES SOUTH HILLS PASSERS

By JULIUS LEVIN

The attention of the local scholastic basketball fans will be focused on the outcome of the South Hills-Perry engagement on the Perry High School floor this afternoon.

This game, the feature attraction on the local program, brings together two contenders for the divisional crown and the winner will move into a deadlock with Langley for first place. Langley holding a half-game lead in the Section II, is not scheduled for league competition this afternoon.

PERRY SEEKS REVENGE

Perry, the defending champion in Section II, will be out to obtain revenge for a crushing defeat suffered at the hands of South Hills in their first engagement of the season at South Hills.

In other Section II frays today, Carrick plays at Allegheny Vocational and Allegheny at Oliver.

South High School, defending champion in the City League and favorite to repeat in the Section I chase, will be out to widen its lead over the Connelly Trade School passers to one full game this afternoon when it engages Schenley High School at the South Side Market House.

Connelley, one-half game behind the Orioles, is not scheduled for league action. In the other Section I settos, Westinghouse is at Fifth Avenue and Allderdice at Peabody.

RISK WIN STREAK

South will be striving to win its twenty-second successive City League victory at the expense of Schenley. The Orioles have not suffered a reverse in league competition for two years. They won 12 league games and two playoff contests last season and so far this season have scored seven straight Section I decisions.

If Perry is successful in its battle with South Hills today, the Smith passers will have an opportunity to move into first place by taking over Langley in their battle at Langley Friday afternoon.

A full program of games is offered the followers of the W. P. I. A. L. and Junior W. P. I. A. L. this afternoon and evening. The grade schools also get back into action this afternoon with six contests listed for disposal. Two games are carded in the Catholic High School League.

Preliminary pairings for the annual W. P. I. A. L. elimination series will be made Saturday morning at a meeting to be held in the Fort Pitt Hotel. All schools having a chance to win a place in the eliminations are asked to have a representative at the conference, which gets under way at 10 o'clock.

Heinie Meine Here, Visits Buc Office

Pitcher Heinie Meine, right-hander of the Pittsburgh Pirates, arrived in Pittsburgh from Luxembourg, Mo., this morning and went into conference with officials of the local club in the Flannery Building in Oakland.

Meine looked fit and eager to start for the spring training camp at Paso Robles, Cal.

Meine, it was said, was here to confer over a reduction in his salary. He went into a huddle with Owner Benswanger and Manager Gibson in an effort to adjust the disagreement.

Leon See's 'Inside Story' Of Carnera's Career

EDITORIAL FOREWORD

Already entangled with Italian Federation "red tape," Primo and the author soon become ensnarled with some Spanish ring authorities in connection with Carnera's first victory over Paulino . . .

CHAPTER XXV

OLD BOX-FIGHT CUSTOM

By LEON SEE

Developer and Former Manager of Primo Carnera, World Heavyweight Boxing Champion

The Carnera-Paulino fight in 1930 was on the level; so, as was usual, Primo and I suffered much annoyance on the part of the local Boxing Federation. As to the 10-round fight, my ever-improving boxer—much more scientific than the doughty Basque—won an easy victory on points, without having been hit, so to speak. Those few words sum up the contest.

But I would need pages to describe the annoyances to which we were subjected before the bout, which were not in any way attributable to its promoter or its directing powers. A revolt broke out in Barcelona some days after our arrival, forcing postponement of the fight for eight days during which street riots and many shots made it dangerous to go out.

Paulino

Besides the revolt annoyances the Catalonian boxing authorities tried some original jokes on us.

It was difficult to rob us of the decision because, after the recent Maloney affair, I had sworn not to accept only one judge. Therefore, I had asked that the decision be given by a triumvirate: a Spaniard, an Italian and a Frenchman.

A TOUGH SPOT

I am glad I did that because, although Carnera won all the rounds without exception, the Spanish judge declared Paulino the winner. That was of little importance whatsoever, for I had anticipated it. The other two arbiters declared Carnera victorious and their verdict prevailed. . . . But here is the unspeakable trick that was played on us:

As I have said before, for all of his bouts, Carnera used gloves made to order to his size. I always had several pairs in my baggage in case of necessity, and—although it was within my right to have these gloves made in the regulation weight of six ounces stipulated by the international rules—those of Carnera always exceeded, with the same padding, seven or eight ounces.

But the Catalonian Boxing Federation had its usual purveyor make two pairs of gloves weighing around 10 ounces, of which one could have been used, strictly speaking, while the other was much too small, keeping Carnera from closing his hand. On the eve of the fight, at the office of the federation, the president asked us to try on the gloves proposed by him. Primo contended that one of the pairs, while very exaggeratedly padded, would do, but the other pair painfully pinched his fist, so that he risked hurting himself when hitting. I presented to the commission one of my pairs of gloves which had been accepted without objection elsewhere in Europe and America. They refused them flatly.

TRICKED BY COMMISSIONER

I suspected some trap or trick, but I did not worry much . . . Of course, the large Spanish gloves, while a little heavy, would do if necessary. I knew full well that Primo did not hit hard enough to knock out the tough Paulino, but I did believe—whatever the weight of the gloves—the decision could not miss coming to my Big Boy. I accepted, therefore, the larger of the two pairs of Spanish gloves, to avoid further discussion. I had the happy intuition (unknown to the officials) to make a slight mark in ink inside the wrist of each glove with my fountain pen.

Fight day arrived and the immense athletic stadium was packed. More than 70,000 spectators — superenthusiasts as Spaniards know how to be—had come to applaud the popular and courageous Paulino.

Primo was finishing his preparations in his dressing room when a commissioner of the federation brought us the gloves. Carnera tried to slip them on. Impossible! They were the smaller pair, those which the president himself had recognized as unfit. In face of my absolute refusal to accept them, the president in person burst into our dressing room.

ARGUE OVER GLOVES

"Mr. President," I said with the greatest politeness, "an error has been made, it is the other pair of gloves which we agreed to use."

"And I tell you that it was this pair," he insisted.

"You are wrong, Mr. President, and I am able to prove it, because I put an ink mark inside the gloves accepted by us."

"I am not going to discuss it with you," he replied. "You wear these gloves or the fight will not take place!"

He certainly didn't know Leon See! Turning to Primo, I said quietly:

"Get dressed; there will be no fight."

And Primo, always obedient, began to put on his monumental walking shoes.

The Catalonian poo-bah was dumfounded.

"But what are you dong?" he asked Carnera.

"You can see: I am getting dressed. It seems there will be no fight."

"You will be disqualified—suspended!" bellowed the Spaniard.

"Perfect!" I said. "It's getting to be a custom with us. We are already suspended in nearly all of the world. Spain is missing from our list. With this suspension, our collection will be complete!"

BOUT THREATENED

The President left, frantic. Seventy thousand people, worked up by the recent revolution, might have been eager to set fire to the stadium. The promoter, Jeff Dickson, came running in his turn. I told him about the glove jobbing clash.

"You are absolutely right," he said, "but I beg you, put yourself in my place: think of the expenses I have incurred, of my reputation as a promoter; please don't ruin me."

"In order to please you," I replied, "Primo will box, but on one absolute condition and that is this: The president of the Spanish Federation must sign a letter, before we go on, in which he recognizes having willfully violated the international regulations in imposing on Carnera gloves weighing four ounces more than those of his adversary and which he also recognizes as being much too small for Primo's hands."

Afterwards, the federation did not disqualify us; it was quite the reverse of that. I filed a regular complaint with the International Boxing Union—a complaint which the Italian Federation could not but indorse—and the Catalonian commission received a severe warning.

INTER-CITY PIN MEET HERE

By PHILIP GRABOWSKI

Pittsburgh, Buffalo, Cleveland and Detroit pinmen will be striving for supremacy in the eighteenth annual inter-city tenpin matches to be staged on the Pittsburgh Athletic Association alleys Friday and Saturday. The Detroit aggregation will be defending its team championship.

Friday afternoon the three doubles matches will be rolled and a team match will follow in the evening. On Saturday morning the remaining two team events will be staged and in the evening three singles will be rolled to conclude the program.

The North Side Elks will send six teams to Cleveland to represent Pittsburgh in the seventh annual Elks' national tournament under the auspices of the Elks' Bowling Association of America March 14 to April 15.

The Trojans of East Liberty turned in their twenty-eighth straight tenpin victory when they defeated the North Side Elks in a match game on the Iroquois alleys last night, 2,829 to 2,685.

De Oro Ousts Layton From Unbeaten List

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—With Alfredo De Oro's 50-to-46 conquest over Johnny Layton, the undefeated division in the world's three-cushion billiard tournament was reduced to Bozeman and Hoppe, each of whom has won four games. Hoppe accounted for his fourth last night in defeating Kinrey Matsuyama, Japanese player, 50 to 40. Layton's setback dropped the former Missouri carpenter into a tie for fourth place with Cochran, with three victories and one defeat.

PIRATES TIE FOR ICE LEAD

CITY HOCKEY LEAGUE

STANDING OF THE TEAMS

	W.	L.	T.	G.	OG.	Pts.
Morgans	5	1	0	28	9	10
Pirates	5	2	0	25	13	10
Webers	3	4	0	15	21	6
Tech	0	0	1	1	1	1
Dukes	0	0	1	1	1	1
Ravens	0	6	0	10	32	0

The Pirates are sharing top-rung honors in the City Amateur Hockey League today as far as points go, and in the hockey circuit said points go plenty far.

By defeating the H. J. Webers, 3 to 1, in a stirring clash on the Duquesne Garden ice last night, the Pirates hung up their fifth triumph, which is as many as the Morgans have won. The Morgans, however, have lost one less than the Pirates, who have been defeated twice.

Last night's battle was a pip from start to finish. McGovern and Scully tallied for the Pirates in the second period after the teams had battled to a scoreless first stanza. McCutcheon caught the Webers asleep in the third period to register with a solo effort and Cooper took a pass from Schumm to record the Webers only goal. The lineup:

Pirates—3.		H. J. Webers—1.
Rodenbaugh	G.	Cuff
McCutcheon	L. D.	Cheli
Scully	R. D.	Carnobel
McGovern	C.	Bruce
Davies	R. W.	Adams
Conley	L. W.	D. Hafey

Scores: Pirates—McMullen, Burkhardt, Scully, McGill, Sills; H. J. Webers—Kelly, McNeil, Cooper, J. Battle, Schumm. Scoring: First period (none); second period—McGovern, unassisted, 1:19; Scully (ours) from Conley, 15. Third period—McCutcheon, unassisted, 7:36; Cooper (ours) from Schumm, 11:17. Penalties: First period—Conley, tripping. Second period—No penalties. Third period—Scully, roughing; Schumm, roughing; Conley, catching the puck. Referee—Herb Drury.

WILLIGS, FINTEX WIN

The McKeesport Willigs and Fintex scored victories in independent floor games last night. The Willigs defeated the Tin City Rollers in New Castle, 35-26, while Fintex defeated the Grande Cadets in Hazelwood, 34-21.

MAX AND STEVE BOTH PREDICT K. O. WIN

Steve Hamas, youthful Jerseyan who first gained athletic fame at Penn State, is that barrier, and the promoters expect 15,000 enthusiasts to witness the clash.

It is Philadelphia's most important boxing bout since 1926, the year that Gene Tunney, late of the U. S. Marines, knocked the heavyweight crown from the head of the Manassa Mauler, Jack Dempsey.

Schmeling, dubbed by some the German Dempsey, is a 7-to-5 favorite to conquer Hamas in their 12-round battle. The fight prophets suggest that Schmeling will find his opportunity, as the Passaic youngster wades in too aggressively for his own safety.

Defeat, Schmeling has indicated, might mean his retirement.

Charley Harvey, manager of Hamas, advised spectators to look for Steve to put over a knockout by the seventh or eighth round.

A. A. U. AWAITS RING PROBE

Announcing that it will welcome an investigation into its manner of conducting amateur boxing shows and tournaments, the Allegheny Mountain Association, of the A. A. U., today is awaiting the action of the State Athletic Commission following the withdrawal of a number of teams from its junior championship tournament at the Keystone A. C. last Saturday night.

According to John T. Taylor, secretary-treasurer of the association, coaches of clubs entered in the tournament agreed to permit the admission of Pleasant Valley A. C. boxers, of New Salem, in the tournament after they were delayed in arriving due to the severe weather, but changed their minds on Saturday, the third night of the event, and then walked out.

In his statement, Taylor says his organization has been lenient in its treatment of coaches and boxers, but finally decided upon a showdown following a series of such disagreements over a lengthy period. He adds that some of the coaches and boxers have become money-minded and have been straying from the principles of amateurism.

Dr. McClelland, the boxing commissioner, who announced after Saturday night's debacle that no more permits would be issued pending an investigation, is in Philadelphia today for a meeting of the commission and the Max Schmeling-Steve Hamas fight. It is understood he will call a meeting upon his return to discuss the amateur situation.

Reports Have Carey Out as Manager

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Reports that the Brooklyn Dodgers of the National League were considering the release of Max Carey as manager were given wide credence in sports circles today, but there was no unanimity of opinion as to his successor.

One group believes Casey Stengel, Brooklyn coach for two years and popular with Dodger fans, has the inside track, while another is just as sure that Martin Joseph (Marty) McManus, one-time Boston Red Sox leader, will get the job if Carey is displaced.

DiMeolo May Coach Local Pro Eleven

Luby DiMeolo, assistant football coach at New York University, is the latest applicant for the coaching job with the Pittsburgh Pirates, according to President Art Rooney. Luby is being considered for the head coaching job at the New York institution, but in the event the job lands in someone else's lap, the former University of Pittsburgh football captain would like to come here and coach the professional team.

Ed Stroster, Smith Meet in Cue Duel

COACH RESIGNS

SISTERSVILLE, W. Va., Feb. 13 (AP.)—William J. Metzger, coach and head of the physical education department of Sistersville High School, resigned today effective in March. Metzger announced his wife will return to his home in Wethoa, O., and enter the greenhouse business.

MEMORY TEST

TODAY'S QUESTIONS

How good is your memory of sports heroes, events and dates? Can you answer these questions?

1—What Pirate manager appeared in vaudeville coincident with his appointment as pilot of the Pittsburgh club?

2—Who holds the record for stealing bases?

4—What Pittsburgh golf professional was a machine gunner in France during the World War?

P.V.A.C. BOXERS ANNEX A. M. A. TEAM TITLE

By JESS CARVER

An Abe, an Irwin, a Charley, a Johnny, a Jimmy, a Henry and two Billys are enthroned today as Allegheny Mountain Association junior amateur boxing champions and the Pleasant Valley A. C., of New Salem, Pa., almost a post entry in the annual tournament which came to a conclusion at the K. A. C. last night, holds the team title for 1934.

With the crack Pittsburgh Lyceum team, in which Danny Ryan and Peaches Gallagher take so much pride, out of the milling due to a lost argument with the A. M. A. officials, it was easy for the P. V. A. C. to step in and grab off the laurels that the Lyceum apparently had socked away.

LYCEUM WITHDRAWS

The Lyceum pulled out of the tournament last Saturday night when the A. M. A. permitted the P. V. A. C. to enter a team after missing the first round. The Lyceum's protest was fair enough, but it failed to register with the A. M. A.

118-pound class—Irwin Loestetter, McKeesport A. C., defeated Gene Gibbons, McKeesport Lyceum.

160-pound class—William Wassill, Pleasant Valley A. C., New Salem defeated Steve Nickleach, unattached.

Heavyweight class—Jimmy Jones, Krah A. C., defeated Pete Landini, West Newton.

EXHIBITION BOUTS

135-pound class—Jackie Walls, Frawley A. C., defeated Tip Davis, West Newton.

147-pound class—Jackie Peters, Frawley A. C., defeated Ray Eberle, South Heights A. C.

ARDEN SOCCER TILT RECALLED

By TOM BIRKS

Twelve years ago the Arden soccer team, of the Keystone League, traveled to St. Louis to meet the Scullin Steel eleven in the Western semi-final round of the National open competition. Playing inside right that day was Mike Bookie, and when the Curry team steps into Sportman Park in the Mound City next Sunday in the same round of the tourney against the National champions, the Stix Fuller outfit, Mike Bookie will be the only player present of the famous Arden team that found itself knocked out of the tourney.

Packed stands that day saw one of the greatest soccer teams that ever left Pittsburgh play a St. Louis professional team to a standstill, score four goals, have three ruled out, and lose, 2 to 1. Charley Bechtold, a great St. Louis favorite, scored the two goals after Johnny Jaap, Mike Bookie and Andy Brady had riddled the Mound City defense with goals which were disallowed.

Mayberry May Get Blood Transfusion

MONONGAHELA, Pa., Feb. 13.—Howard Mayberry, 38, of Donora, former Canadian bantamweight champion, who has been confined in the Monongahela Memorial Hospital since last Armistice Day as a result of injuries suffered when struck by an automobile, may undergo a blood transfusion today.

Preparations were made to make the transfusion this morning when Mayberry failed to show an improvement. His condition is reported as only "fair."

Three former fans of Mayberry have been accepted as blood donors. They would not reveal their names.

Wilmerding Five Bows to McCanns

The McCanns, led by Manning and Tach, handed the Wilmerding Y. M. C. A. passers their first defeat of the second-half race in the Allegheny County League last night, beating the Y on the South Side Market House floor, 47 to 37.

Manning and Tach each tallied 12 points. Ed Leech had 11 for the losers. The lineup:

McCanns	G.	F.	Pt.	Wilmer.	G.	F.	Pt.
Cook, f	2	1	5	B. Leech, f	5	0	10

CHILLYSAUCE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Jack and Eddie Onslow had a great time at the Sports Roundup . . . The two brothers have been in baseball for 20 years or more and are still going strong . . Jack will put on his scouting act for the revamped Red Sox this year . . . The Burton Holmes travelogue in Africa is interesting but hardly as funny as one of Jack's sleuthing trips into the bush leagues . . .

A lot of fellows were slated for a razzing at the Schenley Hotel affair, but we didn't have time to get round to all of them . . . In case Jack Maloney, of the Variety Club, and Art Rooney, football impresario, think they got off lucky, they may get a rebound out of these limericks that were left off the opening chorus:

I hope you all know Jack Maloney,
Whose movies are very high-toney;
They say he's an ace
In the Hollywood race,
But I think he's a lot of baloney.

A sober young fellow named Rooney
Of late has been hitting the mooney;
And this is the rub—
His professional club
Was enough to drive anyone looney.

CUP JENKINS, the popular Homestead sportsman and police official, sat in on the feast with Bill Campbell, coach of Homestead High School . . . Cup was a front-wave doughboy with the 80th Division during the fighting in France . . . Charley Manning, charming New Englander, who runs the pretty Shannopin layout, has at least three big reasons for going far in golf . . . Two of them are little boys and the baby, a cute girl . . . Charley had a good time at the Roundup.

Chester Smith proved himself an interlocutor of the first water, but he was charged with a little social error which will not be held against him . . . Chester had both hands filled when he neglected to present Gene Edwards, St. Vincent coach, to the guests.

GEORGE GIBSON has his Regular-Yanigan lineups almost shaped as regards the coming spring training period, but Gibby may have to change his plans before he goes far . . . Yarosz Paces Way to Easy Victory Over Smith the fight. I was in the gymnasium more than a month, counting the postponement. I didn't have the old zip. I'd like to fight him again, and maybe I'll get the chance in Philadelphia. Did he hurt me at any time? No. But make no mistake about it—he's a great boxer and all he needs to be the world champion is to get another crack at Vince Dundee."

Yarosz said he was hurt only once by Smith and then only momentarily, in the fourth round.

TEDDY ALWAYS MASTER

It was an odd sort of a battle, entirely away from the pattern expected by the fans who had seen Smith beat the stocky Terry so easily in the North Side Arena. It was completely dominated by Yarosz, whose pale features bore out his post-fight statement that he had not fully recovered his strength following his illness, by the simple expedient of keeping his man at a distance and making him fight the sort of a fight the man didn't want to fight. The tempo seldom was fast or exciting, and once, in the ninth round, it slowed down so much that the fans started the anvil chorus for more and better action.

Added to this was the very acute danger that the battle would be stopped in an early round because of low punches. Both men were warned by the referee, Al Grayber, Smith four times in the fifth round, after Yarosz had been cautioned at the start of the same session. Had the bout been terminated at this stage, there is no telling how the crowd would have taken it, for it was incensed over a decision in the preceding battle and had hooted down an attempt to introduce Charley Massera, the Monongahela heavyweight, who last week fought a great bout with King Levinsky in New York.

FIGHT BY ROUNDS

Smith was warned the first time in the very first round, in which a low left was about the only blow he landed against the nonchalant, circling Yarosz, who jabbed and jabbed and put on the finishing touches with two rights which stopped Jimmy coming in near the finish.

Teddy won as he pleased in the second round except for two mixing flurries on the ropes, out of one of which he emerged with the skin on his left temple barked a bit.

Yarosz loafed at the start of the third round, but finished fast to take the honors. The fourth saw him finish on the wrong end of an exchange of rights and push his way into a clinch. He rallied, however, to add this to his other winning rounds.

SESSION OF FOULS

The fifth was the round of the fouls, already mentioned, and the sixth saw Teddy sparring and keeping his man at arm's length. He threw a few rights to the head in the seventh, in which Smith was warned again, and fought off a determined right-hand onslaught in the eighth.

The ninth round found them slowed down to a snail's pace, from which the crowd's razzing shook them into putting on the best action round so far in the tenth. They started slugging and continued to trade until the bell.

The eleventh was Teddy's biggest round. He herded Jimmy into the latter's own corner and hammered home almost a dozen rights to the head and body, with Smith trapped in such a manner that he could neither escape nor fight him off. It was the best sustained attack of the fight.

In the twelfth Teddy pounded the body in a neutral corner and then staggered Jimmy with a right to the head along the ropes on another side of the ring and followed it up with two more rights, but the Philadelphian weathered the storm.

JIMMY WINS ROUND

Came then the thirteenth and Smith's only winning round. He rushed out of his corner and went close and slugged and continued the aggressor throughout, with Yarosz apparently coasting, which he admitted later. The last two rounds went to Teddy, who led in spurts, setting his own pace.

Yarosz weighed 158½ and Smith 154¾ at 3 p. m. The show was the biggest thing in a fistic way this town has seen since the Yarosz-Vince Dundee battle at Forbes Field last fall, which Yarosz also won. More than 2,000 fans were turned away when the tickets were sold out, and, in order to appease them, the Garden announced that it would give the details of the battle over a loud speaker in front of the arena, which was done.

POLICE QUELL RIOT

Earlier in the evening, when the 500 general admission tickets available were gobbled up almost as soon as they were placed on sale, a riot call had to be sent in to keep the crowd from breaking down a door on the Center avenue side of the building and taking possession of the place. Due to some confusion in the arrangement in one section of the reserved seats, there was some congestion at that point and the show was held up after the third preliminary until an aisle there was cleared of standing customers. Aside from this, however, the overflow crowd was well handled, considering the crush.

More than 5,000 persons crowded into the building for the show and the gross receipts exceeded $10,000, a remarkable figure in these times. Due to the sellout, the fight was broadcast by Station KQV.

GREEN BEATS HASSETT

Green upset the dope by beating Smith's spar-mate, Danny Hassett, in their six-round semi-final, which closed out the show. Hassett started off as if he would win handily, taking the first two rounds, although he was dropped for a count of one as the bell ended the second round. Green got to work in the third and punched his way into the running and finally dropped Hassett for a count of nine with a right to the jaw. Hassett came back to win the fourth round, but faded again in the last two. After the bout it was said he had suffered a broken rib during the fourth round.

Al Quaill, Brookline amateur middleweight sensation, made a corking debut as a professional by beating Jack Dalcherone, of Springdale, in the main four-round bout, boxing and punching well and showing good generalship. Dalcherone had to show a lot of gameness to stand up under the punishment and fight back as he did toward the finish.

KNOCKOUTS IN PRELIMS

The other two scheduled four-rounders were over early. General Burrows, Aliquippa Negro sparring partner of Yarosz, whose style is getting to resemble Teddy's, knocked out Tony Ross, of Soho, subbing on short notice for Max Elling, with a left to the body midway in the second round, and Mike Barto, hard-hitting southpaw lightweight, won a technical knockout over Elmer Wilson East End Negro, in the third round, when the referee stopped the bout because of a cut eye. Wilson also was in trouble from two lefts to the head in the second round.

The bout which set the fans on fire was the first six-rounder, in which Joey Bazzone, of McKeesport, got the referee's decision over Paul Oger, of Moundsville, W. Va., after the judges had split, one voting for a draw and the other for Oger. As a matter of fact, Bazzone actually did win the fight, with his big lead in the first four rounds, but Oger's stiff lefts and hard rights in the last two rounds made the fans forget that, and they turned on the heat with a loud blast at the officials.

Al Grayber refereed this bout and the main event, Red Robinson the Quaill and Hassett fights, and Joe Orsini the first two. Dr. George McBeth made his debut as a judge in the main and Quaill fights, and the other judges were Lou Meininger, Phil Scello, Stanley Phillips and Jock Simco. Tommy Grant and A. C. Couch were the timers, and Ray Eberle did the announcing in formal attire.

WESTMINSTER TAKES LEAD IN CONFERENCE

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Feb. 13.—Westminster's towering Titans of the basketball court are in full and undisputed possession of first place in the Tri-State Conference today. The Titans annexed the honor last night as they walloped Geneva College's Covenanter five, 58 to 21.

Led by high-scoring Wes Bennett, who flipped himself 10 field goals and 6 fouls for a grand total of 26 points, the Titans took an early lead and never were headed. They led, 32 to 9, at the end of the first half and proceeded to limit Geneva to five field goals in all.

Hurley, guard, led Geneva's scoring with 6 points. The lineup:

Sportsmen Favor Sunday Fishing Ban

HARRISBURG, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Opposition to proposals to lift the ban on Sunday fishing in Pennsylvania has been voiced by the State Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs.

In its annual meeting yesterday, the federation elected officers, mapped a program of aggressive action for the coming year, advocated legislative reforms to improve hunting and fishing conditions and condemned the administration of CWA mine-sealing funds by State Health Department officials.

The resolution proposing legal Sunday fishing in the state was tabled by a vote of 64 to 51. The federation comprises representatives of 195 sportsmen's units in Pennsylvania.

Maloney Pointers Win Show Ribbons

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Robert F. Maloney, of Pittsburgh, exhibited a team of ribbon winning pointers at the Westminster Kennel Clubs' annual show at Madison Square Garden yesterday.

Maloney Moscow's Olga was awarded the ribbon emblematic of the best of winners of the show, with Moscow's Felicity taking the reserve award.

The team of Herewithem Fly Guy, Herewithem Miss Mac and Moscow's Olga and Moscow's Felicity were awarded a special ribbon as being the best team of pointers benched.

STOCK MARKET PRICE TRENDS MIXED

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Storm clouds over Europe, the recent aircraft tail-spin and probable governmental regulation of speculation failed to disturb the stock market today to any great extent.

Trends were somewhat mixed, however, and, while a number of rail, steel, silver and specialty equities advanced, the alcohols were heavy along with scattered aviation issues. There was considerable profit-taking, but the activity dwindled on the decline.

Stocks received little aid from grains, most of which were not much better than steady. Cotton rallied and dipped. Bonds were higher. The gold currencies gained on the dollar, but sterling was just about even.

Shares of Union Pacific, United States Smelting, American Smelting, Penney, Sears Roebuck, Case, Cerro de Pasco, New York Central, Bethlehem Steel and American Can moved up 1 to 2 points. International Harvester, General Motors, Chrysler, McKeesport Tinplate, Eaton Manufacturing and others were firm. United Aircraft was off nearly 3 and Aviation Corporation and Curtis Wright sagged. American Commercial Alcohol dropped 5, United States Industrial Alcohol, 3, and National Distillers and Commercial Solvents, a point or more each. The tobaccos were lower, and the utilities did little.

Silver mining shares were given new hope by Secretary Morgenthau's letter to the House Coinage Committee pledging himself for "the rehabilitation of silver." The steels and carriers were said to have reflected improved earnings prospects for these major industries. Rumors of a price war among the alcohol companies caused some selling in this category.

Orders for some of the aircraft stocks "under the market" were reported on the belief that this group has been sufficiently oppressed since the government last week canceled the air mail contracts. Brokerage circles, however, were still confused over the possible outcome of the controversy.

Firmness of issues of companies that might benefit by a revival of trade with Soviet Russia was seen as a response to the administration's incorporation of the new export-import national bank of Washington whose principal object will be the financing of transactions with the U. S. S. R. It was expected that the first deal through the new bank would be the sale of 500,00 bales of cotton to the Soviets.

While bearishness of some professionals continued to be a factor in market operations, most commision firms, while advising caution and selectivity, were inclined to the optimistic persuasion. There is at present no overextension of public margin trading, it was said, and "outside" participation, except for outright cash purchases, has been relatively small during the fast few weeks.

GRAIN VALUES SHOW LOSSES

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—Grain prices averaged a little lower early today. Downturns of values were associated with announcement of proposed new congressional restrictions on future delivery trading. Opening unchanged to ½ lower, wheat afterward held near the initial limits. Corn started unchanged to ¼ down, and subsequently altered little.

STOCK REFORM WILL DIVERT COMMITMENTS

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—In case drastic stock exchange regulation prevents free and easy trading on slim margins, individuals, striving for large leverage, will in all probability seek alternative means of accomplishing their objective.

Mr. Rukeyser

If trading were restricted to strictly cash transactions, the venturesome could legally find "moral equivalents" of the marginal technique. For example, the common stock of general management investment trusts or holding companies, with senior securities outstanding, including preferred shares and bonds, provides the extension of commitment similar to that sought by the marginal trader. Moreover, the outright purchase of stock purchase warrants, which of course are non-income producing, also gives a similar wider participation in the hoped for fruits of contemplated future prosperity.

DANGER IN PLAN

Such alternatives to marginal trading give the advantages without entailing all the dangers. In investment trusts and holding companies, which give leverage through trading on the equity, the borrowed funds—or senior capital—do not consist of a demand loan, such as the debit balance on margin account is. The overextended margin trader frequently is right in his economic diagnosis, but loses because he is unable to meet demand loans which have been called before his anticipated price objective has been obtained.

The speculator is attracted to the marginal plan because it promises him "command" over a larger array of stock than he can afford to purchase for cash. Stocks of holding companies and of investment trusts, with leverage, likewise offer this wide command, as do warrants.

To the extent that the markets are put closer to a cash basis, they are relieved of so-called forced selling. In periods of liquidation, the decline is accelerated by the vicious spiral of selling by those whose margins have been impaired. The untoward aspect of the marginal system inheres in the fact that it reduces the purchasing power of patrons when prices go down to bargain levels and enhances buying power as quotations rise to inflated levels.

AFFECTS CASH TRADING

There is another aspect to the marginal issue. When an individual owns stock outright, he cannot be disturbed from his position. It is of course true that the liquidation value of his holdings will always reflect current market conditions, as well as internal changes in particular corporations. But in a very real sense, the outright owner of stocks is immune from being cleaned out during drastic breaks as marginal traders habitually are.

Of course, the Fletcher bill only takes a step in the direction of cash trading. But, except in bear markets, it practically doubles margin requirements.

To the extent that the market approaches a cash basis, the character of the brokerage business will be radically altered.

There will be less emphasis on luggers in, whose job is to replace marginal traders who have been cleaned out.

The new emphasis will be on customers' men who are investment analysts. Certainly in 1929 the Street was overmanned for cash investment markets.

As trading gets nearer a cash basis, losses, resulting from the machinery of Wall street itself, will be reduced. By the same token, opportunities for killings or lucky strikes will similarly be curtailed. But as long as governments are interested in revaluation or in changing monetary policies, they may tend to make as many speculative opportunities as they seek by direct legislation to shut off.

Devil's Island

here, but they died off. Weak-lunged night birds, these were; they died like flies. Couldn't stand the sunlight.

Remember the pirates who used to buy steerage tickets to French liners plying on the Cambodian coast, and then, from baskets of eggs carried aboard by women, they uncovered revolvers and shot up the ship, killing innocents by the hundred? They're here; more than a thousand of them. Officials give these pirates the razzle dazzle in a big way, then, from time to time, ship a few back to China. The tales they spread among the pirates always end with this advice:

"Lay off French steamers. They're poison!"

Well, what's this about convicts being paid? Sure, they're paid. Every man jack of them. It starts as low as a half-cent a day and works up to about 20 cents. Ironically enough, half of this is sent back to the town of their conviction to pay for their trial. The other half is theirs to spend in the coffee, candy and cake stalls which are part of every prison.

Coffee and cake? Well, what do they eat in jail? What are the rations? Exactly the same as a French soldier gets. Exactly. For breakfast, rice, coffee and bread. For lunch, stew or meat and vegetables, bread and red wine. For dinner, fish or meat with dried vegetables, bread, coffee with sugar, fruit, quinine, red wine.

That's what the troops get; that's what the convicts get. However, since there are more than 100 expert chefs among the convicts, they get the big break on preparation of the food. Also, since no citizen of Guiana, black, white or yellow, can escape his year with the army, every man jack in the place lives on these rations sooner or later. The flour incidentally, is all milled in Toronto.

Mark of Disgrace

And what's this silly rule about a convict getting crimed if he ever shakes hands, even with another convict? That's a fact. As a mark of everlasting disgrace, the man dare not shake hands.

And what about these bicycles and hors d'oeuvres under the mango trees? Well, when a first-class convict is finished with his day's work—which seldom takes over three hours—the balance of the day is his to do what he wants. If he can find one, he gets a job. He's expected to draw his pay every day and spend it at once. He's not allowed to save. Most convicts do save, on the sly, but those who have the cash can eat and drink and be merry, so long as they don't step out of their own lines. No convict or liberated man can attend mass, eat in the town hotels, or vote. But at least a hundred of them have married and lived in their own homes with their wives. By special arrangement, they only have to visit the penitentiary once a month, are subject to no work rules or discipline whatever, and wear no nuiform. The married men's quarters, incidentally, are in a beautiful palm and almond tree grove.

CHAPTER XXXV.

The case to which Tim Stokes had alluded concerned a pal of his known as "Reds Chandler," a notorious gangster of Philadelphia.

"Reds" protested his innocence vehemently but things looked pretty black for him. He was known to have borne a grudge against the murdered man; he had been in the vicinity of the crime when it was committed; and he had no alibi. All circumstantial evidence, of course, but "Reds" had a long and ugly police record which automatically acted against him.

Chandler, who had an intelligence above that of the ordinary crook, had read something of the amazing results of scopolamin, and begged the authorities to administer it. This, more by way of experimentation than anything else, was accordingly done.

"Reds'" reaction was entirely negative. Under the drug, he told a circumstantial story, agreeing in all details with the story he had related while conscious. This, however, although somewhat in "Reds'" favor, actually proved nothing.

But now we come to the real significance of the story. There was in custody at that time a young fellow known only as Sidney, who had been arrested for a minor offense, theft of an automobile, I believe.

A Surprising Case

Dr. Dandy, who had administered the drug to Chandler, was anxious to try it several more times, as the technique of its use was extremely difficult.

"Let's try it on that boy," he suggested.

So Sidney was selected as the next patient and rendered unconscious.

What he told made the police sit up and take notice and brought the court stenographers on a run. In the course of the examination, Sidney happened to mention that the car which he had stolen had been designated for use in the Galsworthy murder. Now the police were hot on the trail. They shot question after question at him, the result being that Sidney implicated himself and three other pals as the murderer of Mr. Galsworthy.

It was possible to verify all of these statements, and Sidney and his friends were promptly accused, tried and sentenced to life imprisonment for the crime.

This story had made a considerable impression in the underworld, so I had been told, and it was now becoming fashionable for a criminal, if innocent, to clamor long and loudly for the truth serum.

Faith in Serum

Either Tim Stokes was really innocent or he was counting upon the strength of his will power and mentality to beat the test. However, I doubted the ability of anyone to react dishonestly to the injection. I had seen it tried out several times; once upon a burglar in Spokane, who promptly confessed, and once upon a brother-reporter of mine in Denver, who underwent the examination in order to provide himself with first-hand material for a feature story. His efforts to answer falsely a set of questions which had already been prepared previously resulted in flat failure, and the description of his experience had convinced me that the thing was fool-proof.

Consequently I was sure in my own mind that Tim Stokes, if guilty, would confess under the influence of scopolamin. If he stuck to his original story, it would go a long way toward convincing me that his miraculous tale of the tall man in the cellar of the Paige house was true.

Anyway I wouldn't have missed the proceedings for worlds.

It had been arranged that the examination should take place in one of the small private rooms at headquarters. Dr. Arthur C. Dandy, of Philadelphia, had agreed to come down and take charge.

At the corner of Fayette and Charles streets, Kirk Judson said goodby to me. I did my best to persuade him to come along with me, but he protested that he felt too ill for the ordeal. In fact, he did look thoroughly knocked out—as sallow as if he were suffering from jaundice and the hands with which he tried to light a cigaret were shaking with nervousness.

"I've already arranged with one of my men to represent us," he told me again. "But it's awfully decent of you to want me, Kay. But I look like a fool," touching the bandage over his eyes, "and this shiner smarts and throbs like the devil."

"I'll be seeing you again soon, I suppose?"

Spectators Present

"Oh, by all means. Stokes may tell something which will close the case, but personally I don't think the fellow is going to confess. I haven't any faith in this sort of thing."

A small crowd had already gathered in the tiny room set aside for the demonstration. Dr. Dandy had already arrived and had donned his white apron. Inspector Anderson was there with his arm in a sling, so white and drawn that I was shocked. Hurley and Katz, and the commissioner, several other detectives, and a representative from each of the newspapers and press services. Also two other dignified professional gentlemen, whom I correctly surmised were physicians, interested in seeing an application of the drug. And, to my surprise, Randolph Paige and the lawyer, Robert Cleveland. I watched the two men curiously. Ranny regarded the lawyer with little-concealed aversion but I could see nothing of the jealous husband about him. If there had been any encounter between the two men as I more than half surmised, they both managed to hide it well.

The center of the picture was Tim Stokes. He sat on the edge of a single cot which had been set up in the center of the room. He had removed his coat and vest, collar and tie, and had rolled up his shirt sleeves. The little fellow had had a bath and a haircut and a shave and appeared fresh and immaculately clean.

The whole thing struck me as very informal, not your typical operating room. Dr. Dandy in his white togs and the cot were the only signs that this was not a natural police gathering.

Suspect Ready

I nodded across the room to the Inspector, who smiled wanly. I could see that he was on the verge of collapse at any moment.

A few minutes later Dr. Dandy pulled out his watch.

"I see it's now after two," he said to Anderson. "Shall we start? I have to get back to Philadelphia this afternoon. Are you ready, Stokes?"

Tim Stokes breathed a great deep sigh of relief. Either the gunman was a first-rate actor or he was actually innocent and counting upon this demonstration to free him.

"Okay, Doc," he said.

Dr. Dandy stepped forward with a hypodermic needle in his hand. "I'll put it in the arm, Tim," he said. "Now there's nothing to be afraid of. It won't hurt a bit. You may feel slightly nauseated. If you do, just drop your head on the pillow here. After a little while, we're going to ask you some questions. Don't try to think the answers—just say anything that happens to occur to you. Don't try to remember anything."

In reply, Tim silently extended his right arm and the doctor inserted the needle. For a few minutes, there was dead silence in the room. The rest of us were all standing, pressing curiously around the bed and looking at the patient as if we expected him suddenly to go off in a convulsion.

Then Tim rose to his feet. "I want a drink of water," he said unsteadily. His voice was somewhat thick and he staggered to his feet, but he managed to reach a little table nearby and with difficulty to pour himself a glass from a pitcher.

Questioning Begins

Then he sat down again on the edge of the bed, but he dropped his head into his hands.

"He's going," said Dr. Dandy to Anderson. "It won't be long now." Again he inserted his needle in Tim's arm, and this time he pulled out his watch and gravely counted Tim's pulse.

"That watch looks as big as the house," said Tim hoarsely. "And it sounds . . . like . . . an alarm clock. I can see you . . . all, but you seem . . . so far . . . away. I feel sick."

"Come lie down," urged the doctor, gently pushing his head back on the pillow. The gangster lay there for a moment or two, not quite unconscious, yet far from being himself. Then his eyes closed and he began to breathe in regular deep gasps.

"He's off," stated Dr. Dandy. "I think you can begin now."

It had been arranged that Captain of Detectives Charles D. Winslow was to conduct the questioning, since Anderson was in no condition to do it himself. Two stenographers, notebooks in hand, drew their chairs up close beside the bed where they could catch every word.

"Make your questions very short," said Dr. Dandy. "If you don't, he will answer the last part and forget to answer the first. Keep them short and very direct."

"What's your name?" asked the Captain.

The answer came without hesitation, yet, although the voice was low and throaty, it was quite clear.

"Timothy James Stokes."

"Where were you born?"

"In New York City."

"Tim, where were you on last Monday night? Can you remember?"

"Sure I can. That was the night Tilly and me planned to get the jewel."

"Did you plan to go to Mrs. Paige's house?"

"Yep. We went there. I met Tilly outside the house about eight o'clock. She left a window open. We went in that."

ARCHITECTURE THROUGH THE AGES—MAN'S MARCH AS BUILDER (General Science)

The art of building, architecture, has four requirements—Good planning (choosing right location, efficient utilization and most practical sub-division of space); sound construction (materials of adequate strength and size); artistic composition (pleasing lines, proportions, satisfying cultivated taste); harmonious decoration (suitable to purpose, style, size, materials).

PRESIDENT ABRAHAM LINCOLN AND HIS CABINET (1862)

The presidential campaign of 1860 was a grim determination of four parties (Republicans, Western and Southern Democrats, Know Nothing) to get control of the National Government. The Republicans were victorious with Abraham Lincoln, who won in the Electoral College.

During the time from election to President Lincoln's inauguration (1861), South Carolina had seceded (Dec. 20, 1860) followed by Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Missouri, Louisiana, Texas in quick succession, choosing the Southern Democrat Jefferson Davis, as their President.

The seceded states seized forts, arsenals, other federal property, preparing for armed defense, anticipating military action o f the North. The period of tension between South and North changed soon to a graver test, the Civil War. (U. S. Hist.)

CHARLES II LANDING AT DOVER (1660)

Charles II, son of the beheaded King Charles I, entered England and took possession of its throne without a struggle, because of Gen. Monk's arrangements. The latter, famous in the Cromwell era, aimed to draw England from the chaos following Cromwell's death.

The Habeas Corpus Bill (right of accused to a judicial hearing to determine legality of detention), the beginning of the Party System (Whigs and Tories), the Uniformity Act of Parliament (forcing each minister to consent to the content of the Common Prayerbook resulting in many emmigrations instead of obedience) came in Charles II's reign.

Events connected with America were: The futile attempt to feudalize Carolina; conquest of the Dutch New Netherlands (New York); the land grant to William Penn, who founded Pennsylvania.

FOREST, A RENEWABLE NATURAL RESOURCE

Above: Bald River Falls in Cherokee National Forest, Tennessee, a famous beauty spot. Forest utilizes soil too poor to produce crops, increases its fertility and prepares it for agricultural use, if needed. It furnishes timber crop, provides homes for birds checking insects, increases humidity of air, induces rain, reduces frost, raises water table of soil, reduces evaporation from crops and soil to leeward side, prevents packing and erosions, directs precipitation to underground flow, regulating the volume and purity of springs and streams. It offers sports, recreations. (General Science)

DIAMOND—DIAMOND EDGED TOOLS

Diamond is pure crystalline carbon (forms related to octahedron or cube). Cut and ground as "brilliant," is the gem of high internal light reflection, "fire" (above). Specific gravity is 3.5; it resists chemicals, combines at high temperature with oxygen to CO_2. It is brittle, the hardest mineral, scratched only by boron carbide (B6C). Diamond is found mostly in South Africa, also in Australia, Brazil and recently in Arkansas, U. S.

Faulty crystals, called "Bortz" and a black amorph variety, the "carbonado" (just as hard but less brittle), are used as industrial diamonds for tools to shape tough material (glass, grindstones, rubber, bakelite, etc.) and to drill rock.

Salome Is Old Folks Now

Yet, only last summer in Chicago, a girl did a fan dance with one feather.

The genius who revived the vicious Salome figured that veils were old-fashioned and cellophane was new scenery.

She skidded around the stage, singing an ancient Egyptian lullaby. She wasn't wearing much. But our winters are getting milder.

We don't know what she sang because it was in Italian or French or Spanish. Even Culbertson wouldn't consider that information.

She was answered by a delapidated tenor with a repaired voice. When he closed his melodious pan a rough baritone took up the vocal campaign and Salome discarded a veil. That was the finish of the first act. It was a two-act opera. So we left. We figured there would be five veils left at the finish.

We've seen better acting at the flea circus and heard better voices in a day nursery. If anybody got furious at Salome remember it was 25 years ago and we were not yet sold on artificial sunlight and stream lining.

No police raided the operatic abbatoir while the human monument unveiled itself. If this horrible drama plays in your home town you will be very much disappointed if you expect to be contaminated and have your morals fractured.

She was one of the beautiful girls of a bygone age. None of the gay blades of 1934 are going nuts over the Floradora Sextette of three decades ago. So, farewell, Sal, we have torn up your telephone number.

The Painless Tax

Taxation at best perhaps is a necessary evil.

It is the price the private citizen pays for the protection and services of the organized state.

Irrespective of the method of taxation, the cost of government in the last analysis falls on the gainfully employed self-supporting men and women of the country.

In other words, the burden must be borne by PRODUCTIVE INDUSTRY AND COMMERCE.

Unfortunately, Congress has ignored this truism, and has assumed it could be safely guided in taxation matters by PREJUDICE AND EMOTION.

Accordingly, the country has suffered from needlessly disturbing hodge podge tax measures.

Even now, when achievement of recovery hinges on NURSING AND FOSTERING USEFUL BUSINESS, the House Ways and Means Committee has sought primarily ADDITIONAL PUNITIVE AND OPPRESSIVE TAX RULES.

With the piling up of unprecedented peace-time deficits, an extraordinary obligation rests upon public officials to proceed astutely and soundly in matters pertaining to economic policy.

No tax scheme is perfect, but experience in Canada and elsewhere has amply demonstrated that the general manufacturers' sales tax is a comparatively painless impost.

On the other hand, the income and corporation taxes, which rest on the uncertain factor of fluctuating business profits, put the Treasury in the position alternately of prince and pauper.

Moreover, the very excesses of the income and corporation taxes tend to kill the goose (business) which lays the golden egg (national income).

With creative, job-giving industry and commerce already subject to great burdens under the N. R. A. and otherwise, it should be the main business of statesmanship to arrange the tax program in a way which will cause a minimum of disturbance to the CREATION AND DISTRIBUTION OF WEALTH.

Wherever the taxation problem has been analyzed expertly on its factual merits, the unique superiority of the general manufacturers' sales tax has been recognized.

The opposition has come from the muddle-headed and the demagogic.

Even the National Association of Manufacturers, ON WHOM THE JOB OF COLLECTION WOULD FALL, urgently advocates adoption in the United States of a general manufacturers' sales tax.

The sponsorship of this tax plan by the National Association of Credit Men reflects the result of a survey conducted by the economic credit council of the association at the end of 1932.

This survey, covering members in 130 major marketing centers in the United States, revealed that of those responding to the questionnaire 81 PER CENT FAVORED A SALES TAX ON GENERAL MANUFACTURES, whereas 67 per cent opposed a sales tax on certain lines only.

To ignore the judgment of experts in finance and trade is to run the risk of impairing the efficiency of our economic machine, upon which in the last analysis the social welfare of all of us depends.

This is no time to permit political blunderers to seek to soak business.

They do not thus soak the idle rich, who can escape through the purchase of tax exempt securities.

The punitive taxation school, which has been prevailing in Congress, in reality soaks business leadership, and, in doing so, soaks those who as a result of the soaking of business are thrown out of employment.

Scientific tax reform would give vitality and economic strength to the whole conception underlying the "new deal."

Buffalo Bill or Forbes?

The Former Is Considered the More Important in The New History Texts

In the 744 pages of the new history textbooks—"The Beginning of Our Country" and "The Growth of Our Country," by Dr. Smith Burnham and Dr. Theodore H. Jack—which have been ordered for the Pittsburgh public schools, there is not a word about Gen. John Forbes, according to Dr. C. Hale Sipe, the Butler historian.

It was Forbes who captured Fort Duquesne and ended the French occupation of this region. Forbes street, Forbes Field and the Forbes School take their name from him.

But while Forbes is ignored, Buffalo Bill receives attention in the new text.

Two excuses are offered by Pittsburgh educators for the neglect of local history. One is that research must first be conducted to establish the facts. The other is that only the high spots can be covered in a course in American history in the public schools.

The implication is either that the capture of Fort Duquesne by Gen. Forbes has not yet been established, or that it is not a high spot in American history.

Opposition Is Certain

Local Government Will Not Be Modernized Without a Struggle

Seven candidates for the Legislature have announced they are in favor of constitutional revision to permit changes in our system of local government that will promote economy and efficiency.

The Democratic State Committee has declared for modernization of local government and a constitutional convention.

It looks as if this movement were to have plain sailing. But do not be deceived. Opposition is certain.

Under the spurious plea of "home rule," township supervisors, school directors, justices of the peace and other occupants of fee offices, and political parasites in general will put up a vigorous struggle for the maintenance of the present system of government, which has come down to us practically unchanged from the days of the oxcart.

Citizens will have to fight vigorously to change the system.

And This Has Been Going on for Years!

(Copyright, 1934.)

For years Uncle Sam has held stubbornly to the fallacious income tax as the principal source of federal revenue. But the income tax has been usually a failure, always a burden, and now has become a racket.

Today, with RATES INCREASED, Uncle Sam finds the income tax yielding less revenue than it returned last year—and yet the House Ways and Means Committee proposes to make the rates STILL HIGHER, thereby inviting STILL LESS revenue.

But Canada for years has used the General Manufacturers' Sales Tax for revenue, and, while Canada's revenue has increased, the general sales tax has proved itself the least onerous of taxes.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Few actors are more respected, and deservedly so, in their profession than Willie and Eugene Howard. Sons of a rabbi, they began their joint careers in vaudeville when it was grand entertainment. Their skit was called: "The Messenger Boy and the Traveling Salesman!"

Their brotherly devotion has become one of the pleasant legends of back stage. Eugene is a capable straight man with a rousing voice but Willie with his outstanding ears and despairing shrug is the star. Yet he will rarely take an offer that does not include his elder brother.

Each is married and devoted to domesticity. They belong to no clubs and I have yet to see them in a night club, dawn sandwich shop or other haunts of theatrical folk. Producers find them most tractable of performers. Their off stage diversion is pinochle and a good cigar.

Neither drinks and many old-timers during the depression have been objects of their quiet beneficence. Also they are on the slim list of highly paid actors who salted their savings in non-skid securities. Not once since they began have they ever joined the "lay-offs."

There is fun, if you enjoy children, around the pond in Central Park. The other day it was flecked by wind. Many toy ships were bobbing about. But one sheep of a child in mournful abstraction was only prodding the shore forlornly with a stick. "Where's your ship?" I asked. His pursed lips trembled: "Muvver's punishing me." I inquired: "Were you naughty?" "Dis only hetched a kittie." I could not translate just what happened to the kittie and there appeared no balm in Gilead, although I would have liked to have bought him another boat. Yet all I could do was leave the scowling die-hard admiral to his mackerel mood.

Then the tiny faun in a salmon pink fuzzy wool coat. She left her doll on a bench and approached in solemn hesitancy. I sat taut for any movement would have skittered her off like the startled doe into the thicket. Finally she stood within reach, gazed at me with that admirable frankness of childhood, and smiled, the coquette! I smiled back and boasted: "I know a dandy story about Peter Rabbit and the Fairy Princess!" She was tempted, edged a half step nearer, turned and toddled unsteadily off. But all was not entirely lost—for now and then she peeped at me from behind the post of a wisteria arbor.

Houdini scoffed at superstition. They were recalling the other night that he deliberately made himself 13 at a dinner at the home of Howard Thurston on Long Island on the June before he died. He passed on the following December. At Houdini's table that evening were also Madame Hermann, widow of Hermann the Great, and the late William Johnston, newspaperman.

The famous flying Alfreda Codona, having recovered from a net fall that incapacitated him last season, is now rehearsing, in a Manhattan warehouse, an improvement on his act that will gasp his audiences—if achieved. Codona was first to execute the triple somersault in a twirl from one trapeze to his brother in another. Now he is rehearsing a three and a half, which means another half turn in the air. He will be caught by the feet instead of by the hands. I am told that out of several hundred tries, he has accomplished it once, which shows that it may be done. He practiced for five years before perfecting the triple somersault.

There's a wallop to those dove gray, silvered and sharp-angled cosmetic salons, niched in three-storied catenation among the high spires of the shopping center. I drop in hoping they will just let me browse and they do, realizing after a quick glance they can do nothing for me professionally. Sometimes, too, I come away with a few dandy samples. Every clod-hopper is a fool for samples.

ISN'T IT SO?

The girl with the long skirt doesn't necessarily wear a long face.

A fine thing about being crazy is that the crazy person doesn't realize he is crazy.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

'Have You Seen a Dream Walking . . . Talking . . .'

Haunting bit of melody, that "HAVE YOU SEEN A DREAM WALKING, TALKING?"

Sitting in the blue twilight I listen.

I think—remember—

Remember the dreams that have drifted . . . walking, talking, yet never making a sound—through my own life.

Think of those other lives—countless other lives—that spend themselves frantically, futilely, trying to clutch such dreams; rejecting reality.

Wonder why someone hasn't made a sermon of that song—

"HAVE YOU SEEN A DREAM WALKING—TALKING?"

Who hasn't? Seeing dreams is the best thing we mortals do!

Before we can barely toddle, we've begun to choose our dreams—shape those secret desires which shall rule our lives, sap all our energy.

"HAVE WE SEEN A DREAM WALKING?"

We have! And we can tell in most minute detail exactly what that dream is like. What's it about? It may be about any one of a million things. The job we'll have some day. The home we'll make. The man or woman we'll love. The career we'll achieve. The friends we'll select. The politics, or philosophy, or religion—sports, recreations or cultural interests—with which we'll fill our lives.

"HAVE WE SEEN A DREAM WALKING?"

We have not only seen it—but we have accumulated blue prints, estimates, surveys, and complete Vital Statistics of that particular, pet dream. And just try and get us to accept a substitute! For that dream is what we want—and that's what we're going to have or bust trying!

Why do all of our lives fall short of their mark? Why do most of our lives fizzle out in futile yearning and rebellion? That's why.

WE HAVE SEEN A DREAM WALKING — TALKING — AND HENCEFORTH NOTHING BUT THAT DREAM WILL SATISFY US.

We have seen a dream. Like all dreams, it's perfect. For it's so easy for a dream to be perfect. A dream need have no flaws, no failings.

A dream can be just what we want it to be. The dream of a love—or a career—or a religion—or a working relationship with one's fellow men—they can be, they always are, ideal. Nothing disturbs their harmony; ruffles their serenity.

And they are not only perfect, but they are also practical. A dream always works out just as you expect it to. It never fails to perform. It never falls short of your expectations.

"Have you seen a dream walking—talking?"

You have. And with never a stumble or hiccough!

So you face life; you and your Dreams. And presently along comes REALITY. Along comes the real job, the real home, the real love, the real relationship with your fellow man. And, in the first impulsive moment, you think you have found your ideal. So you tie up with the prospect. You take the job, marry the sweetheart establish the contact with your neighbor. Then what?

Then, maybe for a week or a month, the glamour persists. But presently you find yourself swamped with a horror of disillusionment. For you had thought you had found the answer to that secret longing. But have you? Is this uncomfortable, inconvenient, frequently exasperating reality anything like your Dream? IT IS NOT!

You always got along with your dream. It always got along with you. There was never any conflict. But now—Oh, now! How changed everything is! For this disconcerting Reality demands readjustments, sacrifices, concessions and compromises that are utterly maddening.

So what?

So of course it isn't—it can't possibly be—your Dear, Adored Dream Walking. And obviously that means you've got to cut loose and go looking for something, or somebody, else—which will match up with that lovely haunting vision of Never-never land!

Why do we get mad with our friends? Divorce our husbands and wives? Quit our jobs? Mess up our lives?

Silly? Sure it is! And is our face red!

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Why Not 'Escape'?

Every now and then some young writer rises to excoriate "romantic love," and to sing paens to what Henry Morton Robinson calls "This Brave New Love."

This seems rather like throwing stones at a skeleton. There is an old saying, "Never speak ill of the dead." And romantic love and sentiment have been dead (theoretically) for so long, that it seems like mutilating tombstones to denounce them.

Mr. Robinson's most bitter grievance against "romantic love"—or any sort of love with a touch of star-dust or illusion about it—is that it is merely "an escape from reality."

Good Heavens! Are we to have NO escape from REALITY, MUST we concentrate on bills and banks and sex and housekeeping and budgets for twenty-four hours a day without surcease?

If everything which is an "escape from reality" is foolish or dangerous and must be discarded, why on earth did we struggle and yowl for REPEAL? What is wine, what is liquor, but an escape from reality?

* * *

Why do artists paint beautiful pictures, which carry us for a few moments, to some lovely Land of Never Was except to give us a momentary escape from reality?

What is good music, that makes us dream and grow young and almost sentimental, but an escape from reality?

What is Santa Claus (or who is Santa Claus)? Childhood's most beautiful myth and most thrilling escape from reality? Must we kill him off?

Must we do away with Mother Goose and Alice in Wonderland and Peter Pan and Grimm's fairy tales so that our children may never escape from reality?

Must we burn all our poetry books and our mystery stories and most of our classics? Must we discard Homer and Milton and Shakespeare—for the sake of "reality?"

"This Brave New Love" may be all that Mr. Robinson claims—but it has a way of ending in Reno, nine times out of ten, which leaves a rather bad taste in the mouth.

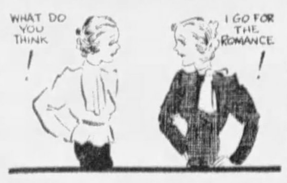
Nobody yearns to go back to the sickly sentimentality of pressed flowers, paper valentines, broken hearts and the exaggerated emotions of Grandfather's



day. But surely there is a happy medium between that pretty bunk and this ultra-modern and rather blatant show-down. Just as there is a happy medium between a fussy, over-stuffed Victorian room and the cold steel effects of modernistic furniture.

Couldn't we just sprinkle a little star-dust on this plain hunk of poundcake, called "modern love" or "brave new love"—to make it seem more like a wedding-cake and less like a bomb or a fire-alarm?

* * *

Is REALITY so beautiful and enticing these days that we must stick to it? As for me—show me the "ESCAPE!"

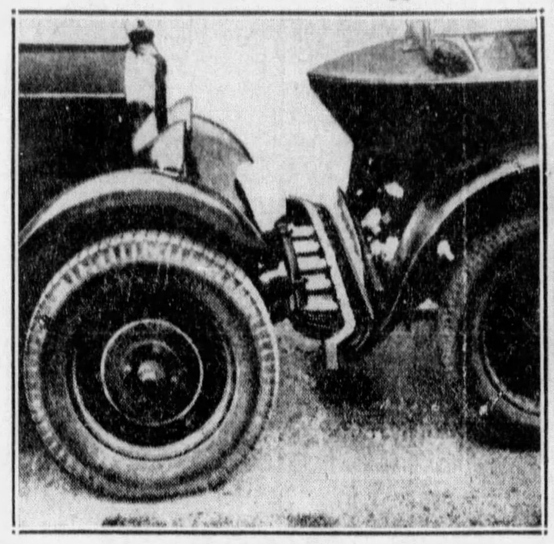
Automobile Makers, Is This News?

Would It Really Work as Suggested?



AN ALLEGED "CRASH-PROOF" BUMPER

It was demonstrated recently at the French Automobile Club. According to the report, "a vehicle fitted with this device was purposely driven into the back of another car at a speed of 30 miles per hour without causing or sustaining any damage."

If this statement be true, the "crash-proof" bumper ought soon to be a feature on all cars.

Human Side of the News

Two German Submarine Commanders Testify to the Existence of Strange Sea Monsters

By Edwin C. Hill

THAT sea serpent of Loch Ness, in Aberdeenshire, Scotland, has become a world topic. Millions of people on both sides of the Atlantic stir to an item of unusual new interest as the performances of the huge three-toed creature are reported to the London press.

Editors grow facetious, as editors are apt to do about the inexplicable or anything outside the range of ordinary human experience. They wonder if the quality of Scotch whisky, distilled in the hills of Aberdeenshire, has anything to do with the tales of the great primeval creature which is said to have slain a goat and a man, and which has been seen, according to many witnesses, not only swimming across the lake at express train speed but prowling along the beach.

But at least a hundred and fifty witnesses have testified on the book that with their own eyes they have seen the beast with the head of a serpent, the neck of a swan and the body of a legendary dragon.

Some day the mystery will be solved, and in the meantime it is worth remembering that for hundreds of years men who go down to the sea in ships have insisted that sea serpents do exist, no matter how dubious science may be about the matter. Sailors don't like ridicule any more than other people, and unquestionably they have kept silent about many startling experiences for fear of being laughed at.

Testimony of Two Germans

IT is a matter of official record that two German submarine commanders, operating in the North Sea during the World War, wrote down in their ship's log—their daily diary of the ship's operations and life—that they clearly saw and identified creatures so huge and monstrous, as utterly unlike any marine beast described in the natural history books, that they could have been nothing else than sea serpents.

First let us listen to the Baron von Forstner.

"I was commanding the U-28, when, on July 30, 1915," he says, "we torpedoed the British steamer Iberian. It was a clean hit, and the ship went down stern first. There followed a tremendous submarine explosion, at a depth of several thousand feet.

"Suddenly, a gigantic animal, some sixty-five feet long and having the appearance of a crocodile, came hurtling up from the bottom of the sea. It appeared mortally wounded, struggled for an instant and then sank beneath the surface. It was all over in about fifteen seconds, too quickly for us to use a camera. But I drew a picture of it, and six other men on the U-boat saw it as well as myself."

Next is the story of Capt. Werner Loewisch, now the navigation officer of the battleship Schleswig-Holstein. He offers this notation from his diary, entered on July 28, 1918, on a U-boat under the North Sea:

"Ten P. M.—Undoubtedly saw a sea serpent. I won't permit anybody to talk me out of it. The animal had a longish head, jagged points, like a crocodile, and real feet. It was about 30 feet long, flat and with a head like that of a crocodile."

A remarkable feature of the two reports is that the thing which each officer saw looked like a gigantic crocodile.

Well, sea serpents may not exist. All the Scottish witnesses may have been self-deceived, by some extraordinary illusion. But from the testimony of the German submarine commanders, added to the Scottish affidavits, it would be an incurable skeptic who would deny that down in the unplumbed depths of the seas hideous creatures lurk,, hurled to the surface and to the incredulous gaze of man on rare occasions by some great submarine disturbance, an earthquake or a volcanic eruption—creatures of the immeasurable past, relics of the ages still blank in the annals of the universe.

Soviet Envoy Possesses Tact

FROM his record I imagine that the Soviet ambassador, Alexander Troyanovsky, will get along well in Washington and with the American public. He was five years at Tokio, and there was no tougher assignment than that in the whole diplomatic field. But Troyanovsky carried it off and even had the Japanese admiring him for his tact and the way he played open and above board, whether it was at contract bridge, tennis, chess or at grave discussions about the Manchurian railroad.

Troyanovsky, 51 years old, is a short, stocky man with bushy eyebrows and iron gray hair. He doesn't smoke, but he will serve vodka in the embassy. At twenty he was a graduate of the University of Kieff and a subaltern in the Czar's cavalry. But he went revolutionary and in 1909 found himself in the salt mines of Siberia.

Making his escape, he reached Paris the following year, and there devoted himself to literary work until the revolution of 1917, when he went back with Lenin, Trotsky and others and took up his old love, the artillery in the Bolshevik army.

"Maybe my English is a little Japanese."

But he then points to his fourteen-year-old boy who is with him and says:

"This youngster speaks English better than Russian, as a result of his being educated in the American school in Tokio."
